Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Twenty-three recommendations for ending the depression, prepared from the hundred vigorous resolutions adopted at the tumultuous two day little business conference, were placed on the desk of President Roosevelt today by a conference committee.

Although the recommendations were not nearly as militant as the resolutions, they were highly critical of the policies of the Roosevelt administration. They constituted a soft-spoken demand for abandonment of policies long considered harmful in the opinion of several members of the committee.

Mr. Roosevelt gave the convention committee an attentive ear for an hour and a half. He then told the group that he believed a large majority of the recommendations were constructive and possible of fulfilment.

Deems Some Impracticable.

However, he added hastily, some of the recommendations sounded well, but were impracticable. He did not mention these specifically except for a minor recommendation which called upon him to name a permanent group of small business men to advise the administration.

The partial emasculation of the resolutions, adopted at the final session of the convention yesterday by roars of approval, was accomplished during the night by a committee of twelve, hand picked by the department of commerce. The twelve worked in secrecy with department of commerce officials, who strove desperately to pad the punches contained in the resolutions.

The group was given twenty-four hours to carry out its work when Mr. Roosevelt withdrew into the study of the White House as the resolutions were being adopted and canceled a program for yesterday afternoon with the committee of twelve.

Call for Tax Repeal.

Although they carried shock absorbers, the recommendations demanded repeal and modification of the undistributed profits, capital gains, and social security taxes. In the legislative field they questioned the merit of wage and hour legislation, recommended an investigation of the administration of the national labor relations board, and strengthening of anti-monopoly regulations.

They suggested return of relief to local communities, that employer and employé alike be held responsible in labor agreements, stimulation of federal housing, stimulation of business, and loans for little business.

They demanded budget balancing and curtailment of expenditures. They asked a broadening of the income tax base and simplification of tax forms. They hit at administration plans to make over America by stating that they recognized social reform is necessary, but urged that it not be carried on so rapidly as to disrupt industry.

Language Toned Down.

In the more pointed of these recommendations the committee of twelve and the department of commerce advisers dropped the more vigorous recommendations and substituted less determined resolutions. This was true of those which urged outright repeal of the Wagner labor act and abandonment of wage and hour legislation. More often the language of the resolutions was softened on adoption into the recommendations.

The most notable omission in the recommendations, in the opinion of the few conference members still in Washington, was the disregard of several resolutions which demanded that

REDS DOMINATE CIO AUTO UNION, LEADER BOASTS

Makes Defiant Reply to Martin's Ban.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Charges and countercharges over the communistic membership of C. I. O. flew back and forth today between Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, and a communistic chieftain.

Martin has been saying for several days that he is going to drive communism out of his union. Today, C. A. Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, and member of the communist party's central committee, told Martin he couldn't purge the union of Reds.

"We took the lead in organizing the U. A. W. A.," Hathaway said, "and Martin will find that his effort to oust us will not be upheld by the rank and file of workers."

Martin, whose organization claims 400,000 members and is the second largest affiliate of the C. I. O., has been endeavoring for some time to prove that he and the union are agreed that communism is a curse.

Martin's Stand Assailed.

In an interview yesterday Martin said that communist propaganda was designed to force the United States and Japan into war; that communists had incited unauthorized strikes in many industries and that he, for one, would fight to prevent any members of the party holding union offices.

This brought a hot retort from the communist editor. "Martin adopts a pro-Japanese policy, a scuttle and run policy that would open the way for further Japanese aggression," he said. "The communist policy, on the contrary, supports President Roosevelt's Chicago speech, in which he emphasized the necessity for concerted action by the peace loving nations against the Fascist powers.

"On the question of sitdown strikes, communists have been the opponents of all undisciplined, unprepared strike action, even when we had to fight against the irresponsibility of Homer Martin. Now he threatens to bar us from holding office at the next convention of the U. A. W."

Against Political Union.

It was pointed out by Martin, who is in Detroit today, that the British trade unions have decreed that no communists may hold union office. He said he agreed with the International Ladies Garment Workers union, another large C. I. O. affiliate, that no union should intrust its destinies to those using it for political purposes.

Further, he asserted, the communists in the U. A. W. had diverted union funds for the use of organizations under their control which were engaged in activities having nothing to do with the welfare of union members.

William Collins, regional representative of the American Federation of Labor, today claimed that the A. F. of L. excludes communists from membership in all its unions. Each delegate to the central trades and labor council is required to appear before the executive committee and state whether he is in any way associated with the communist party. Unless the answer is satisfactory the delegate is barred.

Attack Communist Purposes.

"It has been found impossible to work with communists," Collins said, "and it is idle to talk about the democratic rights of persons who seek to turn the trade union movement to their own ends."

Another commentator on Martin's pronunciamiento was Allan S. Haywood, regional director in New York for the C. I. O. He said his organization had never raised the issue of political allegiance. Then he added, cautiously, that barring of communists or any other group from C. I. O. organizations would be determined by the new central industrial council now being formed. Provisional rules, he said, do not authorize inquiry into a man's political belief.

Demands Removal of Red as N. Y. City Official's Aid

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Denouncing the promotion of Simon W. Gerson, an avowed communist, as assistant to Borough President Stanley Isaacs of Manhattan, Jeremiah F. Cross, state commander of the American Legion, visited Mayor Florello H. La Guardia at the city hall today and demanded Gerson's immediate removal. Cross said the mayor believed he could do nothing about it.

SULTANA, ONCE CO-ED AT U. OF I., FAILS TO CALM BANDITS; 2 DIE

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Imam Bato, a Moro outlaw chieftain, and one of his 200 followers, were killed today after refusing pleas of the sultana of Sulu to surrender to authorities. Bato was wanted for a recent killing. Sultana Tarhata Kiram had penetrated the Jolo badlands in an effort to bring peace between him and the authorities. The sultana, who was a student at the University of Illinois in the years 1919 to 1924, was accompanied by Moro officials, two of whom were wounded.

Moro Saribon, son of the slain chieftain, assumed command of his father's band and swore vengeance. Tarhata Kiram is one of two Moro women claiming to be sultana of Sulu. The other is Pangyan Hadji Piandao [also known as Princess Dayang Dayang].

BAR VALENTINE KITTEN SENT TO BOY AT HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A Persian kitten, sent to a Harvard sophomore as a Valentine gift from a girl friend in the middle west, was confiscated today by college authorities before the young man ever saw it.

Harold Thurston of Muskegon, Mich., was studying for a midyear examination when the kitten arrived by express at the Lowell house. The janitor notified the head of the Harvard yard police, who took possession of the animal.

For years Harvard has had a rule banning dogs from student rooms. Tonight the college had a new rule prohibiting cats.

Small Towner Cuts Career in The Big City

A quiet spoken man of 62 years, who plied his trade as carpenter in Hillsboro, Ill., until he was past 50 and then turned big town burglar, was in the custody of Winnetka police last night. He confessed robbing thirty-five homes on the north shore since June 1. The value of his loot—principally gold and silver — he estimated at $15,000.

Charles Kraushaar.

The prisoner, Charles Kraushaar of 1505 Granville avenue, Chicago, was seized by Policemen Glen Ford and Richard Douglas as he prepared to leave the home of Milton M. Mayer, 721 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka. Knowing the family was out of town, the police had been watching the house. They saw a light inside and caught Kraushaar with a bag of silver and jewelry.

Freed from Prison in 1936.

Confronted with his record—he was in the Joliet penitentiary from 1933 to 1936 for burglary—Kraushaar confessed. The confession was without pride or fear, but methodical, as has been his work.

Kraushaar's farewell to the carpentry trade appears to have coincided with his interesting discovery that a diamond will cut glass. Equipped with a ring with a large stone he began operations in Springfield, the nearest large town to Hillsboro. There he robbed fifty-nine homes, he said.

Moving to River Forest in 1932, Kraushaar renewed his plundering, but was caught and sentenced to prison. He was paroled in 1936 and, after having rehabilitated himself, that is, having acquired another diamond, he began operations along the north shore last June. His procedure never varied.

Only Silver and Gold Taken.

Kraushaar watched the society columns of the newspapers to learn when families were out of the city. Then he drove his big blue car to the neighborhood and approached the front door. Appearing to knock, he would remove a circle of glass from the portal and then reach through and turn the lock.

Inside he gathered up only silver and gold, shunning precious stones that might serve to identify him. Each week-end he sent his loot by parcel post to a smelting company in Detroit. Early the following week he received a postal money order in payment. It was very simple.

Kraushaar gave addresses of three homes he had robbed in Highland Park, two in Lake Bluff, four in Winnetka, and ten in Evanston. He will help verify addresses of the other sixteen before he is arraigned Monday before Police Magistrate Allen Klein.

Spares Richest Families.

The prisoner told Police Chief William M. Peterson that he robbed only the homes of the moderately well to do, fearing that richer families might leave servants on guard.

"I have been itching to get at Lake Forest," he said, "but caution forbade it."

MEN STUDENTS PUT GOLD DIGGING KENT U. CO-EDS ON BLACK LIST

Kent, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The co-eds at Kent university were a bit concerned tonight over the formation of the "Men's Protective association."

It proposed "protection" for members against alleged co-ed offenses, to-wit: Gold-digging, last-minute "date" breaking, standing up "dates," and flirting with another while on a "date," plus other items.

Men students get a list of questions monthly, and if their answers heap guilt upon co-ed or co-eds, a "black list" does the rest. The men must steer clear of the "guilty" or pay a penalty.

HONGKONG, Feb. 5 [Saturday].—(AP)—A Japanese plot to overthrow the Nationalist government of Kwangtung province and set up a pro-Japanese administration at Canton was reported to have been thwarted today with the arrest of 700 Japanese agents.

At the same time a group of one time Chinese pirate chieftains was reported to have formed a Japanese supported administration on several small islands off the coast of the South China province.

Advices received from Canton, where martial law was in force, said the arrests were made in a city-wide roundup and a raid on the headquarters of the Japanese agents, situated in a pawn shop in the center of the city.

Find Wireless and Arms.

The headquarters was said to have had a wireless station able to exchange messages with Japan. A quantity of hand grenades and other munitions were reported to have been stored in the building.

Japanese airplanes which droned over Canton all day yesterday, without dropping bombs, appeared to be observing the headquarters building. It was believed they were awaiting a pre-arranged signal from the agents indicating that the coup d'état had been successful.

The Japanese were reputed to plan to replace the Canton government with one headed by Li Sze-hao, member of the recently established Japanese supported Peking régime, who arrived in Canton last week.

Planned to Land Marines.

It was believed that while the agents were carrying out their intended coup, Japanese marines were to land on the coast, to divert attention.

Chinese reports from Canton said the alleged plot was discovered several days ago and that precautions were taken which resulted in today's arrests.

Four Japanese destroyers, meantime, yesterday attacked the Bocca Tigris forts defending the river approach to Canton. The Japanese planes which flew over the city throughout the day occasionally veered to the south to drop bombs on the Chinese forts.

It was reported that an attempt was made yesterday to assassinate Tseng Yang-fu, Canton's mayor. Several shots were fired at the mayor, but he was not injured.

Foreign shipping en route from Canton to Hongkong found the Chinese had reëstablished the boom preventing traffic between the two cities. A number of foreign ships,

PURGE REMOVES WAR MINISTER; 13 GENERALS GO

Cabinet Shaken Up; New Foreign Chief.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 4. — Reichsfuehrer Hitler proclaimed himself "chief of national defense" today in a drastic reorganization of the German army high command and a rebuilding of his entire government. The Austrian born head of the state, an obscure corporal in the world war, took under his own supervision the duties hitherto resting on Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg, who lost his job as war minister.

Joachim von Ribbentrop.

In addition the Fuehrer promoted his trusted aid, Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of aviation, to the rank of general field marshal. Goering now is the only active field marshal of the army and consequently its ranking officer, replacing Von Blomberg.

Von Fritsch Is Out.

Hitler replaced the commander-in-chief of the army, Col. Gen. Werner von Fritsch, with Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, former commander of three of Germany's twelve army corps with headquarters at Leipzig.

[In London the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph said Hitler was at one time recently so afraid of a military coup that he had Gen. von Fritsch put under close arrest. The correspondent said that although it probably would be denied later, Von Fritsch still was under arrest yesterday in his home.]

Seven army generals, most of them members of the aristocracy, and six generals of the air force were summarily dismissed in the army turnover. There was no reference to any of them being forced to face further disciplinary measures, but publication of their names will brand them disloyal to the Fuehrer, and the dismissal strengthened the assertion there has been a "latent plot" in certain army groups.

Keitel to Act for Hitler.

In the revamping of the cabinet Hitler named Joachim von Ribbentrop, ambassador to London, to be foreign minister, replacing Baron Konstantin von Neurath. He created a "privy council of foreign affairs" with Von Neurath as its chief. Its official job will be "to advise the Fuehrer in foreign affairs."

No new minister of war was appointed. Hitler explained, however, in a proclamation to the German people, that "the former high command in the war ministry has been replaced by the supreme command of the German army acting as my military staf under my orders." Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, former state secretary in the ministry of war, was named chief of the supreme command and will rank as a minister.

"The new supreme command is in charge of the war ministry, with its chief acting in my name," Hitler told the nation. "The supreme command has a duty in peacetime to carry out coördinated preparation for national defense in all departments under my orders."

The changes were interpreted as a move to enable Hitler personally to direct all phases of government according to his "principle of leadership" with what he hopes will prove a maximum of advice from army experts, specialists in foreign affairs, and economic advisers. Thus Hitler is perfecting a one man dictatorship along lines similar to those adopted by Premier Mussolini in Italy.

Caused by Von Blomberg's Romance.

The shakeup was Hitler's solution of a serious crisis precipitated by the marriage on Jan. 12 of Field Marshal von Blomberg to Erika Gruhn, a carpenter's daughter and Von Blomberg's former secretary. Army officers objected to the marriage because of her youth and low social position. This opposition proved the immediate cause of an outbreak of latent friction between the army officers and Nazi leaders.

In addition to the loss of face by

Von Blomberg in the eyes of his fellow officers through marriage, protests and complaints of other generals convinced Hitler and his party aids that "reactionary spirit still prevails among a number of prominent high officers."

For "Reasons of Health."

Both Von Blomberg and Von Fritsch were said to have resigned for "reasons of health." Hitler sent a letter to Von Blomberg, now on a honeymoon on the Italian Isle of Capri, in which he said:

"Since the reëstablishment of full German sovereignty in 1936, from a military as well as a territorial point of view, you have repeatedly asked to be relieved from your duty which made the most severe demands on your health. I hope you will find the recreation in your retirement to which you are entitled more than any one else. I express to you in this hour, in my name as well as in the name of the German nation, my deepest gratefulness."

In accepting Von Fritsch's resignation Hitler commended his past services.

Several persons well informed about conditions in Germany asserted that a number of Col. Gen. von Fritsch's friends may still have to face "discipinary measures" if they fail to bow to the wishes of the Fuehrer without "undue criticisms."

Hitler promoted twenty-nine colonels to the rank of general of the army and eight colonels to be generals of the air force.

Creates New Titles.

While appointing Goering "general field marshal," Hitler created new titles for the chiefs of the air force, calling them "chief of air defense, inspector general of the air force, and chief of the air ministry." The last post was entrusted to Maj. Gen. Karl Bodenschatz, whose wife has a number of relatives living in Louisiana.

Goering, 45 years old, is the youngest field marshal the German army ever had.

To emphasize the importance he attaches to his armed forces, Hitler gave them an important rôle in the "privy council of foreign affairs." Goering, Gen. Brauchitsch, and Admiral Erich H. A. Raeder, chief of staf of the navy, will belong to the council, together with the new foreign minister, Von Ribbentrop, and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister.

Recalls Ambassadors.

In another surprise move Hitler decided to recall Ambassador Franz von Papen from Austria, Ambassador Ulrich von Hassell from Rome, and Ambassador Dr. Herbert von Dircksen from Tokio. Their successors were not named.

The reichstag was summoned today to meet on Feb. 20, when Hitler will outline his program for the coming year and explain the purpose of the government reorganization.

U. S. TO RECALL TROOPS ON DUTY IN TIENTSIN, CHINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—The 15th United States infantry is to be withdrawn from Tientsin, China, early in March after almost seventeen years of service in the far east. This was announced tonight by the state department.

Two of the four companies of marines now stationed as an embassy guard in Peking will be transferred to Tientsin to take over the guard duties relinquished by the infantrymen. The Peking guard consists of 527 officers and men. These will shortly constitute the total number of American troops in North China. The 15th infantry numbers 808 officers and men.

including four British gunboats, were bottled up by the boom.

80 Americans Missing.

CANTON, China, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A train carrying 80 Americans, mostly children, out of the war menaced middle Yangtze valley today was two days overdue here, presumably as a result of Japanese air bombardments along the southern section of the Hankow-Canton railway.

Official Chinese reports said the train was unharmed but was held up "somewhere north of Canton."

The train left Hankow early this week and was due here Wednesday. Nearly all the children aboard came from the school maintained by American missionaries at Kikungshan, north of Hankow.

It was feared the protracted delay in the hinterland would mean hardship for the travelers. It also indicated increasing difficulties of travel on the Hankow-Canton line, now the only feasible route for leaving the middle Yangtze section, since the lower Yangtze is a Chinese-Japanese battle zone.

Chinese Flee on Lunghai Front.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5 [Saturday].—(AP)—Chinese forces are fighting a desperate rear guard action along the frozen banks of the Hwai river to cover the retreat of their main army northward from the Japanese conquered city of Pengpu.

The Chinese army is withdrawing to positions near Kuchen, 30 miles north of Pengpu, for a renewed defense of the 180 mile wide corridor along the Lunghai railroad that separates the Japanese areas of conquest in North and Central China.

The Japanese reported they had surrounded a Chinese division, estimated at 10,000 men, that had strayed from the main body. The Japanese said they were attacking the division at bayonet point.

On the northern border of the Lunghai front another Japanese column was attempting to drive down from North China to unite at the railway junction city of Suchow with the column engaged near Pengpu.

Area Thickly Populated.

The battle zone is thickly populated. The numerous small towns are supported by the wheat, bean, and sorghum farms of the fertile valleys fed by the Hwai, Tungtei, Kwei, and Sui rivers.

Yesterday was lichun, or spring's beginning—the traditional planting day—but the farmers have fled from their fields, presaging a serious crop shortage.

The Japanese strength has been estimated by foreign military observers at 120,000 men, equally distributed along the northern and southern fringes of the corridor. The Chinese claim to have 400,000 men defending the area.

The area to the south of Pengpu has not been completely cleaned up by the Japanese. Two parallel columns—one on the railroad, the other an overland column 30 miles to the west—seemingly have merely cut a broad swath through the region. A strong Chinese force, for example, is sitting on their left flank at Kaocheng.

ADMIRAL SILENT ON U. S.-ENGLISH NAVAL PARLEYS

Leahy Refuses Public Statement.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The refusal of Admiral William D. Leahy to answer a legislator's question in public whetted congressional interest today in reported naval conversations between Great Britain and the United States.

At a hearing on a proposed $300,000,000 naval expansion program, Representative Ralph E. Church [R., Ill.], asked the navy's chief of operations whether he had any reports from Capt. Royal E. Ingersoll, chief of the navy's war plans division, concerning conversations the latter had with British officials recently.

Vital Information Involved.

"I will make no statement in public in reply to that question," Leahy answered, "because it involves vital information regarding the defense of our country."

He offered to make a frank statement in executive session.

It was recalled that Senator William Borah [R., Idaho], recently deplored what he called a widespread belief that Great Britain and the United States were in an alliance.

Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], recognized administration spokesman on foreign affairs, denied that there was a naval alliance.

Defense Policy Sought.

In asking Leahy the question today, Representative Church said he did not want the information made public, but thought congress should have it because the people want congress to formulate a defense policy.

In response to questions from Representative Warren G. Magnuson [D., Wash.], Leahy conceded the need for establishment of naval base facilities in Alaska. He denied knowledge that the Japanese fishing fleet operating in Alaskan waters is an auxiliary of the Japanese navy and said he never had heard that Nippon used that fleet to train naval cadets.

Possible Agreement Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Unless definite assurance is given by the Tokio government that Japan is not building battle ships of more than 35,000 tons (the limit fixed by the London treaty of 1936), the United States and Great Britain both will lay down bigger ships at once.

This, according to diplomatic circles in London tonight, is a possible Anglo-American naval agreement on which Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations of the United States navy, declined to explain in a public statement in Washington.

Sartorial Elegance

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., American minister to Poland, and his wife arrived home today so Biddle can make a report to state department on European conditions. Biddle, known as one of the country's best dressed men, wore a Homberg hat, sharkskin suit with carnation and handkerchief peeping from pocket, a stiff bosom shirt, hard collar, and tie with pearl pin.

WHITE SLAVERY RING REVEALED IN HOLLYWOOD

Trafic in Movie Struck Girls Charged.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A white slave ring that for months has been seeking pretty girls who have come here hoping to get into the movies was under investigation by the sheriff's office tonight following charges made by Larry Crosby, brother and business manager of Bing Crosby, screen and radio star.

Crosby, who undertook a private investigation of the ring because it sometimes operated under the name of the Larry Crosby agency, was able to lay startling facts before Capt. Robert P. Cook of the sheriff's office. The Crosby agency is one of the substantial booking establishments of the film colony.

Agents Trail Girls.

Agents of the ring watched the studios and spotted the girls who applied for parts in the films, Crosby declared. The girls were trailed to their lodging houses and soon after were called on by members of the ring who represented themselves as radio or motion picture agents, he said.

They were asked to call at a downtown office to be interviewed by executives of the industry. At the office the girls found half a dozen prosperous appearing men who said they were casting, but that certain formalities were necessary before decisions on jobs could be made.

Crosby said the girls then were disrobed by members of the pseudo agency and were paraded before the executives—who actually were buyers for the white slave ring.

Mothers Cause Investigation.

Protests by mothers in several parts of the country prompted Crosby to begin his investigation, he told Capt. Cook. Private efforts to trace the ring have failed, he said.

Capt. Cook said an investigation will be launched and that assistance of federal agents may be asked.

It is possible, he said, that the Hollywood ring may be a part of one uncovered in San Francisco last month, when Jeanne Walters of Great Falls, Mont., revealed that she had been forced to work in disorderly houses in three western states.

Two persons are under arrest as a result of her charges.

MOVE TO PIGEON-HOLE ANTI-LYNCHING BILL IS BLOCKED IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The senate blocked today, 52 to 34, the first attempt of the session to pigeon-hole the anti-lynching bill.

The vote came on a motion by Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.], chairman of the appropriations committee, who asked the senate to take up the $1,400,000,000 independent offices appropriations bill instead of the anti-lynching bill.

The roll call found thirty Democrats, three Republicans, and one independent voting to shelve the bill, and forty-one Democrats, nine Republicans, one Farmer Laborite, and one Progressive voting to keep it before the senate.

Southern leaders said they were confident the measure would be tossed aside next week and would not be resurrected this session.

Moran, an investigator and process server, and W. J. Kenney and George H. Dye, salesmen.

SUIT TO RECOVER BOND FUND WON BY PARK DISTRICT

Court Holds $71,000 Was Paid Illegally.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday awarded the Chicago park district a judgment for $71,000, which the court held had been illegally converted by the old northwest park district in 1931 to lobby a $2,000,000 bond issue through the state legislature. In 1934 the northwest district was taken over by the consolidated park district.

The judgment was affirmed against R. E. Herczel & Co., the investment house which floated the issue; three former park district officials, Joseph F. Gubbins, president; Eden T. Brekke, secretary, and Francis X. Milano, treasurer, and the Glen Falls Indemnity company, which bonded Brekke and Milano for a total of $30,000.

No Proof of Conspiracy.

Although finding no conclusive proof of a conspiracy among the defendants, the court held there was strong evidence of some sort of a joint scheme. If it was pure carelessness on the part of public officials, Judge McKinlay said, they must certainly bear their liability.

A few months after the electorate rejected the measure by a two to one vote, the court commented, the commissioners passed the bond issue, arranging for the Herczel company to handle it. Only $600,000 of the entire issue was taken up by the banking house.

To validate the bond issue, witnesses testified, the park officials gave the company $50,000 and $21,000 in two payments. All necessary expenses for this purpose, the court said, should have been borne by the body issuing the bonds, under the law, and not by the purchasers. The payment, he added, was for lobbying purposes.

Tells of Payments.

Lowell B. Mason, former state senator, admitted in testimony that he arranged with Paul Van Winkle, former vice president of the firm, for a $71,000 fee to have the legislature approve the issue. Van Winkle testified he later completed the deal with park officials who supplied the money through his company.

During the trial Brekke and Milano testified they could not remember circumstances of the transactions, nor the issuance of the two checks which came up for approval by the park commissioners.

BRITAIN SEIZES 2 JAPANESE IN SINGAPORE RAID

SINGAPORE, Feb. 4.—(AP)—British special police today detained two Japanese after a raid on a house in the Japanese section of this port, now the center of large scale war games to test the strength of Britain's great new naval base here. Documents were seized in the raid, which officials said had no connection with the maneuvers.

Officials said three French cruisers would join three United States cruisers as visiting warships here Feb. 14, when the British navy formally opens the naval base, designed to guard this crossroads of Britain's sea routes to Australia and the orient.

The French ships are the Gloire, Montcalm, and Georges Leygues, recently dispatched to Indo-China waters owing to tension arising from Japan's invasion of China. They are now on a cruise to the Netherlands East Indies. The American cruisers Memphis, Trenton, and Milwaukee, are en route from Sydney, Australia.

PRECIOUS MARY GERAGHTY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Precious Mary Geraghty, who lost a Chicago court battle to have herself declared the legal daughter of John H. Geraghty and the heir to his $50,000 estate, today was adopted by her stepmother, Mrs. Susan Geraghty.

Mrs. Geraghty sought the adoption, she said in the Probate court petition, to make Precious Mary the heir to real estate here which was deeded jointly to them by Geraghty, her former husband.

Mrs. Marie Geraghty of Chicago was the defendant in Precious Mary's suit last December. The complaint alleged that Precious Mary is the daughter of John Geraghty and Mrs. Irene Cramer Geraghty, his second wife, who died Sept. 6, 1933. Geraghty died March 6, 1936. At the hearing today Mrs. Susan Geraghty testified she reared Precious Mary, who is 19 years old, from infancy.

Rescued Snowbound Couple to Return to Homestead

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Matt Hamari were planning today to return to their homestead 30 miles north of Marquette where they were snowbound ten days until they were brought here yesterday by state troopers. Another couple and three lumberjacks, who also were helped out of the snowbound district, decided they wouldn't go back. The lumberjacks were among seven men marooned at Cary lumber camp near the homesteads. Three state troopers and two conservation men hauled several toboggan loads of supplies over three miles of snowdrifts to the lumberjacks and homesteaders.

Find Gambling Devices Eat Up Lunch Money Near 126 Schools

Inquiry by police, school principals, Parent-Teacher groups, and board of education authorities has confirmed that petty gambling on coin machines and other devices prevails near 126 of the 349 elementary schools in Chicago.

That was the announcement made yesterday by Richard S. Folsom, attorney for the board, after he received the reports on the survey that was made last week at the direction of Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools.

There are five types of devices, Mr. Folsom said, each calculated to lure from the children money that in many instances is given them for food. The gambling machines are in school supply shops, drug stores, delicatessens, and groceries.

Gum Machine Most Common.

The gum vending machine which discharges a ball for each penny inserted is the most common one. If the ball is spotted or has any one of several special colors the child receives 5 or 10 cents in trade. Another machine is filled with pieces of candy. A piece that has a colored center can be exchanged for some other confection usually selling for 5 cents.

A third type of vending machine contains peanuts to which premium bearing trinkets have been added. The storekeeper redeems the trinkets in trade. Punch boards also are available in many stores along with devices in which coins are shot at targets.

The reports indicated that about 108,949 of the city's 325,239 elementary and kindergarten pupils are being given daily opportunities to wager their pennies. The vending machines that have been adapted for gambling receive the heaviest play.

Will Ask City's Aid.

Mr. Folsom pointed out that the ordinance which prohibits slot machines also bars any other mechanical wagering contrivances. He said he will ask Corporation Counsel Barnett Hodes if this law can be interpreted to include these vending machines.

"If it does, the police will be asked to act immediately," he said. "The devices are owned by the operators who divide the profits with the storekeepers. The manufacturers cannot regulate the use to which the machines are put. Several reliable groups of operators have notified us that they do not countenance the practice. However, there are independent operators over whom there is no control. They are causing this trouble."

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said he will inquire into the manner of filling the machines to determine if any ordinances governing the handling of foodstuffs are being violated.

CONVICT, OUT ON BOND, IS SHOT AS HE FLEES POLICE

Seized in Hotel Room of His Sweetheart.

After a sixty mile an hour chase yesterday police shot and critically wounded a persistent criminal who was at liberty pending appeal from a sentence of one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

The man shot is George Kaby, 26 years old, whose police record goes back to 1927. He was convicted last Sept. 27 of stealing an automobile, but was freed soon afterward in $5,000 bond. Yesterday, while Judge Rudolph Desort was studying the bill of exceptions in connection with the case filed by Kaby's lawyers in Criminal court, Kaby was taking a new automobile from a service station at 2510 Linden place.

Runs Through Stop Sign.

A little while later the auto sped past a stop sign on Altgeld street at Sheffield avenue. Motorcycle Policeman John McNulty and Policeman James Doherty started in pursuit. They raced east in Altgeld to Halsted street and then south.

Just before reaching Fullerton avenue Kaby swung the car into an alley and crashed into a board fence. He clambered over the fence as the policemen fired, but disappeared.

As they learned later, he got over to Fullerton parkway and hailed a cab. It took him to the Belair hotel, 420 Diversey parkway. He appeared to be ill and a park policeman, August Kenzora, helped him up to the room of his sweetheart, Miss Faye Ralton. There he collapsed. The policeman than saw he had been shot in the right side.

Policemen Get a Surprise.

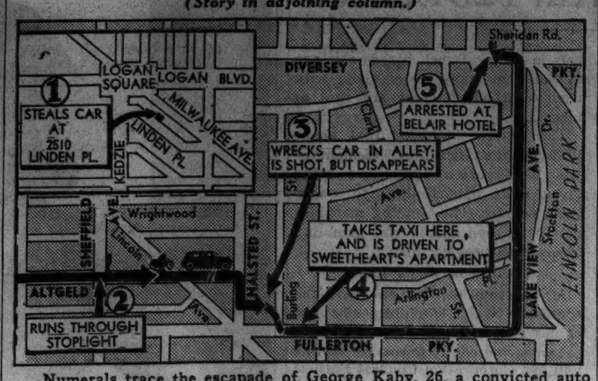
McNulty and Doherty heard about the wounded man and hurried over to see him. To their surprise it was Kaby, who they had believed was in the penitentiary. Search of the Ralton woman's room revealed jewelry which state's attorney's police valued at several hundred dollars.

In 1927 Kaby was in trouble with juvenile authorities for alleged auto theft, and in 1930 was sentenced twice to the Bridewell for larceny. The next year he was placed on probation for vagrancy and burglary. In 1935 he served a year in New York for interstate thefts. Testimony in his trial last fall showed that a policeman shot at him on April 11, 1937, but the bullet missed him.

Yesterday he was not so fortunate. He was shot a short distance from the spot where John Dillinger was slain by federal agents in July, 1934.

Route of Auto Thief Shot in Chase

(Story in adjoining column.)



Numerals trace the escapade of George Kaby, 26, a convicted auto thief, from the time he stole another car yesterday until, after he was shot by police, he was seized in his sweetheart's room in hotel.

HOWARD TESTS NEW MOTORS ON CHICAGO FLIGHT

Benny Howard, speed flyer and research engineer for United Air Lines, landed at the Chicago airport at 10:30 o'clock last night in a specially equipped transport plane after a test flight from Los Angeles, Cal.

The trip was made to observe the behavior of several engineering improvements, notably two supercharged motors designed for flying at an altitude of between 16,000 and 20,000 feet. During the trip the plane rose to 17,000 feet and cruised at times at 235 miles an hour.

Howard made one stop at Denver, Colo. Five men accompanied him.

BAR GROUP URGES COUNTY TO CLEAR UP BACK TAXES

A special committee of the Chicago Bar association, in a report issued yesterday, recommended that as much as possible of the $461,000,000 of tax delinquencies in Cook county be collected immediately and that the uncollectible portion be cleared from the books.

The present system of personalty assessment was described as unfair, unsound, and unworkable and its abandonment was recommended. According to the report, one-third of the 1,200,000 parcels of real estate in the county are delinquent and 200,000 remain forfeited to be sold eventually for taxes.

THRILL IN FISHING CATCH FATAL TO SON OF VISCOUNT

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The thrill of catching his first sailfish—a fighter more than seven feet long—proved fatal to Michael Simon Scott, 37 years old, son of a British peer, in the gulf stream off Palm Beach today.

Scott struggled with his catch for more than half an hour and collapsed as it was dragged over the side of the cruiser. He was dead when the boat docked at Palm Beach inlet pier. He was a son of Viscount Encombe and a brother of John Scott, earl of Eldon. He married Ruth Brady of Hamilton Farms, N. J., in 1928. The widow and three children survive.

Covered with Flaming Oil; Saved by His Bedfast Wife

Rochester, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A gasoline lamp exploded when Ernest Bockover, a farmer, was lighting it this morning, showering him with blazing fluid. Although she has been bedfast with illness for months, Mrs. Bockover arose and threw a rug over her husband, smothering the flames. Both were seriously burned. The home was destroyed by the fire.

House Passes $27,588,000 First Deficiency Measure

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate today the $27,588,000 first deficiency appropriation bill to finance a variety of government activities for the remainder of the current fiscal year. Final passage came after the house eliminated without a single dissent a $50,000 item for salaries and other expenses of the United States constitution sesquicentennial commission, of which Representative Bloom [D., N. Y.] is director general.

Igor Sikorsky, Aircraft Designer, Visits Air Show

Igor Sikorsky, designer of the Sikorsky amphibian plane, visited the International Air Show yesterday. Sikorsky, who is engineering manager of the airplanes division of the United Aircraft Manufacturing corporation, would not discuss details of several transoceanic planes he is designing. He said, however, that when ocean routes are regularly established he thought it would be practical for the ships to come directly to Chicago if an adequate seaplane base were made available.

COURT REVIVES A DEAD ISSUE ABOUT MR. GRIESE

Believing that William F. Griese is alive, Judge Roman E. Posanski yesterday set aside a Circuit court jury verdict and granted the Metropolitan Life Insurance company a new trial in the suit brought by Griese's wife, Clara, 1331 Park avenue, Chicago Heights.

Because Griese has been absent from home for more than seven years, the legal limit for presumption of death, Mrs. Griese sought to collect his life insurance of $5,025. After the jury held for her, attorneys for the company presented new evidence.

On the basis of handwriting specimens and a snapshot of Griese taken recently in California, Judge Posanski decided he was indeed alive. Mrs. Griese said she believed so, too, and will dismiss the suit.

Radio Systems Will Link Police of Three Suburbs

Two Niles Center police squad cars began operating yesterday with two way radio sets. Lincolnwod and Morton Grove, both of which have been linked with Niles Center by telephone systems for several months, will join the radio system soon.

100,000 FEWER VOTERS REGISTER IN KANSAS CITY

New Law Checks Fraud; Woman Judge Slugged.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A woman judge was reported slugged here tonight as Kansas City's two day registration period under the new permanent law ended with an estimated 170,000 certified voters—100,000 below the bloated figures of the 1936 general election. Fifty persons have been convicted of stuffing ballot boxes at the 1936 election.

Mrs. Ethelyn Harmon, a Republican judge in the 12th precinct of the 12th ward, reported to the election commissioner's office she was struck by a Democratic worker when she refused to permit a man to register because the name he gave failed to tally with the one on his application. Mrs. Harmon said the man admitted he had not signed the application.

The heavily Democratic north side precincts fell far below the figures turned in in 1936.

Convicted Men at Polls.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Democratic political workers who have been convicted of vote fraud charges in the 1936 general election are serving as representatives of their party during voters' registration in the same precincts in which they figured in the 1936 balloting. The arrangement has the sanction of Democratic party officials.

The board of election today began an investigation of the situation, announcing that the convicted party workers have no authority to serve. In a two hour survey in the 12th ward it was found that five convicted precinct captains and workers were serving as Democratic challengers.

Bear Party Credentials.

They bore credentials signed by party officials. A Democratic worker who is under indictment was serving in a similar capacity and one convicted precinct leader was on duty outside a registration place. The workers who are under conviction are free on bonds pending appeals.

All vote registrations were wiped out by a permanent registration law passed by the Missouri legislature a year ago. Voters now are registering anew for a city election March 29.

The third federal grand jury investigating the election fraud scandal today called for the government impounded ballots of five more precincts.

REPUTED HEIR TO N. Y. LOTTERY RACKET STILL IN PHILADELPHIA JAIL

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, reputed heir to a New York lottery racket, was sent back to his jail cell after a brief court appearance today—the reduction of his $300,000 bail still an unsettled question.

Judge James M. Barnett continued a hearing on a writ to reduce Davis' bail until Monday.

Meanwhile, New York state pressed efforts to extradite the suave former "mouthpiece" for the late Dutch Schultz. He is wanted for trial under a Harlem lottery indictment hanging since last summer.

DOOMED SLAYER MAKES BREAK FOR LIBERTY IN COURT

Sentenced yesterday to die in the electric chair April 15, J. C. Scott, 22 years old, a tall and powerfully built Negro, wrenched himself free from bailiffs in a break for liberty in the courtroom of Judge George Fred Rush.

Two policemen walked toward Scott with their guns in readiness while seven deputy sheriffs and bailiffs wrestled with him. They put three pair of handcuffs and a leg iron on him and carried him out. Scott was convicted by a jury of murdering Mrs. Mary Ely, a gypsy, for $363.

COURTNEY BACKS JARECKI IN FIGHT WITH NASH GROUP

Joins Horner Forces to Re-elect Judge.

BY PERCY WOOD.

County Judge Jarecki's campaign for renomination, in the face of opposition from the Nash-Kelly Democratic organization, went forward last night with the impetus resulting from his endorsement by State's Attorney Courtney. On Thursday Gov. Horner said he would support the judge 100 per cent. This, with the Courtney backing, insures a hot primary fight against Judge John Prystalski of the Circuit court, the organization candidate for Judge Jarecki's seat, observers said.

Mr. Courtney's statement, which constituted his first definite break with the organization—although he has long been known as antagonistic—treated the dumping of Judge Jarecki as an attempted raid on the ballot box.

Courtney Assails "Bosses."

"It clearly demonstrates," the state's attorney added, "that the present party bosses will not tolerate straightforward, honest service by officials in key positions. Further, it is an indication to all judges on the bench what they may expect should they assert too much independence."

After thanking Mr. Courtney for his help, Judge Jarecki took a shot at County Chairman P. A. Nash by comparing the Chicago situation with that in Kansas City. On Thursday, Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves declared that his city suffers from a reign of terrorism caused by political oppression.

Judge Reeves inveighed against election crooks after presiding at vote fraud trials in which seven persons were sentenced. Kansas City is ruled by the machine led by Thomas J. Pendergast, Democratic leader.

Cites Judge Reeves Criticism.

"The statement of Judge Reeves in Kansas City about intimidations prevailing there," Judge Jarecki commented, "shows what happens in all cities where political organizations are managed from the top by political bosses in penthouses."

This was a dig at Nash, for the meeting of the county central committee at which the judge was denied support was held, under Nash's chairmanship, in the penthouse on the Morrison hotel.

The long awaited Horner-Courtney alliance was finally cemented by the state's attorney's pronouncement in behalf of Judge Jarecki. During the 1936 primary slating, Mr. Courtney felt that an effort was being made to keep him off the ticket. He referred to it in hot tones at the meeting of the county committee at which his endorsement for a second term was given.

First Outward Break.

Courtney did not announce for Gov. Horner in the latter's successful fight for renomination against organization opposition, but he joined Horner in the post-primary jubilation at French Lick. Since then he has frequently been in conference with Mr. Horner, yet he had never made an out and out anti-organization move until yesterday.

"After sixteen years of fine public service in a most difficult position as County judge and head of the election machinery, Judge Jarecki finds himself discarded and refused endorsement by the Democratic machine," the state's attorney said.

Charges Ballot Box Grab.

"The discarding of Judge Jarecki," Courtney's statement continued, "by the Democratic organization is a bold, brazen attempt to grab the ballot box and the election machinery. It clearly demonstrates that the present party bosses will not tolerate straightforward, honest service by officials in key positions. It is further an indication to all judges on the bench what they may expect should they assert too much independence."

"I admire Judge Jarecki's fighting spirit, and will do everything in my power to assist him in his fight for reëlection. I am confident the good citizens of this county will not let him down."

Judge Jarecki replied to Mr. Courtney as follows:

"I thank you for your support. I am entering this fight to show the world that Chicago and Cook county are not run by an invisible government of a dictatorial boss, but by the people of Chicago and Cook county. I do not intend to stop this fight until we have men in public office whose slogan will be efficiency and economy and loyalty to the people whom they serve and not political organizations."

Silence greeted these statements at the Nash organization headquarters in the Morrison hotel.

Voters May Shift This Year.

Another matter that tended to increase bitterness in Democratic ranks was the statement that the election board again will permit the voters to shift party affiliations in accordance with the ruling of 1934 by Attorney General Kerner. Previously it had been held that under the law a voter could change his affiliation only after two calendar years.

This year's primary is two days short of two calendar years since the primary of 1936. It was recalled, however, that at a meeting last September of the Association of Election boards, it was agreed that the Kerner ruling would be observed this year. This would permit Republicans to give their support to Judge Jarecki.

2 Charged with Slaying 4 Found Dead in Cabin Fire

Ashland City, Tenn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Albert Davenport and Lee Nesbitt were held today on first degree murder charges growing out of the death of four youths in a cabin fire last Sunday night. The charred bodies of F. M. Simpkins, 22 years old; Bob Williams, 16 years old; Carney Brizentine, 25 years old, and Bertrand Spicer, 18 years old, were found early Monday, several hours after the little cabin had burned to the ground. There was evidence that they had been killed with an ax before the cabin was burned.

HORNER HURLS BITING REPLY TO DIETERICH BLAST

G. O. P. Maps Plans for State Parley Monday.

As Republicans prepared yesterday to examine the qualifications of candidates for state offices in Urbana Monday—with the woods full of potential candidates—the downstate Democratic factional ruckus burst forth in a bitter interchange between Gov. Henry Horner and Senator William H. Dieterich of Beardstown.

The governor hopes to supplant Dieterich with Congressman Scott W. Lucas of Havana, whom he endorsed last Tuesday. Yesterday the senator, while in Springfield building his political fences, took his initial cognizance of the Horner opposition.

Takes Jap at Horner.

"Gov. Horner," he said, "has organized a political holding company, manifestly for the purpose of commercializing politics, and has had himself elected as executive head of that company.

"Of course, possessing the old fashioned idea that public offices belong to the sovereign people, and not to any boss, I would not be useful in any organization of that kind."

The moment that blast reached the statehouse, Gov. Horner fired one right back in heavily sarcastic vein.

"The distinguished senator, of course, is an expert on holding companies," he said. "We recall that he was the chief antagonist of President Roosevelt's efforts to regulate holding companies a few years ago.

"His gratuitous statement is unworthy of an answer. If he has any question as to how the people of this state view his services all he need do is to file his petition for renomination."

Believe Igoe Will Run.

A third candidate in the race is believed certain in the person of United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe, who was importuned on Thursday to enter the contest. The request was made by a group of downstaters headed by Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, former house Democratic floor leader at Springfield. Mr. Igoe is expected to announce his candidacy soon. He is said to be in a better position than Dieterich to receive the support of the Nash-Kelly organization.

In Urbana Monday the executive committee of the recently formed Republican County Chairmen's association will receive and question all candidates for state office who seek endorsement by the association. The committee is headed by the Cook county chairman, Edward F. Moore.

Moore will go to Urbana tomorrow prepared to remain neutral before the prospective candidates and their sponsors. It could not be learned who intended to appear before the committee but almost a dozen names for the senatorship were mentioned yesterday.

Boom Stone Downstate.

Among them was Attorney Hal Stone of Bloomington, a brother of Justice Clyde E. Stone of the Illinois Supreme court, who is said to be enjoying a boom in midstate.

Another potential candidate is Rodney H. Brandon of Batavia, a Republican nominee for congressman at large in 1936. Mr. Brandon was director of public welfare in Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's cabinet and is well known in fraternal organizations.

The names of Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, former national commander of the American Legion, and former State Senator William J. Sneed of Herrin are also heard. Sneed is an official of the United Mine Workers and thus a member of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, but reports were that he might also have some support from the state federation of labor.

Former Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora and State Senator T. Mac Downing of McComb are said to be considering entering the senatorial primary.

Church to File for House.

Petitions were circulated for Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston for both the senate and the house but word from Washington last night was that Mr. Church had decided to file for his present seat. State Representative Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville has been mentioned often as a possibility for the senate, but has remained silent as to his intentions. The name of Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and vice presidential nominee in 1936, is another put forward.

George Hatzenbuhler of Bloomington, nominee for lieutenant governor in 1936, may decide to become a candidate for the nomination for state treasurer, his friends said.

MORATORIUM URGED ON DEBTS OWED BY MICHIGAN JOBLESS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A United Automobile Workers' mass-meeting that filled Cadillac Square, in the heart of Detroit's business district, roared approval today of a proposal for a moratorium in Michigan on debts owed by unemployed persons.

The crowd, estimated by Police Inspector John A. Hoffman at between 50,000 and 75,000 and by Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W., at 250,000, adopted by acclamation half a dozen resolutions demanding more generous treatment of the unemployed.

Martin, one of seven speakers demanded immediate cash relief of $1,000,000 a week for unemployed of Detroit and Michigan and a WPA allotment of $150,000,000 for Michigan.

Extra Session Expected.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—It appeared probable today that Gov. Frank Murphy will prepare a call for a special legislative session on relief when he returns to his office Monday.

The governor telephoned his staf this afternoon from University hospital, Ann Arbor, where he is being treated for neuritis, and said he was considering a special session in view of the acute need for additional relief funds.

WOMAN PLUNGES FROM 20TH FLOOR TO DEATH IN LOOP

A woman tentatively identified as Mrs. May Steger, 33 years old, 4748 Race street, plunged to her death yesterday from the 20th floor of the building at 134 North La Salle street.

Her body struck a ledge at the first floor, then fell upon an automobile. Trafic was tied up for more than 30 minutes by crowds.

The Steger name appeared on a tag in her clothing. Records indicated a Mrs. May Steger was released from the Chicago State hospital at Dunning Feb. 2, 1936. Mathias Steger, a bartender living at the Race street address, said the description answered that of his wife, who left home yesterday morning.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—United States Senator F. Ryan Duffy is expected to open his campaign for reëlection at a dinner in Fond du Lac tomorrow night. United States Senator Alben W. That will be open house for Democrats who are unable to attend the banquet at Fond du Lac that evening. QUEBEC WILL REVISE WAGE BOARD'S ORDER TO INCREASE SALARIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 4.—Ordinance No. 4 of the fair wage board of Quebec, which sets maximum hours and minimum wages for all workers in the province except domestic servants and farm hands, will not go into effect on Feb. 15 as originally ordered. This was announced today.

The ordinance, which will be revised before going into operation, provided for wage increases to about 108,000 employés. The increases carried from 5 to 20 per cent, according to categories. It was estimated that the blanket wage order would increase pay rolls by about $26,000,000 a year.

Upon publication of the ordinance the governmen was flooded with complaints and requests that its application be delayed.

SMALL BUSINESS FILES DEMANDS WITH PRESIDENT

Wants Sweeping Changes in Policies.

President Roosevelt cease "unwarranted and malicious attacks on all business, big and little," and that "the government cease interference and competition with business."

Changes Are Made.

In their place one recommendation urged "the government continue to coöperate with business." A close scrutiny of the 100 resolutions adopted by the convention revealed that this recommendation was either the work of the committee or department of commerce experts. It was not among the hundred. The recommendation stood in sharp contrast to another which urged the "immediate institution of a campaign to stimulate business."

Another recommendation, which indorses the holding company policy Mr. Roosevelt is pursuing under his latest definition, apparently was inserted by the committee or an adviser. The recommendation states:

"We oppose holding companies when used for purposes of creating monopoly or tax evasion, but urge differentiation in the case of holding companies which are actually operating companies."

Holding companies do not appear in the resolutions.

New Ones Are Added.

The committee added to the report a reaffirmation of faith "in our government and our President" and the statement that small business men "are confidently looking to you for continued leadership." These were not given among the recommendations, however, nor were such statements in the convention adopted resolutions.

The committee of twelve, led by Secretary of Commerce Roper and Assistant Secretary Draper, went into the President's office after his press conference.

To the press Mr. Roosevelt showed a disposition to avoid discussion of the administration launched convention of little business which boomeranged.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not heard from delegates who held the convention was a flop. He endeavored to disclaim credit for the idea of the conference. He said that he did not think it was fair to ridicule the efforts of the convention.

At the meeting with the committee of twelve the recommendations were read by Fred Roth, Cleveland shoe manufacturer, who was chairman of the convention. Discussion followed. The recommendations were not then in the hands of newspaper men.

Committee's Proposals.

The specific recommendations of the committee were as follows:

"1. In the matter of finances, we make these recommendations:

"[a] Enable the American banking system to make insured loans for all necessary purposes.

"[b] Set up a government agency to render this service wherever financial institutions are unable or unwilling to function.

"We present, therefore, a series of suggestions for your consideration:

"[c] Modify the capital gains tax to give the taxpayer credit for loss years against years of gain.

"[d] Repeal the undivided profits tax.

"[e] Modify the securities and exchange commission's regulations to increase the amount of exemption to $300,000, but require reasonable information for protection of investors. [Securities issues under $100,000 now are exempt from registration with the commission.]

"2. We urge the encouragement of the investment of private capital in new enterprises.

"3. We ask that employer and employé alike be held responsible for the faithful observance of mutual labor agreements.

"4. We urge that governmental expenditures be curtailed and the budget balanced as soon as possible.

"5. We urge the immediate institution of a campaign to stimulate business.

"6. We recognize that social reform is necessary as a part of progress, but urge that it not be so rapid as to disrupt industry.

"7. We urge that relief administration and responsibility be returned to local communities as rapidly as possible.

"8. We urge that the government continue to coöperate with business.

"9. We urge that the government abstain from granting advantages or special favors to nonprofit organizations either directly or indirectly.

Oppose U. S. Competition.

"10. We urge that it be considered unfair trade practice for firms, corporations, or governmental units to sell to employés in competition with business.

"11. We approve the principle of the Robinson-Patman act [reputedly aimed at chain stores; prohibits price discriminations in favor of large scale buyers] and Miller-Tydings act [intended to maintain resale prices on trademarked articles].

"12. We approve the principle of the state fair trade practice acts and urge approval of legislation designed to curb destructive competition of chain stores.

"13. We urge the strengthening and enforcement of all laws seeking to curb monopolies.

"14. In the matter of social security and unemployment taxes:

"[a] We favor the simplification of detailed forms in connection with the social security tax.

"[b] We recommend the reduction of unemployment taxes in stabilized industries where now exists justifiable employment experience.

Oppose Wage and Hours Bill.

"15. We question the merit of a standard wage and hour bill, because of geographical differentials.

"16. We recommend that an immediate investigation of the administration of the Wagner labor relations board be made.

"17. We urge the approval of the Wagner-Steagall housing act and the encouragement and extension of home ownership by making loans for owner residence at a rate as low as 3½ per cent.

"18. We urge that the government confine its direct home building activities to slum clearance projects by means of assistance to local housing authorities by the United States Housing authority.

"19. We strongly urge that Works Progress administration labor or money shall not be used for building purposes.

"20. We indorse the principle of instalment selling but urge adherence to sound business practices in such sales.

Proposals on Taxation.

"21. In the matter of taxation:

"[a] We urge the simplification of the taxation forms so that they shall be more easily understood and less expensive in preparation.

"[b] We recommend broadening the income tax base.

"[c] We oppose holding companies when used for purposes of creating monopoly or tax evasion but urge differentiation in the case of holding companies which are actually operating companies.

"[d] We oppose a surtax on 'small business' closely held corporations.

"22. We urge that the government study means whereby American manufacturers and exporters can obtain financial aid making it possible for extension of credit to foreign purchasers of American goods comparable to credits extended by European manufacturers.

"23. We realize the value of research now conducted by government agencies for the general good of smaller businesses, and believe further that there is need for an organization to coördinate and disseminate the facts of proposed and existing legislation and other matters of general interest to smaller business. We, therefore, recommend the establishment of a permanent advisory council for small business interests with equal regional representation."

The committee on recommendations included Fred Roth, chairman; James G. Daly, Harold P. North, Leslie E. Sanders, James B. Kleckner, Wallace D. Kimball, Robert P. Hastey, W. C. Tinsley, W. K. Gunter, O. L. Roach, Bernard F. McLain, and D. E. McAvoy.

Mother Loses Custody

After nearly a year with her mother, Marian Smith, 16 years old, elected yesterday to live with her sister, Bernice, 17 years old, and their father, Fred Smith, 4725 South Halsted street. Judge John J. Lupe approved a revised order giving Smith custody of both children. Last May Marian chose to live with her mother, Mrs. Catherine Sims, 1532 Congress street, who remarried after her divorce from Smith in 1934.

Hunt 3 Sluggers After Attack at Filling Station

Police yesterday were investigating alleged union activities in a gasoline price cutting war after an attack Thursday night upon Walter Nako, 30 years old, who with his brother Joseph operates a filling station at 2332 North Pulaski road. Joseph said he had taken down a sign advertising cheap gasoline when warned that afternoon by a union organizer. Walter put the sign up again and was slugged by three men who drove into the station shortly afterward.

LINKS 2 FORMER ICKES EMPLOYES TO CRIME RING

Pittman Says Secretary Shielded Pair.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was accused today of protecting two members of a notorious ring in Texas who allegedly had been implicated in rum running, white slavery, and bribery in a prohibition murder case.

Senator Key Pittman.

The charges were made by Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.] before the senate public lands committee. The matter was brought up in connection with the committee's inquiry into the qualifications of Ebert K. Burlew, who has been nominated as first assistant secretary of the interior.

"I think what we need is a new secretary of the interior rather than a first assistant secretary," remarked Senator William H. Smathers [D., N. J.] after he heard the charges against Mr. Ickes.

Former Texas Dry Agent.

The men Senator Pittman accused Ickes of shielding were Walter S. Behrens and Victor J. Buthod, investigators for the secretary's oil administration. Both men formerly were prohibition agents in Texas.

The evidence, as presented by the senator, showed that the two men were hired by Secretary Ickes in 1933 and retained in employment despite a report made by Louis R. Glavis, former chief of the Ickes secret police, in 1934 which stated the inspectors were persons of immoral character.

Senator Pittman's voluminous file, from which he read excerpts, disclosed that Behrens and Buthod were accused by Special Agent Thomas G. Kelliher of complicity with T. E. Guillory, a Texas oil operator, in shipping some 100,000 barrels of hot oil in violation of the Connally quota act.

It was charged that Behrens and Buthod were in partnership with Guillory in the ownership of what Senator Pittman called two fake oil wells—wells that produced only sixty to 100 barrels a month. The senator said they used these small wells as a pretext for shipment allocations.

Urges Pair Be Discharged.

Kelliher, whose report was indorsed by Glavis, recommended that the inspectors be discharged with prejudice and the case referred to the justice department for prosecution, Senator Pittman declared.

Burlew, who is now administrative assistant and right hand man of Ickes, told the senate committee that the secretary assigned two lawyers in the interior department to conduct a hearing in the case. Later, he said, Ickes sent Jonathan Latimer, a Chicago lawyer, to Texas to make a special investigation. Latimer reported there was no evidence to support Kelliher's charges, Burlew said.

"That Latimer report was a whitewash," Senator Pittman asserted.

Burlew testified that after Kelliher accused the two inspectors of violating the law he was summoned to Washington for a hearing and was offered a transfer to the national park service. He refused the job and left the government service.

Fired, Then Given New Jobs.

Secretary Ickes suspended Behrens and Buthod, but later gave them jobs in the geographic survey, Burlew said.

"As a matter of fact," demanded Senator Pittman, "it was Charles West, undersecretary of the interior, and not Secretary Ickes who suspended them, wasn't it?"

Burlew said it may have been West. Senator Pittman said the evidence would show that it was.

"Are Behrens and Buthod still in the service?" Pittman asked. "No, they were finally let out of the service because of a shortage of funds with which to pay their salaries," Burlew said.

The senator was asked at the outset of the hearing what his intention was in bringing up the charges. He replied that he had selected various cases which would show inefficiency, favoritism, gross negligence, and attempted protection of employés unworthy of protection in the audit and finance departments of certain bureaus in Mr. Ickes' department.

Senator O'Mahoney Objects.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] insisted that Senator Pittman was trying to conduct an investigation of the interior department, rather than of the qualifications of Mr. Burlew, and that a senate resolution would be required for such an inquiry.

"Do any of these cases have any bearing on the qualifications of Mr. Burlew?" Senator O'Mahoney asked.

"Absolutely," Senator Pittman replied. "He's the personnel man there and has been under three secretaries."

An item Monday concerning the family of Bernard Freepartner incorrectly stated that he is unemployed, that his children were being treated for malnutrition, and that police had taken up a collection for them. Freepartner has been a railroad conductor for twenty-two years. His children are not undernourished, nor did the policemen take up a collection. The misinformation was supplied by the City News Bureau.

SEEKS TO EXTEND BARGAINING RULE IN U. S. LABOR ACT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.] moved today to extend the collective bargaining requirements of the national labor relations act to all companies and individuals which benefit by government contracts, loans, or grants.

He introduced a bill amending the labor act in this manner as a result of a recent ruling by the controller general that violation of the act did not constitute grounds for denying government contracts to violators.

Meanwhile, Arvin Bowen, a Minneapolis attorney, told the Supreme court that the national labor relations board proceeds upon the assumption that all members of a labor union are angels and all employers of labor are demons.

He argued before the tribunal after Charles Fahy, general counsel for the labor board, had contended the agency must have authority to compel employers to withdraw recognition from company dominated unions.

FILE ON C. I. O. RED IS SURRENDERED BY MME. PERKINS

But Senators Doubt That It's Complete.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The senate commerce and labor committees had another encounter with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today over the question of deporting Harry Bridges, communist C. I. O. proconsul on the west coast. They failed to get what they wanted. The committees, in joint session, are investigating labor violence in the maritime industry.

Madame Perkins surrendered under protest what purported to be the file on the Bridges deportation case, but an examination of the documents after she had gone convinced the senators that the dossier was not complete. Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.], chairman of the commerce committee, promptly wrote Madame Perkins another letter requesting that she send up an agent who is familiar with the file and the matters not contained therein.

Second Round with Secretary.

Today's incident, which occurred in executive session, was the second round with Madame Perkins in the Bridges matter. After she had ignored a letter from Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] requesting information on the alien C. I. O. leader, the two committees took formal action demanding the Bridges file.

This she refused to surrender, saying it would be improper to do so with the investigation still pending. She sent up instead a summary report more than a year old. Today Madame Perkins appeared in person, in response to a second demand, and left what senators regarded as an incomplete file.

Madame Perkins attached a formal memorandum of protest to the file that was surrendered, intimating that if any of the evidence leaked out, with the consequence of jeopardizing the deportation case against Bridges, the responsibility would be upon the senators and not upon her. She indicated a fear that Mr. Bridges would take action to discipline some of the complaining witnesses.

Mme. Perkins' Memorandum.

"While I express no opinion on the basis of this ex parte testimony as to whether or not Bridges is deportable, I do wish to point out that whatever chance the prosecution has of proving its case will be tremendously impaired by disclosing the file prior to the hearings," said the memorandum.

"Many of these witnesses [against Bridges] claim to be either members of the communist party or of one of the maritime unions of the west coast, and if their identity leaks out it is a genuine possibility that efforts will be made in the name of discipline to get them to change their testimony or to refrain from appearing altogether.

"I should like the record to show that I am surrendering these files pursuant to your order and against my better judgment."

Cites Probable Omissions.

Chairman Copeland and Senator Vandenberg made a search of the file and discovered that it did not contain some of the most important evidence in the Bridges case. In an interview Senator Copeland noted the following omissions:

"We do not find the material spoken of in the secretary's letter of Jan. 22 when she said that certain depositions taken by the Seattle immigration and naturalization office were forwarded to the central office with a recommendation that a warant of arrest be issued. We do not find this recommendation in the file.

"In the first paragraph of page 2 of her letter, she said: 'The solicitor then proceeded immediately to the west coast, received some new information and brought to the attention of the field officers some other aspects of the case which should be examined.' Upon his return he also questioned Mr. Bridges, who was in the east, in the New York office of the immigration and naturalization service, and obtained a deposition from him. We do not find this material in the file.

Letter Notes Discrepancies.

"Further, she said in the second paragraph of page 2 of her letter: 'As a result of this supplemental information, several new avenues of investigation were opened which are still being explored and which have resulted in the discovery of additional witnesses who have submitted depositions. This phase of the investigation has been nearly completed and may soon culminate in a formal hearing.' We find nothing relating to this paragraph in the file left with us this morning."

At the closed session with Mme. Perkins she was asked whether the department of labor had power under the law to deport an alien who is a communist. She replied that the department had power to deport any alien who is a member of any organization which advocates violence to overthrow the United States government. [The Supreme court has held that an alien who belongs to the communist party is, ipso facto, deportable.]

Senator Copeland said the evidence before his committee would show that six of the nine members of the C. I. O. national maritime union's strike committee on the east coast are communists. This was the committee which called a general strike during the winter of 1936-'37, resulting in the scrapping by the national labor relations board of contracts between the A. F. of L. seamen's union and the shipowners and the installation of the C. I. O. affiliate.

The two senate committees are considering a bill, recommended by the federal maritime commission, to establish mediation and arbitration procedure under the national mediation board for maritime labor relations. The C. I. O. union opposes this bill and boasts of an alliance with Secretary Perkins in that respect.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Elizabeth Conety, a clothing model, who had been searching for twelve days for her sweetheart, found him today at the city morgue. A bullet hole in his head, Joseph Durkin, alias Molloy, 31 years old, identified by the police as an alcohol bootlegger and race bookmaker, was discovered this morning in his abandoned automobile. He was a former Chicagoan.

Miss Conety, 25 years old, said she had not seen him since he called her more than a week ago and said he would be late returning to the apartment they occupied. He was slain near Union City, N. J.

ROCKFORD TRUCK STRIKE SETTLED; COAL EXCEPTED

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—More than 200 trucks began moving perishables and other commodities this afternoon following the settlement of a transport truck drivers' strike, lasting nine days. An agreement reached last night was signed today. Pay increases of 3 and 4 cents an hour effective March 1, a closed shop, a 48 hour week and overtime pay are provided for the 262 drivers involved, members of the General Chauffeurs' and Sales Drivers' union.

Union heads said picketing of coal dealers would continue until a settlement is reached. Thirteen companies have reached agreements. The others are making deliveries under the protection of a Circuit court injunction.

Driver Is Beaten.

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Left alone for a few moments by deputy sheriffs who had been guarding his food cargo, William Evans, 45 years old, A. & P. Co. truck driver from Chicago, was found beaten into unconsciousness in an alley here last night. Recovering consciousness he said he was set upon by three thugs. It was the only outburst of violence here in connection with the Rockford truck drivers' strike which was settled late last night.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Color was transmitted by radio for the first time tonight in a television program. An experimental demonstration of Prof. L. Baird's system was given at the Dominion theater. A sending station was established at Sydenham, about six miles away, with a wave length of 8.3 meters. Only 120 scanning lines were used, compared with the 400 employed in the present British Broadcasting corporation's program, but the projected picture, 12 feet by 9 feet, was regarded as successful and easily seen by the entire audience.

COAL PRICE CODE PUTS 200 MINERS ON RELIEF ROLLS

Suspensions Close Source of Livelihood.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cutler, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Coal miners operating two coöperative mines here have suspended production and gone on relief because the minimum price schedule set up by the national bituminous coal commission has deprived them of their markets.

The mines have been furnishing a livelihood to more than 200 miners for the last four years and were the source of most of the cash income of this small community.

Up to Dec. 16, when the code went into effect, the mines had been able to work at least two days a week and in the last year averaged about half time operation.

Rates Pushed Too High.

The Whip-poor-will mine, operated by 100 miners for the last four years as a coöperative enterprise under a lease from a receiver, has been closed, John Jarrett, a member of the mine executive board, said.

"We pulled the fires and emptied the boilers and the men applied for relief," Jarrett said. "The coal commission classed us too high, and we cannot sell our coal. They rate us middle grade, which always has oversold our standard grade coal by 50 to 75 cents a ton. We were operating four days a week before the code became effective. We worked the mine for only two part days—a total of 12 hours—in January. Now we have had to close it."

125 Lose Livelihood.

The New Wilson mine, another cooperative, owned by 100 miners who purchased it at a receiver's sale four years ago, had been giving work to 125 miners. L. L. Freeman, secretary-treasurer of the miner-owned company, said the mine had been working more than half time until the market was taken away.

"We worked the mine four days in January and then had to stop," he said. "Financially, we are finished right now. The men are keeping steam up and ventilating the mine, but we can do that only as long as the men are willing to work for nothing.

"We used to be able to sell our coal as standard grade in the St. Louis industrial market, but with the commission classifying us as middle grade we cannot sell it under the minimum price schedule."

120 Families Get Relief.

Charles Grills, relief administrator for Perry county, where Cutler is located, said he had to add 120 families to the relief rolls Jan. 26 as a result of the suspensions of these two mines.

"The Cutler closings made worse an already acute relief situation in Perry county," Grills said. "If something is not done to permit resumption of normal mine operations in the county, we will have a desperate situation."

The curtailmen in Illinois coal production brought about by code discriminations favoring Indiana and Kentucky producers over Illinois mines is drastic in this territory. The regulations have hit both low and high cost producers.

Mine Rate Cut to Half.

The two coöperatives here are not rated as efficient mines, but five miles away at Percy is one of the most modern strip mines in the country, the Streamline mine of the Southwestern Illinois Coal corporation. This efficient mine has been forced to cut down to half of the rate maintained in the last three months of 1937.

Operators of Streamline mine, in order to continue operations, are unloading cars of unsalable coal on the ground. The operators say they have plenty of orders for domestic fuel, but because of code discriminations are unable to sell small sizes and screenings which comprise 60 per cent of a mine's output.

Biggest Mine Slowed.

The United Electric Coal company's Fidelity mine at Du Quoin, which has the biggest daily capacity of any single strip mine in the country, has been operating at half time for the last five weeks. Production in January was approximately half of the 135,000 ton output in December.

The company's Red Ray mine at Freeburg, which maintained full time operations until two weeks ago—even paying overtime to miners—also has cut its operations in half because it cannot sell its railroad and industrial coal.

There are some mines in the district which are maintaining operations at a fair rate, but in most instances they are producers who have special or affiliated consumers who take their industrial output.

Lumber Company Official Shoots Himself to Death

COAL USERS HELP PAY DEMOCRATIC BILL, HOUSE TOLD

Also Forced to Aid C.I.O., Congressman Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration is forcing coal consumers to contribute to the expenses of Democratic election campaigns and to help finance the Committee for Industrial Organization through the coal price increases voted by the national bituminous coal commission.

This charge was made on the floor of the house today by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], who inserted in the Congressional Record financial statistics of the United Mine Workers of America, which contributed heavily to President Roosevelt's reëlection campaign and to the organization of the C.I.O. by its president, John L. Lewis.

Hoffman asserted the administration, in the creation of the coal commission and the fixing of minimum soft coal prices, devised a squeeze play to bring home the contributions of the past and encourage contributions in the future.

Explains Squeeze Play.

For the benefit of colleagues not acquainted with baseball terminology, Hoffman defined the squeeze play. "With a runner on third and a heavy hitter at bat, a bunt is laid down," Hoffman said. "The opposition, expecting a hit, unprepared for the deception, is caught off balance and the runner comes home with a score."

The administration stepped to the bat in the upping of coal prices apparently to swing out for miners and the coal industry, but laid down a bunt to collect its campaign funds and help the C. I. O., according to the Hoffman analogy.

"When you buy a ton of coal and find that the coal commission has added 50 cents to the price you are inclined to kick," he said. "But, on consideration, believing that the increased cost is paid to miners, who, you are told, need it, you are more willing to bear the added burden.

The Picture Changes.

"But when you learn [from the financial statements] that something over 7 million dollars has been collected in two years from the mine workers for dues and that $1,735,000 of these dues went to the C. I. O., which by the use of armed men caused the closing of the automobile factories in one town for a period of over forty-four days at a loss in wages to the automobile workers of General Motors of 44 million dollars, you are not so well pleased.

"And, when you check down the list and you note that $467,168 went to finance the reëlection of President Roosevelt, your dissatisfaction becomes more acute and you wonder why you, through the operation of the Guffey act and the assessments levied upon the United Mine Workers, should be compelled to contribute to the reëlection of a candidate with whose policies you are not in sympathy."

Decision was deferred today by the federal Court of Appeals on a petition for a writ by the Association of American Railroads to suspend government fixed minimum prices on soft coal. Action on a similar petition from the city of Chicago also was postponed by Justice Oscar R. Luhring of the federal District court.

Fear Rise in Canada.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Large handlers of American bituminous coal today were hopeful something may be done to void the national bituminous coal commission's ruling so that they will not have to advance their prices. Keen competition is given United States coal by Canadian bituminous, the imports of the American coal and the production of the Canadian product being approximately the same

United States coal operators were able last year to increase their exports to Canada, and any raise in price would hurt their chances of holding gains or extending them. Naturally this has some bearing on production needs at home and consequent employment.

Imports of United States bituminous coal in the calendar year 1937 totaled 12,333,378 tons, compared with 10,046,874 in 1936, and 9,713,674 in 1935. Production of Canadian bituminous coal in 1937 totaled 11,550,133 tons, while in addition the dominion produced 506,047 tons of sub-bituminous coal, and 3,627,032 tons of lignite.

STORES ABROAD

By CALEB

MRS. M——— recently returned from a long jaunt to Europe. When she returned, she sat right down and wrote the following letter to us.

"Dear Sir:

"After four months and a half in Europe and a week in New York, I have returned to Chicago more pleased and better satisfied with our stores. For styles, and the way our merchandise is displayed, we are so far ahead of shops in Paris or London! Your buyers deserve great credit for their selections. I could not find anything at Joseph Paquin's, Jenny's or Molyneux's, so saved my money to buy from our own stores.

"Sincerely,
"K—— M——"

A letter like this proves that the retailers of America are accomplishing what a great share of the public will never realize has been accomplished. That is, making American department stores the best in the world. There are no standards elsewhere by which our American stores can be judged.

Yet American stores still improve year after year. It is because the ideal of aggressive progression was instilled into the lifeblood of American retailers by a few idealistic merchants in this country a good many years ago.

The names A. T. Stewart, John Wanamaker, and Marshall Field stand for much of the best that American retailing has come to be. These men established their own standards. The standards in accord with which they developed their businesses were limited only by their imaginations and their capacities.

That is typical of the American spirit. In a good part of the world, the standards by which today's activities are judged are the standards of yesterday. In this country, because neither tradition nor government nor social caste holds men back, men have eagerly spent themselves and poured themselves into accomplishing the greatest heights to which they could attain.

If we do not by public indifference let our American system go by default in exchange for some stultifying system of Europe, Mrs. M——— will note greater differentials in continental and American stores every year she lives.

MAYORS DEMAND 400 MILLIONS OF U.S. IN WPA CRISIS

Seek to Avert Job Famine in Central West.

A demand that congress make an immediate emergency appropriation of $400,000,000 to supplement WPA funds available until July 1 was drawn up yesterday by a conference of eleven mayors of central western cities. The mayors met at the Palmer house at the invitation of Mayor Kelly.

Howard O. Hunter, midwestern WPA regional director, told the mayors that the present WPA appropriation of $1,300,000,000 for the fiscal year ending July 1 forces WPA to make drastic reductions of its pay rolls in March and April. More than 30 per cent of the 1,800,000 persons now employed by WPA must be dismissed in those two months, Hunter said, for WPA to stay within its present appropriation.

The Mayors' Resolution.

"In February, 1934, 4,200,000 workers were cared for under the WPA programs," the resolution adopted by the mayors said. "In February, 1936, 3,600,000 workers were aided. Today in the face of drastically declining industrial employment only 2,000,000 destitute people are being given WPA employment."

At least 3,000,000 should be given WPA employment, the resolution said, and this can only be carried out with the deficiency WPA appropriation of $400,000,000 for the whole nation.

The resolution was signed by Mayor Kelly and the mayors of Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Des Moines, Omaha, Toledo, Minneapolis, and Indianapolis. Copies of it will be sent to congress and to President Roosevelt.

Plan Washington Trip.

Mayor Kelly said that he, in company with Mayor Richard W. Reading of Detroit and Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland, will call on C. Aubrey Williams, assistant national WPA director, in Washington next Tuesday to insist that the appropriation for WPA be supplemented.

Hunter said there are now 720,000 employed by WPA in thirteen midwestern states, but that 150,000 of these would be dropped on March 1. An additional 11 per cent of the remainder will be discharged April 1.

"I don't know how federal taxes can be decreased and the expenditures for WPA increased at the same time," Hunter said. "Cities and states are now contributing 20 per cent of the cost of WPA projects more than they spent in the heart of the depression."

Mayor Kelly said there is no way in which the city can supplement its appropriations for relief during 1938. Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the Chicago Relief administration estimated last week that all city funds for relief will be gone in early April and that state funds will provide only 50 per cent of the money needed for direct relief.

Warant Charges Seadlund with Killing of Ross

Sherif Robert Willis of Washburn county, Wis., has sworn to a warant charging John Henry Seadlund with the murder of Charles S. Ross. The sherif said the murder charge would be pressed only if Seadlund, who is to be arraigned in the federal court here Tuesday on an indictment charging the kidnaping of Ross, is not convicted. The bodies of Ross and James Atwood Gray, who assisted Seadlund in the kidnaping, were found in a dugout in Washburn county, near Spooner.

MAYOR TESTIFIES AGAINST FORMER STATE SENATOR

William F. Gillmeister, 47 years old, former state senator and state highway inspector, was held to the grand jury in $9,000 bonds yesterday on a charge of operating a confidence game. Mayor Kelly, who caused Gillmeister's arrest, was a witness at the hearing before Judge Oscar Caplan in Felony court.

Other witnesses told how the defendant used the mayor's name in getting money from discharged policemen and firemen. Gillmeister represented himself as one of a committee of three named by the mayor to arrange for the reinstatement [at $500 each] of sixty-five policemen and thirty-five firemen, the witnesses said. Mayor Kelly testified he had never authorized the appointment of such a committee.

FRIEND OF FRIEND AND PAL DEFRAUD WIDOW OF $2,043

Two men yesterday defrauded Mrs. Jeanette Tietcen, 871 East 63d street, a widow, of $2,043. Two weeks ago Mrs. Tietcen met George Kolar, who said he was a friend of one of her friends. A pleasant fellow, he introduced her to another man he called Joe.

"Joe's father is dying in Texas and wants his debts here paid," Kolar explained. "He's got $47,000 in that box. He has to get back to Texas and if you and I can raise $5,000 to prove we are reliable he'll leave the $47,000 with us. We can pay the debts and keep a commission."

Mrs. Tietcen drew her $2,043 from the bank. It was placed by Kolar in the box supposed to contain the $47,000. After fumbling awkwardly with the box, the men went away. When she opened the box it was empty.

HIT RUN VICTIM DIES.

Rochester, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—James M. Lackey, 78 years old, a farmer whose home was near Mentone, died last night. He was struck Dec. 24 by a hit and run motorist while on his way to Christmas eve church services. He left four children.

DREAM KILLING ISSUE IS RAISED IN WRIGHT CASE

State Tries to Refute Defendant's Story.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The state attempted to show, in a 50 minute session of the Wright murder trial today, that Paul A. Wright may have "been thinking in a previous state of consciousness" about killing his wife and his friend, John Kimmel.

Dr. Samuel Marcus, a psychiatrist, who yesterday answered yes to an 80 minute hypothetical question propounded by Wright's counsel, Jerry Giesler—in which he asked if Wright might not have been mentally unconscious when he shot—was today's only witness.

Refers to Groggy Athletes.

In an effort to refute Wright's defense that he was dazed when he discovered Mrs. Evelyn Wright and Kimmel in an unnatural intimacy last Nov. 9 Prosecutor J. Miller Leavy used as an illustration football players badly injured when tossed on their heads but continuing in the game although groggy.

"Wouldn't these players," Leavy asked Dr. Marcus, "have gone through their plays simply because it was automatic with them—because they had done it so often?"

Automatic Action Possible.

Dr. Marcus admitted the plays would be automatic.

"Isn't it true that so-called automatic acts during states of unconsciousness may have been something the person had been thinking about in a previous state of consciousness?" Leavy asked.

Dr. Marcus said, "Not necessarily."

The trial was adjourned until Monday morning when Leavy concluded his cross-examinatio shortly before 3 o'clock.

The defense still has three witnesses and the prosecution several in rebuttal, so the case may not go to the jury before some time Wednesday.

MANIAC KILLS FOUR AND WOUNDS ONE IN WARD OF INFIRMARY

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A maniac, 6 feet 3 inches tall, 79 years old, was seized here today several hours after he ran amuck with a pistol. He killed four fellow inmates and wounded one other in a state infirmary at nearby Tewksbury.

John Mack.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

The crazed mental patient, John Mack of Chelsea, Mass., said he shot because the others had called him bad names. He bought the death weapon two years ago from a mail order house and had kept it buried in a tin can on the infirmary grounds, he said.

Last night he took the gun from its hiding place and waited until the other patients were asleep. Then he started shooting in the darkened ward where eighty elderly men cringed in terror. His victims ranged in age from 55 to 78 years old. The shooting came in the midst of an investigation into the mounting number of violent deaths in Massachusetts mental hospitals.

Windows of 2 Food Stores Are Shattered with Bricks

Display windows of two Shop and Save food marts at 1055 Bryn Mawr avenue and 521 Diversey parkway were shattered with bricks early yesterday. Nick Kanellos, owner, told police that two of his clerks went on strike and picketed the stores recently when he refused to sign a closed shop agreement with the Retail Clerks' Protective association, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

ASK ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE OF INDIANA GIRL, 14

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Legal steps to dissolve a child marriage were taken here today when Prosecutor Floyd Cook filed an annulment suit for Dorothy Hall, 14 years old, Bloomington High school freshman, who was married at Nashville, Ind., Jan. 20, to Henry Stewart, 34 years old, a stone worker.

Stewart is in jail at Nashville, awaiting trial on a charge of subornation of perjury. He is alleged to have induced the girl to swear falsely to the license clerk that she was 18 years old.

In another annulment suit filed here today, Leatha Ratliff Lucas, 14 years old, asked the court to void her marriage to Jack Lucas.

Notice to the Customers of THE PEOPLES GAS LIGHT AND COKE COMPANY

After an extended hearing, the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, issued a decree on February 4, 1938, upholding this Company's claim that its existing rates are not adequate.

As a result of this decree the Company is placing increased rates in effect on February 5, 1938. The increase is limited to about

ONE CENT A DAY at the most 32 cents per month.

HOW IT AFFECTS YOU

For customers under Service Classification No. 1 (General Service), No. 2 (Residential Service), and No. 3 (Commercial Space Heating Service), who consume more than two therms of gas in any one month, the charge for the first two therms only is increased from 58c to 90c, or an increase of only 32c a month.

For customers under General Service and Residential Service classifications who consume less than two therms of gas in any one month, the minimum bill will be 90c per month instead of 60c, or an increase of only 30c a month.

There is NO INCREASE for gas consumed in excess of two therms per month

All bills rendered for gas used after February 4, 1938 will be computed to include the increase of about 1c for each day thereafter.

A copy of the new Rate Schedule (No. 19) may be inspected by any interested person at the office of the Company, 122 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, or at any of the Company's branch offices.

To fully protect the public interest, the Company has voluntarily agreed to deposit and impound in a Chicago bank the amount representing the increase in rates pending the ultimate decision on the appeal from the decree of the Circuit Court.

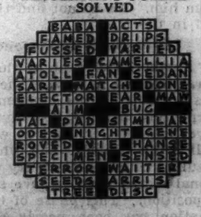
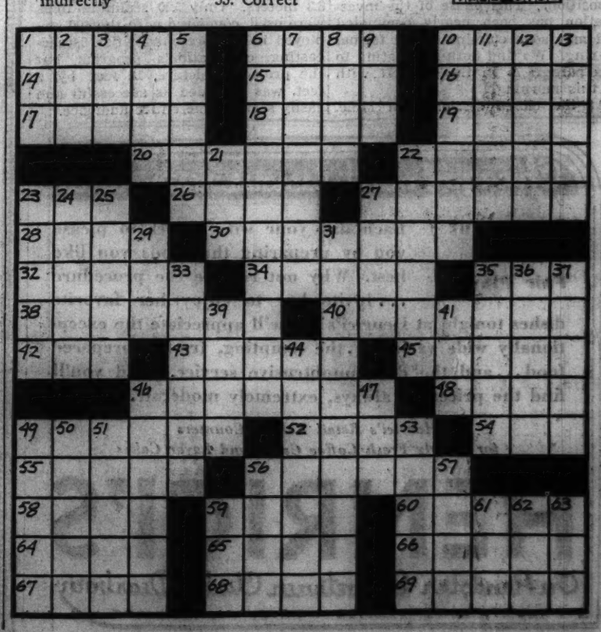
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





BRITAIN ACTS TO STOP PIRACY AS 2D SHIP IS SUNK

Italy, France to Aid; New Attacks Stir London.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Great Britain today officially informed Italy and France that British warships have orders to sink any submerged submarine on Mediterranean ship lanes.

André Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, told Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that France had given its navy the same orders.

[The Italian embassy in London also announced last night that Italy concurs in Great Britain's proposal to take effective steps to end Mediterranean piracy. Observers credited the move to extreme pressure from Britain and France.]

Simultaneously with these developments came word that another British merchantman was sunk off the Spanish coast, this time from the air, which creates a new problem.

Submarines are much easier to deal with than planes, and just what to do next is a real problem for the British.

London Ire Aroused.

The sinking of the Alcira, a coaler, off Barcelona today, by Spanish insurgent airplanes produced a much stronger reaction than the sinking of the Endymion four days ago, although no lives were lost from the Alcira.

[The Endymion was sunk by an unidentified submarine near Cartagena, Spain. Ten lives were lost, including that of the nonintervention observer aboard. The Alcira was bombed and sunk by two Spanish insurgent planes. The twenty-five members of the crew and a nonintervention observer were saved. The captain of the Alcira declared the ship was plainly marked with British colors, and that the attackers could not have mistaken the ship's nationality.]

There were three reasons for the change: first, this sinking on the heels of the other shows that the sinking of the Endymion was not an isolated incident; second, there is no doubt this time that the Union Jack was visible, for it was plastered all over the ship, and the attack came in broad daylight; third, the Alcira's crew was all British. The Endymion was a bona fide British ship, but the crew was mostly Spanish.

Urge Convoy System.

Demands are beginning to be heard for a convoy system, like that which escorted American food and troop ships across the Atlantic in the world war.

Along with the revival of attacks on British ships, there has been a revulsion in feeling toward Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish insurgent leader.

The more conservative newspapers have always had a weakness for his side of the question, but now there is an increasing number of hints that he is not doing too well and may not win.

The Times today had a long discussion of the legal aspects of the situation by Cyril Asquith, authority on international law, calling the sinking "peculiarly outrageous." He reminded his readers that Italy and Germany had violated international law by recognizing Franco's government before the war ended and when it was still legally rebel.

Swing from Franco.

A report was published tonight that Italy is having a bad time in Ethiopia and had sent 11,360 more Black Shirts as reënforcements during the last few days. The report also says that 10,000 Ethiopians have reorganized an army and are harrassing the invaders.

All that backs up recent British reports that Premier Mussolini decided he could not afford to send more aid to Franco, although other rumors have said he would.

The sudden prominence given all these reports in the British press might well be done to sound the public in preparation for a firmer stand toward Italy and Gen. Franco.

What actually will be done is still undecided, even in the minds of the British cabinet probably, but there is reason to believe that the British may be more firm about this latest sinking than they were about earlier attacks.

Rebels Renew Bombing.

MADRID, Feb. 4.—(AP)—While government and insurgent forces simultaneously attacked in different sectors on the southern front, Gen. Francisco Franco's war planes today attacked four cities on the Mediterranean coast.

On the southern front a government communique said the insurgents were driven from positions at Pena Sela Mota and Cerro Cogollo in Granada and a counter attack repelled.

Bids City to Carnival

MISS VERNA WESA.

It seems to be the season for snow queens, although Chicago's bare streets would never indicate it. Yesterday the latest queen, Miss Verna Wesa, 18 years old, of Ishpeming, Mich., arrived with greetings for Mayor Kelly and an invitation for Chicagoans to attend the north woods winter sports carnival in northern Wisconsin and peninsular Michigan. A few days ago St. Paul, Minn., sent its queen with a similar invitation to enjoy Minnesota's winter sports.

FRANCO REVIVES IMPERIAL SPIRIT IN REBEL SPAIN

Adopts Coat of Arms of Ferdinand, Isabella.

BY THOMAS GUNNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SALAMANCA, Spain, Feb. 4.—The first decree of Gen. Francisco Franco's new rebel cabinet, which took office Wednesday in Burgos, seems trivial. It was merely a decision determining the official coat of arms which will be the seal of new Spain.

But, with Franco sympathizers so proudly conscious of their glorious past history, and so keen to preserve tradition, as they have been since the beginning of the civil war, this is not idle formality. It is, perhaps, more appreciated than decrees of the bread and butter type would be.

Revives Arms of Monarchs.

The revival of the coat of arms of the great Catholic monarchs, Ferdinand and Isabella, conquerors of the Moors, patrons of Columbus, and above all, founders of Spain's great empire, strikes a note which evokes a response in the heart of many Spaniards.

The formal message of the new government to the people after its first meeting goes even farther in its promise of innovation and reform. The burning question of this age—the reconciliation of the diverse interests of owners, technicians and workers—is formally promised in a guarantee of national syndicalist [corporative] organization of new Spain.

Next, a press law is promised to "elevate the press to the service of truth." The new government's message said the press in Nationalist Spain "has risen above the abuses of the so-called privilege of free thought and its position as the fourth estate."

Pledges War on Communism.

Despite "red robbery of the gold reserve," the new cabinet said the government credit of Nationalist Spain and the value of its currency will be rigorously guarded.

Rebel Spain's international mission will be its promise to help maintain world peace, and it will not forget friends who stood by in the days of peril from Russian communism. Special attention will be paid to spiritual and material ties with South America and countries which cherish and preserve Spanish culture, language, and tradition.

Perhaps most important of the domestic promises is that dealing with the urgent agrarian problem. An agrarian policy is promised that "will give the peasants the right to live decently, improve methods of cultivation, organize credits on a national scale, and bring about better and more equable distribution of land."

It will be remembered, the rebels say, that land discontent is a favorite weapon of leftist administrations against rightists. In most cases, they charge, dishonesty was promoted and used, but now, it is added, the government guarantee means that the last excuse for such complaint will disappear.

Finally, in the government message, revision is promised of all penal legislation against religion. This implies no change in the situation which exists in Nationalist Spain since the war began, namely, freedom of priests to officiate and teaching orders to run schools.

It is favorably noted that, although the country is on a military basis, only three of the eleven ministers in the new cabinet are soldiers and that two of these, Count Jordana and Gen. Martinez Anido, are retired from active military careers.

FOG HALTS SHIP ON DASH TO SAVE FOUR ON ICE FLOE

MOSCOW, Feb. 4.—(AP)—One of the rescue ships assigned to take Russia's four north pole campers off a drifting ice floe advanced a few miles nearer their position today, but was halted by a heavy fog.

The small steamer Murmanets reported it was sailing westward in open waters about forty-five miles east of Jan Mayen Island, which is 250 miles southeast of where the polar campers reported themselves. The report said the Murmanets was surrounded by ice and was drifting south while waiting for the fog to clear up.

Ivan Papanin, in charge of the polar camp, radioed that the 100 by 160 foot cake of ice on which he and his three companions were awaiting rescue had virtually come to a standstill. He gave his position as unchanged since last night when he reported the floe was at 74.03 north latitude and 17.30 west longitude.

POLITICS AND CRIME IN KANSAS CITY.

The remarks of Federal Judge Reeves in Kansas City reveal with striking new illustrations that another American community has fallen under the blight of politics allied with crime. The federal grand jury is at work in the Missouri city and Judge Reeves' statements dealt with the situation it is investigating. Election frauds brought the evils to a boil.

Judge Reeves says the terrorism in Kansas City business circles is about what it is in Russia, Italy, and Germany. The politicians and the criminals have intimidated the citizens and made them suffer from abuses against which they hardly dared complain. The judge says that the people of the city will have to stand up and take the risks needed to recover control of their government and purge their city of the political rule which permits criminals to coerce and abuse them. The question, he says, is one of common honesty and patriotism, and if the patriotism requires sacrifice it must be made to destroy the influences which corrupt governments and prey upon citizenship.

Crime and politics in alliance create the greatest American problem in state and city government. This alliance may grip both. Louisiana was completely strangled. Minnesota has been unable to loosen the hold on its throat. Rhode Island bent completely under a dictatorship which degraded its courts and used its troops in a rule of ruin. Seattle has been paralyzed by unscrupulous bosses. Washington, D. C., has been condemned by congress and by Attorney General Cummings as being a city of slums and crimes. New York was in the clutches of the worst racketeers in the country, who levied toll on the living of the poor and well-to-do alike.

New York gives the answer to communities which are suffering as it did before Thomas Dewey proved to the abused citizens that they were not required to suffer in silence and fright from the operations of criminals who could be bold only when they had political backing. New York has not solved all its troubles, but it has in the office of district attorney in New York county a man who has proved his ability and courage. When the people stamp the corrupt politicians out of their government and elect officials who are not in alliance with criminals they can get rid of the crime and regain their right to live and do business without dealing with extortionists, robbers, and murderers.

HIGH PRESSURE SALESMANSHIP.

High pressure salesmanship is one of those phrases which can mean a great variety of things, ranging all the way from gross violation of the criminal statutes to negligible infractions of the unwritten code of business ethics. At its worst the phrase implies coercion of the customer by blackmail. At its next worst it connotes a confidence game in which misrepresentation of the goods or of the terms of sale is employed.

Frequently the phrase suggests nothing more heinous than an aggressive sales policy which is not overly considerate of the real needs of the customer. In this sense many citizens during the war were high-pressured into instalment purchases of more Liberty bonds than the purchasers could pay for.

Salesmen who pretend to have inside information that prices will rise and this is the last moment to get in on the ground floor; salesmen who seek to confuse the customer by emotional appeals can be charged with one or another form of high pressure selling. The boy who says he needs your magazine subscription to obtain his college scholarship is a high pressure salesman. So is the real estate operator who paints a glowing picture of life in suburbia but says little about the monthly instalments until the signature is placed on the dotted line.

The essential evil in overaggressive selling, when it is an evil, lies in its effect upon the budgets of the customers. They find themselves obliged to spend an unduly large share of their incomes for things which aren't worth that much to them. Because they bought a new car when the old one would have done duty for another year or two they can't afford a vacation. Because they bought the suburban villa they can't send Junior through college.

Whether the federal government or any government can do much about it when fraud and coercion are not involved is doubtful. It is difficult to draw the line between good and bad uses of high pressure methods. High pressure emotional appeal has contributed to the sale of soap and tooth brushes. Persons who didn't buy these articles were led to think they were pariahs, as, indeed, they often were.

A certain enthusiasm for his wares on the part of the seller must be accepted as inevitable. The men in Washington who are expressing concern about the evils of high pressure selling are at present engaged in a high pressure campaign to sell savings bonds to American citizens. Brochures decorated with high powered illustrations are being circulated. An appeal directed to the citizen's love of home and country is irrelevant as a guide to safe investment; the treasury's pamphlet in this respect falls far below the standard imposed by the government on those who have securities in private ventures to sell.

The government is also preparing to lend 3 billion dollars to its citizens for the construction of homes. The citizen will be encouraged in a high pressure campaign to borrow as much as 90 per cent of the total cost of a $6,000 house. Repayments will extend over a 20 year period. Every effort will be made to convince citizens that such borrowings are prudent, although the accumulated experience of mortgage bankers and mortgage borrowers over centuries proves the contrary. A man who can find only 10 per cent as his equity knows, if he has any business sense, that he is in no position to borrow. The amount of his savings indicates all too plainly that his margin over his ordinary living expenses is too slim to permit him to make so heavy a commitment for so long a period. If he does make it he will probably regret the act. The risk of default is correspondingly high.

Such loans are particularly bad because they engage so large a share of the borrower's income for so long a period. In this they are likely to be far more damaging to the national economy than the contracts for automobile purchases about which much has been heard of late.

OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.

A 58 year old Alabama cotton farmer receives the first government loan for the purchase of a farm. He is Wiley J. Langley of Walker county. Walker county is the home of Senator John Bankhead, who, with Representative Marvin Jones of Texas, put his name to the act of congress which authorizes these loans to "deserving tenants and share croppers."

Langley is the father of twelve children, the youngest 11 and the oldest living at home 25. The others are presumably on their own. Several thousand dollars of the loan was to buy the farm and something less than a thousand is apportioned for the rehabilitation of buildings. The loan runs for a forty year period, and if Mr. Langley lives it out he will be 98 years old. He is, it is to be assumed, a deserving cotton farmer, who in 58 years has not been able to get land of his own or to make a successful attempt to become self-sufficient.

He is one of some 20,000 who will receive these long term loans which should give them some property with the burden of the debt to the government. It is hardly to be expected that the grants will be entirely concentrated in Alabama and Texas. Twenty thousand people put in one community would make, even then, a small showing on the map of the United States. Scattered all over the country they will represent a dot here and a dot there. The beneficence of the government toward each individual may result in his material good. For each person thus benefited there must necessarily be scores of others whose status is the same or worse and who will see small reason for the discrimination which gives one a seeming or temporary good and leaves the others in their same condition. This consideration has applied to the expensive community housing plans which give some people an advantage over others at great cost.

No one could be so optimistic or so foolish as to think the solution of a great agrarian problem or a great social problem, anything pertaining really to the standards of living in the United States, was being accomplished by the selective process of giving a government loan, bounty or subsidy to one person at the expense of all, when no general community good possibly could result and only a drain on the treasury can be expected.

These efforts, it will some day be realized in the United States, touch nothing material in the sequence of cause and effect and are merely motions of nobility with illusions of grandeur and paternalism behind them. They are discriminatory and, therefore, unjust. The isolated instance of a benefit in a community will not give the people neglected by the government bounty any leverage by which they can raise themselves. It should merely make them envious of the person who benefits and distrustful of the government which makes such selections.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN CO-OPERATION.

Toward the end of the year an ultracandid editorial note appeared in G. K.'s Weekly [founded by G. K. Chesterton], London, as follows:

"The laudable and persistent efforts this country is making to secure the active assistance of the United States in our world affairs will ultimately be successful. England can always ultimately obtain that support because the moral appeal can always be played as a trump card. We have already got the bulk of opinion in the United States to believe that we are a democracy and we have got them to forgiving us for our repudiation of our debt to them although they never have forgotten nor will forgive the French, but for practical purposes everything turns on the value of that word 'ultimately.' It took us two years to bring across the Atlantic those first seven American destroyers which turned the tide in 1917."

Before they trap us into war with Japan let us consider that Great Britain and France got the United States into their war.

They gave American troops, after they had been forced to accept them as an army, the hardest part of the fighting in the almost impenetrable Argonne, while the English marched over the open country to Belgium and the French looked on.

They swindled America in the making of peace treaties.

They welshed on their war and post-war debts.

They will not now give up their bombing bases in American waters.

They still dominate our foreign policy.

Perhaps they are going to do this all over again. We hope not.

It may be that the coöperation of the United States and Great Britain would be invaluable to each country and to what we still call civilization. But a recurrence of a relationship where America furnishes the treasure and the casualty list while England and France divide all the fruit of our sacrifices must be resisted by every American-minded citizen.

Editorial of the Day

THE MAN WHO PAYS.

[Parsons (Kas.) Sun.]

Consolidated Edison ran a full page advertisment recently reporting that it pays almost a million dollars a day in taxes to New York City and to the nation. It pays thirty-two million dollars a year to the city, which, it says, would run the police department for more than six months and would run the fire department for a year and a half.

Then the advertisment makes a significant statement. It says that if the company didn't have to pay taxes residential electricity bills could be reduced 79 per cent. So it isn't Consolidated Edison that pays the taxes after all. It happens to be the common plug citizen who pays the tax when he pays his monthly bill for electricity. Usually we overlook little matters of this kind when taxes are being hiked.

JACK WITKOWSKY relays the story he says an English friend wrote him about the bright lads of the London Stock exchange who heaved a brick through the window of the Yokohama Specie bank, then rushed in a body to see the manager. They overwhelmed him with apologies, said they would be glad to pay for the damage, and assured him it would not occur again. They knew he would understand, they concluded; by some extraordinary misconception they had thought it a Chinese gunboat.

Hot Buttered Rum.

A fireside drink gaining in popularity about the town is hot buttered rum. After reading the recipe given in "Northwest Passage," which calls for a barrel—or keg—of rum and pounds of butter, Charles E. De Leuw of Highland Park computed the mixture, reducing it to the small fraction of the original. He then made the final recipe in exact proportions:

Into Tom and Jerry cups or earthenware cups put one teaspoon butter, one teaspoonful of maple sirup, and a jigger and a half of Jamaica rum. Fill the cups with boiling water and shake cinnamon or nutmeg over the top.

He bought him more schnapps from his own tiny supply of pocket money to keep him reciting, although he couldn't understand the words. It was Homer the man was reciting, and the German boy acquired such a passion for the Homeric story that, a half century later—a linguist and at that time a naturalized American—he went to Greece and uncovered Troy. NO CHILD SHOULD BE WEARY.

NOT long ago I heard a mother remark that her Frank, aged 8, was tired most of the time. The plaint is sounded often, and I am afraid that the boy or girl who is unduly fatigued receives scant attention.

Rather than scold because lessons and chores are not attended to promptly and with dispatch, a far better plan is to take an inventory of your offspring's habits and physical status to find out where the trouble lies. However, before we start on the hunt for a disease condition we must make sure that adequate rest is being secured. I can recall many cases where exhaustion was traced to wakefulness—the child lying in bed two or three hours before going to sleep.

Again, a few children will not do well unless far more slumber is provided. Some youngsters demand more than others just as some play harder than their companions. Then there is the nervous lad who expends a tremendous amount of energy that does not show in muscular activity. As we know, the sensitive child gives out quickly. For such a one the word "must" should not be in the parents' vocabulary. Here the afternoon nap or a period of relaxation immediately following return from school will work wonders. As early to bed as sleep will come, with nine or ten hours, should be the rule.

Many young hopefuls learn instinctively to avoid becoming weary. Watch a group attacking a game with zest. Energy will burst forth so abundantly that, as we oldsters look on, we wonder how they are able to keep it up. But if we will observe closely we will see how frequent are the intervals of quiet—so that when Bobby's turn comes he is ready to do his best.

Every physician encounters many adults who complain of ennui, of physical prostration on the slightest exertion—with nerves that are obliged to rest for rejuvenation. Good sense dictates that these persons must not be driven into activity calling for the use of muscles beyond their limits of endurance. In some instances complete rest in bed for a week or two may be required. So it is with children. Many a pale, listless youngster has been started on the upgrade through just such a program. At first, even tempting articles of diet may elicit little response. Later, however, perhaps aided by a mild tonic, the appetite may rise to the ravenous stage.

But there is a type of chronic fatigue which may compel even more attention than that relieved by remaining in bed. Infections burn up energy and destroy blood cells and, among these below par patients, respiratory inflammations—nasal, sinus, bronchial, etc.—may well account for the prevalence of that tired feeling. In many quarters there is a distinct lack of appreciation of the fact that minor nests of growing bacteria in the middle ear, the nose, or the throat can bring about a considerable drop in resistance.

Of course, the body cannot operate without fuel, and improper or insufficient menus are often a source of exhaustion. If there is too little sugar in the daily ration, too few heat producing calories, energy failure will appear far earlier than it should. Many a chap at play will dash into the house, grab a slice of bread and butter with brown sugar, and go on with great vigor for the rest of the game. Activity in the presence of hunger may do much harm.

We must be watchful also of the one whose eating habits have been badly regulated. The best sauce in the world—hunger—may be absent because edibles have been forced at some earlier stage. When mealtime arrives with its appetizing array there may be little desire for wholesome and essential materials. As a result, the boy or girl will pick at his or her plate disdainfully and leave the table with insufficient sustenance.

Parents should be alert to recognize the listless young one who does not care for outdoor play. It may be that a bacterial focus should be eliminated, meals reorganized, and the hours of sleep increased. Above all, we must try to raise resistance, as many undesirable maladies will thus be avoided.

MAY ENJOY RAGES.

P. T. writes: When I scold my 9 year old son for oft repeated acts of disobedience I occasionally lose my temper. I know that this is bad, but his offenses sometimes are flagrant.

REPLY.

The chances are that you have lost authority over your son. In fact, he may enjoy seeing you work yourself into a rage. When he is a bit older he may scold back at you and become a serious problem. Self-control on the part of parents is the first requisite for good government. Never threaten unless you intend to carry out your decision. Whenever we speak roughly to children we instinctively give them the right to retort in kind.

ON TAKING MEDICINES.

Mrs. H. P. writes: My husband is a persistent taker of medicine. He uses some sort of tablet about every four hours during the day. I know that he is not ill.

REPLY.

Perhaps the drug is needed, but unless there is a specific indication for some medicine no one should take a dose of anything. Not infrequently people who are well desire to be better. They are not satisfied with good health, hence they resort to doping with various popularized drugs, for example, alkalis. As a result some of these persons will be obliged to visit a physician sooner or later.

TOO MUCH ACID.

J. D. writes: What causes heartburn after eating?

REPLY.

The usual cause is too much acid in the gastric juice. It is relieved temporarily by taking bicarbonate of soda.

When it is habitual, the diet should be modified in favor of easily digested food containing considerable protein [meat].

NERVOUS REACTION.

M. W. writes: The skin on the front of my neck is very sensitive. If I am warm or excited blotches appear. What causes this?

REPLY.

This is a sympathetic nervous reaction which has no effect upon the general health. It may follow fear, apprehension, elation, etc.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

WEYMOUTH, England.—Bell ringers throughout Dorset are threatening revolt against the installation of gramaphones and amplifiers in the church belfries to replace ancient bells. Strong objection is raised to "synthetic" peals.

The first church in the country to have such an installation is St. John's, Weymouth, where, it is stated, this is a temporary measure pending the decision of the church council in the matter.

The vicar of St. John's, the Rev. F. E. Coryton, said: "Most of the parishioners appear to like it, but I am prepared for opposition. There were some people who were against the motorcar, the aeroplane, and even the radio, but it is our duty to move with the times."

A protest is being sent to the bishop, Dr. E. N. Lovett, by the Dorset branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild of Ringers.

"The provision of a gramaphone in church," said C. H. Jennings, the guild secretary, "is a deplorable means of escaping a liability which properly belongs to a church and a trust which has come down to us through generations. We are calling a meeting to register our protest."

"My feeling is against these mechanical contrivances in churches," said the Rev. A. W. Markby, president of the guild, and rector of St. Peter's, Dorchester, which has one of the finest peals in the west of England.

The Rev. A. S. Bryant, rector of Upwey, near Weymouth, himself a bell ringer, said: "Our church bells are among the glories of England. Personally I had no difficulty in raising money to put our bells in order, and at my old parish in Westbury I once raised $10,000 for a new peal."

Meanwhile dozens of belfries in the diocese are silent because the bells are out of order, and no money is available to have them recast or retuned.

LONDON.—Scotland Yard and provincial police departments are coöperating in a nation-wide purge of country gambling dens. Masked behind outwardly quiet hotels and unpretentious inns, roadside houses have sprung up like mushrooms. Usually they are in secluded byways off main roads, but within easy reach of London and other big towns.

Many are said to be run by aliens who have smuggled themselves back into Britain after deportation. Black sheep and playboy sons of titled families, hard up socialites and pensioned army and navy officers also are reported to be interested in the shady entertainment racket which police have set out to clean up.

Wealthy professional and business men and their young women companions are said to be the main patrons of these dens. Each roadhouse has its own clientele, according to Scotland Yard. Only customers personally known or vouched for by personal introduction are admitted to the gambling rooms, where roulette, baccarat, and poker are played for rocketing stakes.

Thousands of dollars change hands nightly. Once prosperous business men in the English Midlands are reported to have been ruined by a group of gaming house owners around the Leicester-Birmingham-Wolverhampton area, center of Britain's industrial district.

A gang of foreign criminals, suspected of being concerned in the roadhouse gambling rackets, was recognized recently in the west end, the center of London's night life. Detectives from Scotland Yard's special branch, whose duty it is to keep a tag on unwanted aliens, have been sent to Harwich to investigate the entry into Britain since Christmas of at least twenty people believed to have been forbidden to come here on the ground that they are dangerous criminals.

One favorite dodge of deportees who want to get back into England is to sign as ships' stewards or deck hands, with forged papers, and slip ashore when the ship reaches port.

LEGALITY OF WILL.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An elderly person living alone in Chicago has made a will and in this document has named a Chicago bank as [1] administrator.

2. If this person should pass away suddenly could another party step in and be appointed administrator or executor, notwithstanding the administrator named in the will?

3. Would the fact that this elderly person has, since making the will, been declared incompetent make any difference? The bank named as administrator has the will.

4. I have been told that an attorney could step in immediately upon the death of this person and have another appointed administrator. S. F.

1. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor.

2. In general, no.

3. The question is whether he was mentally competent at the time of making the will. The subsequent adjudication would increase the probability that the will might be set aside.

4. Depends on all of the proof.

WAGE ASSIGNMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A has a wage assignment signed by B in Michigan eight years ago.

2. B is living in Chicago now.

3. Can A collect from B through collection agency system [A is in Michigan], or [4] is an eight year old assignment no good legally? M. F.

1. The Michigan limitation period on written contracts is six years, but in general, the statute of limitations does not run while the debtor is absent from the state.

2. The Illinois period is ten years, hence it does not clearly appear that the statute of limitations has run in either state.

3. Apparently you can.

4. If the debtor has changed his employment, then because of this fact, rather than because of the lapse of time, the assignment as such would be invalid, but this does not mean that the debt would be barred as far as other methods of collection are concerned.

ALIENS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Here is a reply to Reginald Greenville's letter of Feb. 1:

Yes, there are about 13,000,000 persons of foreign birth in this country, most of whom are workers. Many of these came here at a time when America called for workers. They reported ready for work, rolled their sleeves and went to it. They worked harder than they had ever done.

They had not gone to school much. It was hard to learn the new language well. Slurs were cast upon them by the native-born. They had to create their own social life. This tended to keep them still more clannish. For many there were insurmountable obstacles in the way of naturalization.

Technically many are not citizens, but all in all they have naturalized themselves in their own crude way. They have inscribed indelibly their names in mines and mills and factories, in that great register of economic life. They carved their names with the heavy tools they wielded in their strong hands.

They came here to work, and they have earned their keep. There is room for us all at the American table. Some, like R. G., would deny them even crums of charity after they have helped to harvest and bake, when they are entitled to a full meal. Indeed, it would be very unbecoming to let people starve and freeze when there is enough to go to waste or be wilfully destroyed, plowed under, etc.

I like Lincoln's definition of the citizenry. He said that the people who live in this country are its citizens. P. M.

AN ALIEN GETS A JOB.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—I noticed in the sporting section this morning a picture of one Heinz Krassau who, according to report, came to this country five weeks ago and at present is employed. He intends to enter the Golden Gloves tournament.

It seems to me that our immigration laws need tightening considerably so as to prevent aliens coming to America to accept positions when we have literally thousands of local men who are out of employment. In fact, it might help local employment if all local business organizations would employ local boys.

VETERANS AND RELIEF.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Time and time again I have noted the wailings of a Mr. Edward J. Finan about the "unfair" treatment which world war veterans are receiving.

When Uncle Sam paid the veterans their bonus, he paid them in full for their services and many of them more than full. I have in mind those who never saw the war front and those who went believing it was going to be only fun and glory and prestige with their sweethearts, but who fooled themselves in those respects.

If there is a disproportionate percentage of veterans who need relief or employment, it is due only to their disproportionate inefficiency as workers. Some of them seem to think that not only the government, but also private industry, owes them a living just because they are veterans and regardless of how they perform their work. J. W. BELLINGER.

ON THE SOLICITING OF INSURANCE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—I realize that insurance is a fine thing, but I am desirous of starting a movement to keep insurance sales in the insurance office. Let the companies advertise their proposition, invite your interest, and pattern their offices after those of most legitimate businesses.

I object to the mass operations of the usually incompetent insurance peddlers. I want to send my son to college and spend my declining years in more comfortable surroundings than those provided by the county poorhouse; but, I want to respond to the joyous meeting of an old friend or the cordiality of a new acquaintance without fear of leaving myself open to a discussion of the advisability of increasing my insurance.

This new movement will work for an eight hour day for insurance sales and oppose the present abuses of the twenty-four hour open season for unsuspecting citizens who have more insurance now than they can pay for conveniently.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—It is, perhaps, a bit early, but my nomination for New Deal presidential candidate for 1940 is none other than Andy Gump. Mr. Gump is a planner of the first water and his plans are quite on a par with the New Deal product that we have become accustomed to, and he can originate a new one daily. So, here's for Andrew Gump for President.

Mr. Gump's platform will be higher wages and lower costs, and he is already looking about for an economist with a sympathetic mind to figure that out for the folks. It will be a whiz as a vote getter. W. F. H.

LIKE A BABY IN THE BATHTUB.

Mount Prospect, Ill., Jan. 27.—Concerning your editorial, "The Cart Before the Horse," let me say that I have been confidently waiting for years for the sensible man that would bring out a car with the driver in front and the motor in back or somewhere else, only not in front of the driver. The most sensible things are sometimes not done for a long time. AUTO HITS TWO ON SIDEWALK; 1 FATALLY INJURED

Two Cars Collide and One Swerves Off Street.

Two Indiana farmers were injured, one fatally, when they were pinned against a trolley pole by an automobile which had collided with another car at 64th street and South Parkway yesterday.

Samuel T. Rasor, 61 years old, Route 2, Valparaiso, Ind., was dead when he reached Woodlawn hospital. His companion, Grant Daniels, 37 years old, also of Valparaiso, was critically injured. On their way to the stockyards in Rasor's truck, they had stopped at a restaurant and had just emerged when the accident happened.

The car which struck them was driven by Walter Woods, 27 years old, 6251 Rhodes avenue, who had been driving north with his mother, Anna. Woods' car collided with one driven by Harry Bekedam, 45 years old, 6340 St. Lawrence avenue, and was pushed up on the sidewalk.

Victim of Odd Accident.

Valenty Abramowicz, 57 years old, 8257 Brandon avenue, died last night in the Jackson Park hospital, the victim of an odd accident on Jan. 2. He was wheeling a long plank on a cart near his home when a car struck one end of the plank, swirling the other end against him. Abramowicz did not seem to be hurt and the driver left. Yesterday Abramowicz collapsed and was taken to the hospital.

Another accident occurred early yesterday on the Outer drive at Lawrence avenue. A park police squad car struck a car driven by Theodore Fett, 19 years old, 1633 North Mango avenue, who veered too far out into the drive as he drove from the ramp, police said.

A second squad car arrived on the scene, parking behind the two vehicles. Flares were set around the three cars to warn other motorists. But Harold Jacobs, 29 years old, 6334 Sheridan road, a theater manager, crashed his car into the last in line, causing all of them to collide.

One Seriously Injured.

Jacobs, who was seriously injured, was charged with disorderly conduct. Fett, who was cut, was charged with reckless driving, driving without lights, and driving without license plates. Sergt. Thomas Roche and Policeman Ernest Lee were also slightly injured.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 107 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 87 were killed in Chicago, where 1,634 were injured in trafic accidents in the same period.

DESERTS MARINE CORPS FOR FUN AND LUXURY; HELD AS HOTEL BANDIT

Robert J. Marienthal.

Robert J. Marienthal, 19 years old, who deserted from the marine corps a month ago and turned robber because he wanted "fun, luxury, and clothes," was held by Central police yesterday.

He was captured early yesterday at the La Salle hotel after he had robbed a guest, Roger Blackmer, Worcester, Mass., of $3. He also admitted, police said, that he robbed a party of fourteen at the Palmer house about three weeks ago and a guest at the Stevens hotel shortly after that.

Marienthal told police he lived in Baltimore, Md., and joined the marines at Quantico, Va., Dec. 12, 1936. He was armed when captured by Michael McCracken, an elevator boy, and Philip Ryan, hotel detective.

ATTACK LEGALITY OF DRUNKOMETER TEST IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.] With filing of a motion for a new trial for Mrs. Florence Simmons Davis, convicted hit and run driver, steps were taken today to obtain an Indiana Supreme court test on legality of use of the newly developed drunkometer in drunk driving cases.

Clyde P. Miller, attorney for Mrs. Davis, argued the court erred in permitting testimony to go before the jury of a drunkometer test made on the defendant a short time after her arrest last June, following an accident in which a 14 month old baby was killed.

Miller argued drunkometer evidence was inadmissible because it had not been recognized by the courts. He also contended the test was made forcibly, thus putting the defendant in the position of testifying against herself. Police testified they had to hold Mrs. Davis while the test was being made.

Ex-Alderman of Waukegan Accused of Drunk Driving

Arthur Holm, a former Waukegan alderman, was booked in Waukegan this morning on charges of driving while drunk, causing an accident, and driving on the wrong side of the street as the result of driving his car into that of Bernard Wolfe of Zion at Belvidere street and McAlister avenue, Waukegan. Holm is 59 years old and lives at 142 McKinley avenue, Waukegan. He will be arraigned next Friday.

FATHER SENTENCED TO FARM.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Raymond Benson, 42 years old, father of five children, was ordered today to be removed to the state penal farm for 110 days for stealing coal. He had failed to carry out an agreement made with Judge Clifford O. Wild to leave Logansport.

DRIVERS SAFER, BRAUDE SAYS AS PENALTIES DROP

Severe penalties for drunken and reckless driving were fewer last month than at any time during the last five months, which may indicate that the motoring public is becoming safety conscious. Judge J. M. Braude made this observation in Safety court yesterday as he sentenced four drivers to jail, fined two, and deprived seven of driving privileges.

Defendants jailed yesterday were:

JOHN KAUFMANN, Lake Geneva, Wis., sentenced to fifteen days in county jail and suspended from driving for ninety days for reckless driving.

JACK TEMPLE, 2322 North Halsted street, ten days in jail and ordered not to drive for six months for drunken driving.

JOHN SHERWOOD, colored, 5838 Sauth Park way, ten days in jail and deprived of use of car for six months for drunken driving.

RUBEN SCHIEBEL, 330 North Hamlin avenue, ten days in jail and suspended from driving for six months for reckless driving.

In addition, Herbert L. Tracks of the Weasel

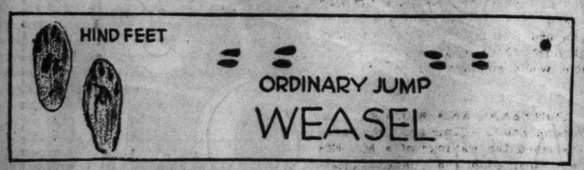
February 4, 1938.

ALTHOUGH the smallest of flesh eating animals in Chicagoland, the weasel is in some respects the most interesting of the fur bearers. It is carnivorous, ferocious, and has a large amount of nerve. When it changes its brown summer fur covering for a white coat in winter it has excellent protective coloration.

The track left by the weasel often confuses the outdoor fan, although it has several distinctive features. The jumps which the animal makes vary in length. If the outdoor fan has trouble in telling the difference between the track of a mink and a weasel these features should be remembered: The mink never travels through the snow without showing at some time or other at least three footprints in the jump picture; the weasel registers four foot marks. The hind foot of an adult male weasel is about 1¾ inches long. That of a mink measures from 2½ to 2¾ inches.



Weasel a Snooper.

Another distinguishing feature of the weasel snow tracks is their location and number. A weasel is a snooper. It can't pass a brush pile, a crevice in the rock, a hole in a tree without pausing for an investigation. A large number of snow prints around brush piles or logs indicates the passage of a weasel. A mink will investigate these features by simply passing around them; he will not putter like a weasel. The natural food of a weasel is mice and rats, although he will stalk both hares and rabbits.

These animals will also make raids on poultry yards, but less frequently than the mink. Meadow mice are one of the biggest pests in northern Illinois farms. The weasel destroys large numbers of these each year and thus helps the farmer.

Mice Driven Out.

On one of our hunting trips in Ontario a few years ago we saw how effective a weasel can be in housecleaning a mice infested cabin. It was very cold, with heavy snow on the ground. Our cabin was so overrun with mice that some nights we could hardly sleep. One cold night when the mice were very active a weasel entered the cabin. Immediately the mice quieted. When we saw what a good policeman the weasel was we hoped he would visit us every night. The animal did return a number of times and on each visit routed the mice. During these visits we would turn our flashlights on the visitor. It was unafraid of us or the light.

All the evidence that has been secured on the food habits of the weasel indicates it is an excellent mouser. If these small but ferocious animals stay in the field and do not raid poultry houses they are able to do effective work in keeping down the number of mice which may be a costly pest on the farm.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

HOME GAS USER TO PAY 30 CENTS MORE A MONTH

Invoke New Rates Today; State to Fight Boost.

Starting today the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company begins charging its customers a higher gas rate—a rate that will raise the monthly bills of 800,000 domestic customers about 30 cents each. This increase, which will be reflected in bills received in about thirty days, is expected to raise the gas company's income $3,000,000 annually. The additional money is to be impounded, however, pending a final ruling by the Illinois Supreme court.

Judge Stanley Klarkowski.

James A. Cunningham, secretary of Peoples Gas, made this announcement yesterday after Judge Stanley Klarkowski entered a permanent injunction restraining the Illinois commerce commission from preventing the boost. James M. Slattery, chairman of the commission, and Harry R. Booth, its attorney, said they will carry an immediate appeal to the Supreme court.

Denies Plea for Rehearing.

Judge Klarkowski issued the decree after denying the commerce commission's petition for a rehearing on the basis of new evidence to support their charge that an increase in rate schedules is unwaranted in view of earnings and property valuation.

This new evidence, Attorney Booth said, is based on the commission's belief that the utility is paying an excessive price for gas purchased from natural gas pipeline companies, with which it is affiliated.

In issuing the injunction Judge Klarkowski followed his decision of Jan. 26 to approve the report of Special Master in Chancery William R. Swissler.

Hold Old Rates Confiscatory.

The present rates, Judge Klarkowski ruled, are confiscatory, producing only a profit of 3.3 per cent. He held the utility is entitled at least to a profit of 6.5 per cent on its property valuation.

Under the new tariffs the company will increase minimum domestic bills from 60 to 90 cents a month and will add 32 cents to the monthly bills of all other domestic csutomers. The average household bill is now $2.07. It is estimated the total increase will amount to 16 per cent.

PLEA TO DISMISS TEACHERS' SUIT IS DENIED BY COURT

Judge Grover C. Niemeyer yesterday refused to dismiss the suit of Dr. Hiram B. Loomis, retired principal of Hyde Park High school, and Russell B. Wise, a high school teacher, which seeks to invalidate the last principal's examinations, from which promotions were made.

The board of education, which asked the dismissal, elected to stand on its answer which alleged that neither of the plaintiffs could show they were injured by the examination grading, which the suit alleges was manipulated. An appeal will be taken to the Appellate court.

700 SUITS FILED FOR SLASHES IN TAX PENALTIES

More than 700 injunction suits have been filed in the Circuit court by taxpayers seeking a reduction in penalties on delinquent real estate taxes under a recent decision of the Illinois Supreme court, Assistant State's Attorney John C. Connery said yesterday.

By injunction a taxpayer may claim exemption from half the penalties accruing from 1928 to 1932, and may also take advantage of reduced rates through revised tax levies for the years 1928 to 1934. These reductions were made in the County court.

Druggan Fails to Prevent Foreclosure Sale of Farm

Terry Druggan, former beer gangster, failed yesterday to take advantage of three days' grace in which to raise $29,745 and as a result a date will be set today for the foreclosure sale of his 240 acre farm near Lake Zurich. The foreclosure came about through an instalment default, making it possible for the mortgage holders to demand immediate payment in full.

DISORDER CHARGES DROPPED.

George R. Scott, 1015 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, and A. D. Metzgar, 2219 Maple avenue, Evanston, were freed of disorderly conduct charges brought by a young woman yesterday in Evanston Municipal court.

BOOKS

Life of Magellan Ably Recreated by Stefan Zweig

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Conqueror of the Seas," by Stefan Zweig. [Viking, $3.50.] Published yesterday. February choice of the Literary Guild.

Magellan, the first man to dream of circumnavigating the globe and to make reality of that dream, is the hero of the latest biography from the pen that wrote the highly detailed and immensely popular life stories of Marie Antoinette and Mary, queen of Scotland.

Magellan's journey across the Atlantic, with its potential and actual horrors; Magellan's long, bitter winter in an icebound bay, harassed by mutiny, by doubt of his own belief in a pass between the eastern and the western oceans, his savoring of the bliss of the moment when another ocean greeted his eyes, his certainty that he was indeed on the other side of the earth, his futile, ironic death, and the aftermath of his dream's fulfillment carry the book through to its climax. In the earlier pages Stefan Zweig describes the obscure days of the common soldier-sailor in the Indies, his repudiation by his Portuguese king and his repudiation of that king, his journey to Spain with his tremendous idea, and the equipment of his fleet.

The crescendo starts with the description of Magellan's meticulous preparation for what was a voyage actually into unknown space. For these pages the author had irrefuted documents; for many of the others, only the most contradictory evidence. Stefan Zweig weighs the evidence before the reader's eyes. But because he is an honest researcher and material was not available he does not embroider his pages with the minutiæ of detail that fill his other biographies.

As sheer fascinating writing "Conqueror of the Seas" does not compare with "Marie Antoinette" [for instance], but as a marshaling of fact and sifting of fancy it is significant.

Waiter's Slant Shown in His Autobiography.

"Coming, Sir!" by Dave Marlowe. [Lippincott, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

From a phenomenal success in England this autobiography of a waiter comes to us. There it was called one of the most extraordinary autobiographies of recent years, and it was awaited with perhaps too gaping mouths by the American public. It isn't that good! But it has a real interest for readers.

Dave Marlowe has been a waiter in England, on trans-Atlantic ships, and in New York, and what he tells about the emotions armored by his white shirt front is quietly illuminating. But what he tells about being a bootlegger during prohibition is excitingly so. As a steward on liners which plied the Atlantic and the near Atlantic, between New York and Bermuda and the assorted Caribbean Islands, he cunningly managed to stow away lucrative cases of liquor which emerged daringly when New York's carefully guarded docks were reached.

Dave Marlowe believes Americans are much pleasanter people to wait on, to work for, and to work with, than his own countrymen. If Mr. Gilbert [of Gilbert and Sullivan] had read "Coming, Sir!" he might have written, instead of what he did:

Taking one consideration with another,
The waiter's lot is not a happy one.

Surgeon's Case Book Rich in Medical Lore.

"Leaves from a Surgeon's Case Book," by James Harpole. [Stokes, $2.75.]

As is evidenced plainly on every page of "Leaves from a Surgeon's Case Book," James Harpole is the nom de plume of an intelligent, sophisticated, delightful conversationalist; of a man who began practice obscurely in England a quarter of a century ago and now is in Harley street; of a man who was with Allenby in Palestine and with wounded and dying soldiers in their extremity; of a man who has seen the quarter century as a pageant of miraculous progress in his field.

"Leaves from a Surgeon's Case Book" is a fascinating addition to the already crowded shelf of almost unerringly interesting books about man's conquest of life and death. Reviewing some of the cases of his twenty-five years of practice, most of which would have had quite a different outcome if they had happened either earlier or later, "Dr. Harpole" gives a startling picture of the progress of medicine and surgery during the lifetime of most of his readers. And he manages to infuse into the book his own delightful personality.

Miracles in Medicine for the Lay Readers.

"Medical Magic," by David Dietz. [Dodd-Mead, $3.50.]

This survey of the recent progress of medicine and surgery is destined for the lay and not the professional reader. It is an interesting collation of facts stated clearly, concisely, and elementally. It presupposes no technical knowledge in the reader, and uses no complicated phrasing. It tells of the miracles of research which have been accomplished within the lifetime of most of us, of the conquest of disease, and outlines wider possibilities of its prevention. It is informative rather than literary.

Josephine Lawrence's New Novel Penetrating.

"Bow Down to Wood and Stone," by Josephine Lawrence. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

With the honesty in searching into human motives that made of "Years Are So Long" and "If I Have Four Apples" memorable as well as popular novels of the tragedy of old age and the inadequacy of the poor to cope with their poverty, Josephine Lawrence has written about the kind of woman who is "so unselfish," and "so good," and "so self-sacrificing" . . . the female martyr!

Here she has done an even more convincing piece of work than she did in her previous novels. She has made her three character sisters, each in her own way terribly and unforgettably real.

The three sisters are one in their creed of self-sacrifice. The eldest gives her life to her employer, and literally has none of her own and lives in futile discomfort. The middle sister is the martyr mother . . . and, incidentally, the revolt of the children in "Bow Down to Wood and Stone" has deeper verities in it [if not more intriguing satire] than the revolt of the Cornplow children in "The Prodigal Parents." The youngest sister has "given her life" to her husband, a doctor, who leaves her dominance eventually.

"Bow Down to Wood and Stone" fictionally questions Mr. Emerson's well known saying that "Self-sacrifice is the real miracle out of which all the reported miracles grew," and substitutes Bernard Shaw's "Self-sacrifice enables us to sacrifice other people without blushing."

Caribbean Lure Colors These 4 Travel Volumes

BY PERCY WOOD.

"West Indian Odyssey," by Charles B. Parmer. [Dodge, $2.75.]
"Circling the Caribbean," by Tom Marvel. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.]
"These Are the Virgin Islands," by Hamilton Cochran. [Prentice-Hall, $3.]
"Crossroads of the Buccaneers," by Hendrik de Leeuw. [Lippincott, $3.]

Any one who can forgo the urge to inquire into steamship or airplane fares to the West Indies after reading these volumes is immune to the lure of travel.

For the tourist who doesn't have much time to prepare himself for his cruise, perhaps the most valuable of these books would be Charles Parmer's "West Indian Odyssey." A lively, up to the minute chapter is devoted to each island, with the historical background compressed into a foreword. Thus the reader, impatient to know just what he will see when he goes ashore at Haiti or Guadeloupe, will find it in the body of the chapter, but should he also care to learn what has gone on there in the last three centuries, the preface will give him the highlights.

Tom Marvel circled the "American Mediterranean" by such assorted conveyances as the Clipper seaplanes, a Jamaica mule, island schooners, and motor buses. It took him two and one-half months, time enough for leisurely explorations, particularly in the shops. Through him you learn what to buy in each island and where to buy it, with particular emphasis on rum, the wine of the Antilles.

While a government official in the Virgin Islands, Hamilton Cochran found time to poke around in the buried treasure lore, a subject which apparently had engrossed him since childhood, as it has almost every one. But few have had his opportunity to satisfy that craving. The result is that "These Are the Virgin Islands" is high in entertainment value, for Cochran listened to every tale of these treasure-conscious isles as well as doing a little digging for doubloons himself. He never found any, but he thinks they're there, and his readers will probably agree and do a little dreaming themselves.

The lighter side has its place in Hendrik de Leeuw's "Crossroads of the Caribbean," but good, solid, informative reading is the rule, although it is by no means dull. The author presents a thorough-going history of the Leeward and Windward Islands as well as an entrancing picture of life in them today. It is hard to imagine a better preparation for those who contemplate the trip with an eye to understanding the present through the experience of the past.

Looking Over Latest Books

Collection of Letters by Winifred Holtby.

"Letters to a Friend," by Winifred Holtby. [Macmillan, $3.50.]

These letters, edited by Alice Holtby and Jean McWilliam, are in a way an autobiography of Winifred Holtby, author of "Mandoa, Mandoa" and "South Riding," who died in 1935 at the age of 37. They are all addressed to a friend she called Rosalind, and tell the story of her life in England after the world war, in which she and the recipient of the letters served as members of the woman's army auxiliary corps in France.

Winifred Holtby, returning home, spent part of her time with her family in the country and part with Vera Brittain, who had been her friend at Oxford, in London. Both devoted themselves to writing and Miss Holtby became interested in the league of nations and in working for peace, lecturing both in England and on the continent.

Her letters reveal her as a vital, hearty, straightforward woman with immense energies and widely varied interests. Unlike many writers, she liked a well cared for, comfortable life, but one filled with activities, enjoyment, and warm appreciation for her friends. This book is an endearing tribute to her memory. An Unusual Humorist Is Dug from History.

"John Phoenix, the Veritable Squibob," by George S. Stewart Jr. [Holt, $2.50.]

Could an army officer attain a national reputation as a wit the caliber of Mark Twain? You might think not. Yet in the 1850s and for a few years later Capt. George H. Derby, U. S. A., was known for his humor from coast to coast and even in Europe.

Today there are few who have ever heard his name or the pseudonyms under which he wrote in California, John Phoenix and Squibob, the tag his classmates hung on him at West Point. After years of patient and interested research, George S. Stewart Jr. has written his life, his dual life, as a rising young army officer and as a humorist given to pungent satire, superior puns, unexpected homespun wit, and rollicking practical jokes.

Long forgotten and often dismissed briefly by the few pedants who have come across his works, Capt. Derby comes into belated historical recognition with Mr. Stewart's work, which should remain definitive. J. H. T.

Della Lutes Serves Up Another Savory Feast.

"Home Grown," by Della T. Lutes. [Little-Brown, $1.75.]

Readers of Della Lutes' "Country Kitchen" will be prepared for another feast in this second collection of her ruminations on the good things that graced the table of her Michigan farm home half a century ago. Living was on a lavish scale in those days; pies and cakes were part of the bountiful fare at every meal, and savory dishes swam in the goodness of butter and cream. Even the recreations of the neighborhood were chiefly gastronomical — she serves up tempting accounts of strawberry festivals and oyster suppers and wedding feasts. Her essays, with their nostalgic charm and their practical recipes, are helping to restore domestic cooking to the high estate from which it has fallen. R. P. MacF.

Presents a New View of Oliver Cromwell.

"Oliver Cromwell," by Mary Taylor Blauvelt. [Putnam's, $3.50.]

There probably are as many Cromwells afloat on the book marts of the world as there are Napoleons. This latest one is among the better of them. The theme is the tragedy of Cromwell's reluctant dictatorship. The keynote is found in his own words: "That which you have by force, I look upon as nothing."

But dictator he was, forcing England to a religious tolerance for which it was not ready. The narrative follows its theme with clarity and logic. It presents a rather different view of the lord proctor, illustrating the biographical axiom that figures of history must be appraised differently for the changing views of each succeeding generation.

Mary Taylor Blauvelt, who spent several years at research in England in preparation of this Cromwell, was at one time instructor of history at Rockford college. C. L.

A novel of Chicago in the '90's
by the author of WAKE UP AND LIVE

My Invincible Aunt by DOROTHEA BRANDE

"Luscious satire on all the cult and cosmetic practices in the world. It is also the story of the adolescence and growing up of a sensitive girl, torn between shame of sham and love for her courageous, invincible little aunt. And it relives a period . . . Chicago in the '90's, and there is vitality in that background, and delicious detail."—FANNY BUTCHER, Chicago Tribune.

MUSIC and polo devotees will be driving south tonight, but they will have different destinations. The Yale visitors, C. Mott Woolley, who is a nephew of Mrs. Herbert E. Hyde; Kenneth M. Schiffer, Alan L. Corey Jr., and William Chisholm [alternate on the team], will be given a luncheon today by the Chicago Yale club at the Chicago club, and tonight they will dine with Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Mrs. F. S. Coolidge Sponsors Concerts.

The concert in Mandel hall will be the first of four that Mrs. Frederick S. Coolidge has arranged for the Belgian quartet to give at the university. The others will be given next Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. Mrs. Coolidge has come from her home in the east for the series and is staying at the Auditorium hotel. Her many old friends here will keep her busy, for not only are they devoted to her but they are grateful to her for the many splendid things she has done for Chicago in a musical way, and they always show their appreciation by wanting to entertain her morning, noon, and night when she is here.

Tonight the university and its music department are giving a dinner for Mrs. Coolidge and the quartet at the Quadrangle club. Next Friday night the university will hold a reception for Mrs. Coolidge in the Reynolds club, adjacent to Mandel hall, following the final concert.

The senior and junior girls' fancy skating championships will be next on the program, followed by a special skating exhibition by Douglas Blossom. Then will come racing events, and then the club's traditional chariot race. Three teams of brothers will pull the competing chariots, Tom and Henry Connors, Agar and David Jaicks, and Kenneth and Scotty Welles. Laurence B. Robbins is chairman of the ice committee.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Reviewing Stand

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 4.—Al Jolson's radio comeback is the talk of the industry. Jolson, accepted by all professionals of the musical comedy and vaudeville stage as the No. 1 man, finally has mastered the radio technique, and today, at 53, he is on the threshold of a new career.

Al Jolson clicks in radio.

His program is the only radio show that gives you the backstage atmosphere of the old Winter Garden. . . . Agents, song writers, script writers are clustered behind the scenes just as they used to cluster in his dressing room.

Jolson fights with all of them, argues this point and that, works himself up to a nervous frenzy, and then, at the signal, walks smilingly out to the broadcast rostrum and "gives." . . . It is the only way he can work, as a result of his stage training.

Jolson appeared one night on the Burns and Allen program. Every one greeted him pleasantly. He made some suggestion about changing a line in the script and they hurried to correct it for him. There was no hurry, no tension—just a polished and workmanlike broadcast. When it was over Jolson said to George Burns: "It was a swell broadcast, George, but I never had such a dull time in my life. I've got to have noise and excitement." . . . And he wasn't clowning.

No performer in our time tasted so much of the sweets of success as Jolson. He was a great entertainer, a great showman. It was nothing unusual for him to stay on a stage, by himself, for 45 minutes at a clip and keep an audience so engrossed in his songs and stories that they didn't care whether the rest of the show appeared or not. He was, to popular show business, what Dempsey was to the ring or Babe Ruth to baseball or Jones to golf.

At 53 he has clicked on the radio, and the Crosley report shows him on the heels of the leaders. Show business offers nothing to match this career.

"Test Pilot," with Gable, Myrna Loy, and Spencer Tracy, should offer a conclusive test of the movie market, because that trio figure to get all the money in sight.

Newsboys out here, on rainy days, deliver papers that are cellophane covered. . . . Wire congrats to Al Rosen, Loew's State theater manager, in New York. . . . It's his fifth anniversary there as house manager, and he's done a remarkable job in keeping vaudeville alive. . . . Under his direction Loew's State now rivals England's Palladium as a vaude house.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's greatest thrill in racing was at Narragansett when his Discovery almost got up to beat Rosemont. . . . "It was impossible to make Discovery run any race but the one he preferred. He got off slowly and the race was almost done when he started charging. I'll never forget the excitement as he tore around the last turn, hellbent for election. He just failed to get up to Rosemont at the wire."

"Bad Man of Brimstone," which gave M.-G.-M. execs a bad case of jitters when they saw the preview, is cleaning up at the boxoffice. . . . A nice honeymoon present for J. Walter Ruben, who directed it, and Virginia Bruce, who emoted in it.

The public apparently wants the movies to go back to the old formula of excitement and motion. . . . They want the cinema makers to come out of hiding in drawing rooms and salons.

After five months of the most amazing weather this reporter ever has experienced, it has started raining out here. . . . It is coming down in bucketfuls, the way it rains in the east in the spring. . . . But somebody is always taking the fun out of life. . . . Government experts have punctured the old legend of the groundhog, saying that the groundhog doesn't come out of his hole on Feb. 2 to look at his shadow.

New York reporters who insist that Walt Disney will not make another feature length flicker for five years will be hurt to learn that "Bambi" is already in work. . . . It will be released as a full lengther about Christmas, as a result of the terrific grosses rolled up by the "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Groucho Marx's comment on a famous Hollywood author: "I knew him before he had a plot to cook in." . . . Jean Arthur insists that money never has entered into her argument with Harry Cohn at Columbia; that the row has been about the number of pictures and the QUALITY of them.

Went down to the Pacific ocean at Long Beach the other day to see the Pacific fleet, thinking the men of war would be lined up as they are when anchored in the Hudson river. . . . It was raining and the 25 mile trip wasn't too pleasant. . . . Finally I got there. . . . Far at sea I could make out the gray superstructures of the Pacific fleet, but as a preview it was a flop.

After all the battling, Paulette Goddard joins Dave Selznick and she's a cinch for "Gone with the Wind." I think David pulled a smart publicity stunt on the boys.

Methodism to Shift Gears to Race New Age

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The whole gamut of church interest was run yesterday at the second day of the United Methodist council, in sessions at the Stevens hotel, with the view of tuning religion to the new age. Following inspirational sessions the 4,000 delegates divided into a dozen functional groups to study their jobs and to improve their service.

The district superintendents—assistants to bishops—determined on a nation-wide program including spiritual retreats for pastors and their wives and set goals for increased church membership. Out of 375 superintendents in the whole church nearly 300 were present. In the superintendents' report to the council's committee on action, to which each of the dozen groups reported, they declared that the problem of declining church membership would be solved.

"It was reported that during the last ten years there have been but two gains in the statistical tables of the church," the superintendent's summary stated. "These were a 4 per cent increase in debts and a 62 per cent increase in the inactive membership list of the church. Since 1922 there has been a constant decline in the number of church schools. This decline, amounting to 3,112 church schools, has taken place during the period in which population increased 18 per cent."

To meet these problems the superintendents adopted a uniform program.

The youth section of the council was attended by Bob Feller, sensational young Cleveland Indian baseball pitcher of Van Meter, Ia. The youthful speed baller is attending the council with his young pastor, the Rev. Charles Fix, who said that Bob had missed church only three times since his return to Van Meter last October.

"If all the members of my church were as regular as Bob, I wouldn't have anything to worry about," said the Rev. Mr. Fix.

The youths, who had previously heard a rousing "Onward, Christian Soldier" address by Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals' baseball club, adopted a platform based on need of freedom of expression and action for all people, asking that youth face threats against freedom with realism.

"But to do this we must develop spiritual techniques for tapping sources of power," the youths declared. "These include Bible reading as a laboratory manual, small groups sharing fellowship, exploration and mutual support, regular practice of personal devotions, and a constant study of changing social conditions and needs."

The women's section adopted a program to bring the use of the Bible back into homes and to make the home a center of evangelistic effort.

The board of bishops yesterday appointed Bishop Herbert Welch, retired, to fill the unexpired term of the late Bishop Charles W. Burns as head of the Boston area. Bishop Welch lives in New York. He formerly was head of the Philadelphia area.

Good Morning!

Young Douglas Fairbanks has turned out to be his agile papa's own boy!

He can leap; he can bound. And he can make love like nobody's business. [Though any man, unless he possess a heart of stone, SHOULD be able to make love enthusiastically to Miss Valerie Hobson! Because she's a charmer—no less.]

The two thieves indicated by the title are Mr. Fairbanks and Alan Hale.

When a mere boy—in the prohibition era—Ricky Morgan, at loss for other work, abets Jim Dial—an all around bad egg—in a rum running venture. . . . Later Ricky wants to break away, BUT—the death of an associate, killed in a fight, supposedly by Ricky, whose smashing fist had worn a heavy ring, settles that. For Dial has no notion of letting the boy escape and, possibly, squeal to the police.

Jim keeps the ring, part of its broken setting being in the possession of the police, as security for Ricky's services. . . . This piece of jewelry plays an important part in subsequent episodes. . . . It figures in Ricky's romance with Glory Howard—and in a murder trial.

Part of the action takes place in America; part overseas. And the film is an actionful one!

The first part is really good entertainment. The latter episodes drag out and are somewhat incoherent. . . . However—

The excellent work of the co-stars, a fine supporting cast, and Miss Hobson's beauty and charm, go a long way toward making up for deficiencies in story and direction.

See you tomorrow.

The Housewife

Don't let your dog go dirty and all forlorn just because it's too cold to wash him. There is a grand dry cleaner you can use neatly and easily and that will tide him over until warmer weather. You dust this cleaner through his coat. It deodorizes as it cleans, and it will make the dog lots more comfortable than he is when he's allowed to go about with that soiled and shopworn look.

Next time you do use soap try an excellent product we saw the other day, that oils, cleans, grooms, and deodorizes all at once. It will rid him of fleas, too, if he has any. And it prevents his hide from getting dry and itchy.

Marjorie Leach Is Bride

The wedding of Miss Marjorie Isabel Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Leach of Evanston, to William Edgar McKinney, son of Charles Henry McKinney of Phoenix, Ariz., took place last night at the Leach home. The Rev. Paul Austin Wolfe of the Evanston Presbyterian church read the service. Mr. McKinney and his bride have left for a wedding trip to Phoenix and California.

Lupe Velez and Pinta Stop in Chicago En Route East

Lupe Velez, Mexican film star, and Pinta, her pet Chihuahua, stopped in Chicago yesterday en route from Los Angeles to New York. Miss Velez recently completed the film "La Sandunga," produced in Mexico. She is going to New York to play the leading rôle in the stage play "By Candlelight."

Potter Palmer Temporary Director of Art Institute

Potter Palmer, president of the Art Institute of Chicago, was elected director pro tem of the institute yesterday by the executive committee, acting for the trustees. He will personally assume charge of all departments. Mr. Palmer will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Robert B. Harshe until a permanent director is selected.

Snooded Hats Win Approval in Record Time

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Snooded hats have taken the fancy of the hat collectors in record time. Whether you are hunting the large creations or the snappy small affairs to see you through a midseason sag of spirits, you will find the snoods because they come in all sizes. What the snoods achieve in the way of keeping you smooth and well groomed is well nigh magic.

You can find slick collections of small berets with the snood attachments. These have price marks around five dollars. The berets are small and young looking, with the fat rolled edgeline; the fabric is a soft felt that is good for in-between weather. And the snoods, in contrasting or harmonizing color, are gathered into a half inch grosgrain ribbon to use as an anchor band.

These hats are ideal for street clothes, tweeds, suits, and ensembles of topcoats with either printed dresses or high colored wool two piece suits. They are good with all the new pleated skirts and dresses made entirely with pleats.

The week's daffiest find goes to costume jewelry. The gadget—green or red peppers dangling on a thin gold metal chain. But it is not half as funny as it sounds. This is good looking stuff for dark clothes, and not expensive either. Pansy clips also have appeared, designed by that always-trick-up-her-sleeve, Schiaparelli. Velvety petals of the pansy are set on gold metal for contrast. The lapel clips are by far the best of the doodads.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Even perfectly normal hair loses much of the vital natural oil necessary for sheen, softness and health when it's subjected to the permanent wave process. Which doesn't mean that the permanent wave process isn't as perfect as it should be. It is . . . certainly it's as perfect as brains can make it.

But you can't expect something for nothing. If you are going to have curls in your straight hair you're going to pay for it—and not only in money. When you put curls in you're taking oil out, and the derth of oil will be greater if your hair is naturally inclined to dryness.

A good system is to test hair before AND after a wave to find what and how much of natural oils are missing. If the hair is just plain dry [and bad risk that is, for a permanent] there is a preparatory treatment in which an oil, slightly warmed, is either brushed in or steamed in. If your hair is dry you know how oil-thirsty it can be. If the condition is excessive the oil treatment is given after the permanent as well as before it.

Hair is as variable as human nature—and that is one of the first things we women who want curly hair in defiance of what nature handed us should mark well. The permanent that was a terrific success for the neighbor next door may be poisonous for you—and you can't blame the shop, the operator or the process. It's just one of those things.

If hair has been dyed, bleached or has a history of unsuccessful permanents be especially choosy about waves. Patronize a shop where careful tests are made, where preparatory steps that suit individual needs are taken, where the shampoo is as it should be and the wave is chosen not by you but by the operator who knows what it's all about.

But remember above all that the preliminary treatments go a long way in determining the success of the wave.

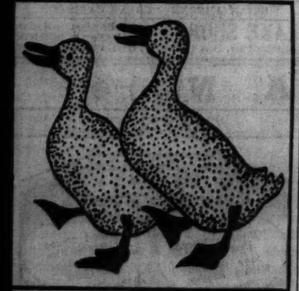
Pair of Ducklings Struts in Quilt for Baby's Crib



A Pair of Ducklings.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Marching sedately off the ark, these bright young ducks are headed straight for some lucky baby's crib quilt. This "Pair of Ducklings" struts along without a care in the world, and may be applied to a quilt block without any great effort. Six applique blocks and six plain ones are set together in an alternate arrangement. For variety the ducks may be reversed for the two center applique blocks. A four inch border and a one-half inch bias binding complete the quilt, which measures 38 by 48 inches. The bright gleaming eyes may be embroidered in silk or appliqued, and the beaks must be done in a vivid orange shade.

Marjorie Le Boutillier and Stuart Iglehart, Polo Enthusiasts, Wed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Westbury, N. Y., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—There was none of your gleaming white satin and old family lace for the wedding today of Marjorie Stevenson Le Boutillier, polo playing heiress, and Stuart Birrell Iglehart. Miss Le Boutillier wore a suit of printed silk with a fuchsia pattern on a black background and short matching jacket trimmed with fuchsia suede edging. Her small hat was of fuchsia feathers.

The marriage took place in the drawing room of the Le Boutillier house in Westbury, with only members of the immediate families present.

Afterward a few of their close friends came in for the reception, following which the newlyweds left for the polo matches in Pasadena.

The marriage is of particular interest to Long Island polo enthusiasts. Miss Le Boutillier is captain of the eastern women's polo team and her bridegroom is one of the only two ten goal polo players in the country.

The wedding cake was decorated with two figures on polo ponies. The floral decorations of the house were kept as much as possible in the Meadow Brook club colors—blue and yellow.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Le Boutillier II. The bridegroom is a son of D. Stewart Iglehart and the late Mrs. Iglehart.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

[Copyright 1938: By Frederick Dilley Glidden.]

SYNOPSIS.

Poco St. Vrain arrives in the western town of Christian City, escaping a pursuing troop of cavalry. There Two-Way Hornbeck approaches him with a scheme. Abe McCandless, who framed Poco and made an outlaw of him, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents sent to meet at the mine and bring down the gold are murdered by two different bands of outlaws. Two-Way persuades Poco to pose as one of the agents, Jake Finger, whose papers he has, and get the gold. At the mountain camp Poco finds Erpey Cardowan, killer gunman, posing as the other agent. They dare not give each other away to Shayne, the mine manager, and his lovely daughter, Kate. On their way down the mountain with the gold Cardowan crowds Poco off the cliff and leaves him for dead. Then Cardowan joins forces with Two-Way. They double-cross their own men, murder two of them, and take refuge in an army fort, posing as two prospectors pursued by Poco St. Vrain. Meanwhile Kate helps rescue Poco from the bottom of the cliff. He confesses his real identity. Poco insists he will recover the gold to save her father from blame. In Silveon Abe McCandless orders his men to arrest Poco.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

UNDER ARREST.

Poco smiled at her. The drinks came, and Steamboat took the whisky. "I haven't touched it since you told me to lay off."

"Good. Touch it now. You don't see the old man often."

"How about yourself? Is beer a drink to celebrate with?"

Poco's face shadowed a little. "No, some other time."

Steamboat laid her untouched drink on the table. "Trouble coming?"

Poco shook his head and raised his beer to her and drank. "No trouble," he said slowly. "Just a nuisance."

"A woman, isn't it?" Steamboat said, looking him levelly in the eye.

"Sure," Poco agreed readily. "It's always a woman."

"Does she like you?"

"She'd like to poison me," Poco said quietly.

Steamboat nodded wisely. "Then it's love. Are you going to marry her?"

"Not if I can help it."

"You will if she can." She raised a hand to smother any objections he might make. "Do you love her?"

Poco drew marks on the table with the water from the glass bottom. "Love her?" he drawled slowly. "Why, I love you, Steamboat."

"Do you love her?" Steamboat persisted.

Poco looked up at her. "No," he said coldly. "I made her a promise once because I got her in a jam. I'm keeping my word."

A man entered the saloon then, one of McCandless' men. He looked around, saw Poco, then ordered a drink at the bar.

"Sit tight," Poco said softly, and rose. He strolled up to the head of the room, pausing at a poker table at which a houseman and a stranger were matching half dollars and cutting cards.

"That's a game," Poco said. "Is it open?"

The stranger looked up at him. He was a solid, middle aged man, dressed in worn and clean levis and blue shirt. Poco liked his face. He gestured to a chair and said, "Sit down."

When another McCandless man came in, Poco saw him, too. He watched covertly while the second man joined the first at the bar. Poco looked down the long room to the back door, and he saw three other men seated at a rear table. They had the sallow appearance of townsmen.

Hogan, the sherif, came in next. Poco took one look at him and asked the houseman, "That the law?"

The houseman looked and said it was. The stranger nodded, too. When McCandless came in and went up to the bar, Poco tilted back in his chair and jingled the stack of half dollars in his hand.

"Mac."

McCandless turned.

"Get out!" Poco drawled.

McCandless looked at the sherif and nodded. The sherif turned and started over to Poco and Poco slid out of his chair. "Stand still, lawman," Poco said softly, and Hogan stopped in his tracks.

Poco spoke to Mac. "I know what this is, Mac. Get out!"

The four McCandless hands, their backs to the bar, did not make a move for a gun. McCandless glared at them with quiet fury.

"I won't say it again," Poco said levelly.

Cursing under his breath, his face black with anger, McCandless turned and went out.

Poco's mild gaze settled on Hogan. "This an arrest, lawman?"

Hogan only gulped and nodded weakly.

"Do you need an army to tell it to me?" Poco asked him. "What's the charge?"

"That eleven year old murder," Hogan said huskily, wetting his lips. "Understand, St. Vrain, I didn't have nothing to do with this. I'm only an agent of the taxpayers."

"Taxpayer," Poco corrected mildly. He glanced over the McCandless men, who had their hands ostentatiously away from their guns.

Poco turned to Hogan. "Well, here I am."

"You—you give up?" Hogan asked.

Poco yawned. "Sure, I give up."

Hogan said to the houseman, "Fisher, get his gun."

"Go to hell," Fisher said, backing against the wall.

"You, stranger," Hogan said. "Flip it out on the table."

"This is your party," the stranger drawled, smiling a little.

Hogan's face was set and white. "All right, St. Vrain. Take your gun out and lay it on the table. Remember, I never drew a gun on you. I'm just asking you to."

Poco flipped out his gun on the table. Hogan was a little more brave now. He slapped Poco's pockets, his shirt pockets, felt his sleeves, felt his wrist and his thighs. Satisfied, he said, "Give me your word you won't make a break for it and I won't put the cuffs on you."

"Sure," Poco said, and he put his hands down.

Poco stepped through the door ahead of the sherif. Out in the bright glare of the still afternoon McCandless stood alone in the middle of the road, his legs spread a little, facing the saloon.

Poco slowed down, then stopped. Hogan came up beside him and stopped, too, eying McCandless.

McCandless said to Poco, "Now beg, St. Vrain."

Poco laughed. It was a soft, warm chuckle, barely audible in that hanging silence, but it carried an undertone of jeering amusement and mockery as it died.

"All right," Big Abe said huskily.

"You'll get hurt," Poco warned him quickly, but Big Abe's elbow was already brushing his coat open so he could reach his gun. And Poco, too, was already moving.

He was standing beside Hogan, shoulder to shoulder, and his right hand streaked down, fingers twisted outward. From Hogan's own hip and holster there was a shuttling sunflash and Poco had the gun out, up, and was already stepping forward as his elbow locked, half crossed, and the gun roared. McCandless' gun, half drawn, blasted out through the bottom of the holster, stabbing the dust as he whirled half around and stepped back to steady himself.

Poco said, "Don't make me do it again, Abe."

McCandless' hand fell away from his gun butt, and he brought his other hand across his chest to his shoulder and held it there, swaying unsteadily. On the inside of his gun hand a trickle of blood traveled down his wrist, across the open palm, down his finger, hesitated, then dropped into the dust.

Poco said, "I told you," and held the gun out to Hogan.

"He's not hurt," Poco said. "Let's go."

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Family Needs Household Articles.

Mrs. G. has had a very difficult time caring for her family of five children. Her husband died just one hour before the birth of the youngest child. The family has had to depend on relief since that time and, because of the size of the family, were lucky to have the barest necessities.

The mother is a tiny person, weighing only 87 pounds, and barely able to manage a home, but she has clung tenaciously to her family and kept it together. They recently were evicted and many articles of clothing and household supplies were stolen. Almost any household articles can be put to good use in this home on the south side. They frequently receive castoff clothing, and the mother is able to repair and remake it, but a sewing machine would be a great help to her.

Catholic League.

"What Makes Taxes High or Low" will be the topic of Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde at a meeting of the Catholic Woman's league at 2 o'clock today at 410 South Michigan avenue.

Florida coast on the senior Mr. and Mrs. Faurot's boat.

Their other daughter, Mrs. Allen M. Reed, expects to join the family later on, and her daughter, Miss Nancy Reed, will go south for her Easter vacation from Sarah Lawrence.

G. Corson Ellises at Key West, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis have gone to Key West, Fla., where Mrs. Ellis will have special treatments for the injuries she suffered in an automobile accident last fall. The brace is off her neck now, but she still must spend considerable time in bed.

Mr. Ellis will return to Lake Forest Feb. 15. His wife's parents, the Robert J. Thornes, may go to Florida later on. Miss Narcissa Thorne may go to Sun Valley on Monday if Miss Mary Wood, who is in the hospital, is able to go west at that time.

Chicago will not be seeing the George Gillespies [Katherine Thorne] this winter or spring, for they are making a great success of their dude ranch in Arizona and are too busy with their numerous guests to get away.

Chicagoans Take Normandie Cruise.

A welcome addition to the Normandie's cruise to Rio de Janeiro, sailing today from New York, will be two young Chicago bachelors, Edward F. Wilson and E. Hall Taylor, who will join the ship at Nassau. Mr. Taylor is not as heart whole and fancy free as the young women on board might wish him to be, however, for he is engaged to Miss Margaret Huth. They will be married next summer when she returns from a cruise around the world.

Other Chicagoans on the Normandie for the 22 day cruise will be the Owen Wests, Mrs. James Ward Thorne and her sister, Mrs. Alden B. Swift; Mrs. Edward F. Carry, Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw and her daughter, Mrs. William Steinwedell; Mrs. Jacob Baur, the Frank R. Elliotts, the junior Edwin M. Ashcrafts, and the Perry Kenlys. The ship will call at Port au Spain and Trinidad, as well as at Rio.

The Walter Cummingses are now on their way to South America aboard the Rex, and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham sailed Thursday night on the Rotterdam with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Theodore Reynolds of New York, for a two months' cruise to South America.

Mrs. Winterbotham's daughter, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, and Mr. Shaw are expected home next week from a trip to Florida and Jamaica. Mrs. Shaw's cousin, Mrs. Patrick C. Hill, left St. Luke's hospital yesterday after an appendectomy and will be Mrs. Potter Palmer's guest again until the doctor gives Mrs. Hill permission to travel to her home in Pecos, Tex., probably in a week or ten days. Mr. Hill left Thursday night to return home after a brief visit with his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Callahan have left to motor to Naples, Fla., for a three weeks' vacation.

Graham Family Leaves for Florida.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Miss Anna Fitzu, Miss Edna Kellogg, and Mrs. William E. Graham left by motor yesterday for Palm Beach to be away a month or longer. They will stop in Augusta, Ga., to see Mrs. William McGovern.

On the 17th at the Biltmore hotel in Palm Beach Mr. and Mrs. William Graham will celebrate their first wedding anniversary at a dinner-dance to which will go many of the attendants at their Palm Beach wedding last year, including Miss Gladys Kunau.

Also present at the party will be Robert Hall McCormick and Abner J. Stilwell, who are going south together; Mrs. Townsend McKeever, who already is at Palm Beach; Mrs. Charles W. McNear, who is holidaying at Boca Raton, and Merrill Meigs. Young Mr. Graham will fly south next week to join his wife and mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller left yesterday for Palm Beach, going by way of Washington, where Mrs. Miller will attend the national board meeting of the League of American Pen Women. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be joined in Palm Beach by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strong, who now are at Babson Park near Sarasota.

"Europe: The Impact of Economics on Current Politics" is the subject of a talk F. Cyril James will give at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:30 o'clock today at the Palmer house. Laird Bell will preside at the speakers' table.

Mr. James is chairman of the graduate faculty in the Wharton School of Finance and Politics at the University of Pennsylvania and was previously associated with Barclays' bank in London and with the Corn Exchange National bank in Philadelphia.

Prehistoric Man Subject of Museum Lecture Tour

The physical evolution of man, from the earliest fossil finds, will be traced by P. G. Dallwig, layman lecturer, in a lecture tour at the Field Museum of Natural History at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Reproductions of prehistoric men of various ages, in settings typical of their lives, are on display in the Hall of the Stone Age at the museum. "The Etruscans and Romans" will be the subject of the lecture tour at 3 o'clock Monday. Among the subjects on other days at the same hour are "Horned and Hoofed Animals" on Tuesday, and "Indians of the Southwest" Friday.

Girl May Tell of Love First, Says Reader

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"In a recent article you asked for discussions as to whether a girl should tell a boy of her love first. I am a young man just of age, and, although my opinion doesn't count, you asked for it and here it is.

"I believe that after an association of a year it is time for somebody to disclose something about his or her attitude toward the other. I myself would be married today if the girl in the case had confided in me. It was a high school affair and there was nothing in the world I wanted more than to go 'steady' with her. However, she was crazy about dancing, and, as I wasn't allowed to go, she went alone regularly.

"I took that as an indication that she wasn't satisfied with my company alone. On her dancing evenings I went with other girls, and she took that as meaning that I wasn't satisfied with only her company. My inexperience kept me from telling her of my attitude, and, of course, it was unthinkable for her to tell hers.

"Later, as I was away at school, I learned that she had married. Then, as the years had piled experience on my head, I realized that she had been unusually faithful to me and probably hoped for the day when I would quit stepping out, while I was waiting for the same thing.

"I think it is all right for a girl to tell her feelings for a man after they have kept company long enough to know each other's attitudes. Perhaps the man in the case cited isn't as inexperienced as I was, but may be afraid to commit himself for fear she will misunderstand him. In times as insecure as these a man naturally makes sure of his financial situation before taking any decisive steps. Also, he may be one of those quiet individuals who don't see the need for words.

"I do know that, if a girl told me she loved me, I would be very frank with her as to how I felt about her, leaving no doubt in her mind as to whether I wanted to go right or left or just steer a middle course until I was more certain of my wishes in the matter.

"In any case I would say or do nothing to embarrass her, but really would appreciate her frankness. Of course, there is the extreme of throwing one's self at a man, which is looked down upon much more by young men than by any one else. I would leave a girl flat for chasing me publicly."

Music Notes

Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Hans Lange, associate conductor, have been named director and associate director, respectively, of this year's Northwestern university festival. Concerts are to be given in the university gymnasium, Evanston, on the evenings of May 17, 19, and 21 and on the afternoon of the 21st.

Alexandra Danilova, a leading dancer of Col. W. de Basil's Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, will leave that troupe at the conclusion of the present tour to join the Leonide Massine company in Europe.

Mario Salvador, young Chicago organist, will play his third professional downtown recital next Monday evening at Kimball hall.

Smart Toppers for Wardrobe

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSES.

Here are some toppers for your midseason, spring, or southern wardrobe. That takes in just about all the fashion territory, doesn't it? You undoubtedly have some stray woolen or silk skirts in your collection, orphaned garments which would just love the idea of being mated with a smart jacket blouse. Our pattern today offers two versions.

At the top is a rather dressy blouse with buttons all the way down the front. It has a rolled collar, puffed sleeves, either short or long, and is fitted snugly at the waist. You may have a narrow sash, if you wish. Challis, that most popular fabric, silks, satin, cottons, and woolen all make up well in this dainty model.

Below is a more tailored topper with a square neckline, puffed sleeves, two tiny pockets, and buttons down the front. Make this of linen, cotton, woolen, challis, or dull crêpes.

Style No. 3135 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the long sleeved blouses. The short sleeved versions require 2 yards of 39 inch fabric.

Here Are Some Tips on Careful Choice of Foundation Garment

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Right now the sins of the holiday season are being visited upon us in the form of five, eight, ten, or more extra pounds.

Well, there's only one sane way to restore confidence and good silhouette line. Reduce those extras. Get rid of them by diet and exercise. In the interim, however, you may have to do some relying on corseting. Indeed, you may succumb completely to this easier way of reshaping one's self. So herewith are introduced a few don'ts for guidance of the fuller figured woman, gleaned from one whose long experience in figure improvement the corseted way entitles her to an authoritative voice.

1. Don't try to change your figure too radically. Wear foundation garments which mold rather than constrain.

2. If your hips are large, don't accentuate your waistline too much. Wear a straight-hipped garment.

3. If your bust is large, don't wear too extreme an uplift. Distribute and mold your lines.

4. If your bust is small in proportion to the rest of you, and your hips and abdomen are large, don't let yourself flow into a solid line so that you look square. Lift your bust and accentuate your waistline.

5. If your waistline is thick and you have the well known roll, don't wear a separate girdle and short brassiere. Wear either an all-in-one or a girdle and long line brassiere.

6. If your hips are large and your waist small, don't attempt an all-in-one. Wear a separate bra and girdle.

7. If your weight is in the back, don't wear foundation garments that have elastic fabrics where you need to be flattened. Wear one of firm material in the back.

8. If your weight is in your thighs, don't wear too short a foundation garment. See that it is long enough to avoid the bulge.

9. Don't look stiff and steely. Use bones only where absolutely necessary.

10. Don't box your lines. Make the most of your best feature. Every figure has one!

Help Child to Overcome Fear by Facing It

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Help your child face a fear, become familiar with it, and rob it of mystery.

And you stand by in affection and understanding.

Whether the fear seems to be of physical, nervous, mental or emotional origin, this procedure will help your child. Here is an example, in a letter.

"My Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"In regard to your article appearing in the paper on fear of noise, I wish to relate my experience on this particular subject as it may be a help to some other mothers.

"When my son was about 2 years of age, we moved to a very small town, where there was a volunteer fire department, which was located two doors away from our home. Every Monday night at seven o'clock, they tested the siren. My child was so frightened the first Monday night he fell down just where he had been standing and was absolutely paralyzed by fear. I picked him up and started rubbing his back and face and moving his arms and legs. Then tears came and once I got him relaxed I took him into the house and gave him a glass of warm milk. This helped for the time being, but I realized we must work fast before the next Monday and prepare him for this siren, which, by the way, has been his only fear so far in life.

"The next day we visited the fire house, showing him the engine, and pointing out where the big noise came from and imitating the noise. We finally got him so he would make the same sounds. Shortly before seven the following Monday, we started playing the siren game, telling him he would hear the real siren very soon.

"I held him in my arms as that always gives a child a feeling of security. There were a few tears, but it did help considerably, and we kept right on with our game and always made a point to prepare him every Monday or be out of town in the car at that particular time.

"Some time later we made a trip to a large city and made a point of visiting the fire department. The firemen were very nice to us when we explained the situation, and after some persuasion we got the child into the driver's seat and told him he might ring a real siren by pushing the button on the wheel. He was very surprised, but delighted. Every time we came to the city we made a visit to the same fire house and soon he was looking forward to the occasion.

"Now my son is 7 years of age and a short time ago when the engines passed the house [we moved to the city about a year ago] he said, 'Mother, those sirens do make an awful noise, but I know it is to help the firemen get people out of the way so they can get to the fire in a hurry and help the people who need it.'

"I suggest to the mother whose letter you quoted that she provide her child with toy whistles, telephones that ring, and as you say make games of them with her child, and she will find as I did the horrors of certain noises will lessen and make the child much happier."

"How to Gain Obedience" (without arousing fear) is the name of a booklet. It will be necessary to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The plays that we make most casually, with the feeling that "whatever we do will make no difference," are the ones that have a habit of biting us in the back. Actually, there are very few plays that are inconsequential. Sometimes the result of a play may be so far detached from its origin that we are not aware of any connection, but this does not alter the fact that cause and effect are blood cousins at the bridge table. How many players, I wonder, would feel that declarer's first play in the following hand made the slightest difference?

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K 6
♥ 10 3 2
♦ 10 6 5 4 2
♣ 8 7 4

WEST
♠ Q J 10 8 3 2
♥ Q 9
♦ Q 8 7
♣ Q 6

EAST
♠ A 5 4
♥ 8 7
♦ J 9 3
♣ K J 10 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 9 7
♦ A K
♣ A 9 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	1 clubs
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade queen. Declarer had no illusion that dummy's spade king would win the trick. He realized fully that the opening lead could not have been from A-Q-J, but nevertheless he covered the queen, and by so doing left himself in a winning position. East, winning with the ace, could make no return that would have changed the eventual result. As it happened, East led back the club jack. Declarer ducked this. On a club continuation the ace was taken, and the ace-king of hearts dropped the outstanding trumps. The ace-king of diamonds then were cashed, after which declarer merely existed with the spade nine. West, thrown on lead, could make no return that would not sink his own ship. A spade would permit declarer to ruff in one hand while he discarded the losing club from the other, whereas a diamond return, the only other suit in West's hand, would be ruffed and dummy's diamond suit established while the heart ten remained as entry.

Now let us see what would have happened if declarer, thinking it "made no difference," had failed to cover the opening lead. It would have been ridiculous for West to continue with spades. A club shift would have been obvious, and that shift, while East retained the spade ace for entry, would have been fatal to the contract. Declarer never could have avoided the loss of two club tricks in addition to the two spades.

Ludovico, a duke of Milan, was an epicure of fruit. Servants carried trees to his table so that he might gather his choice fruits with his own hands.

A glutton was Marc Antony. He often had eight whole boars roasted for his table.

ETIQUET NOTE, 1673, London: "It is uncivil to rub your teeth in company or pick them with your knife at meals."

CULINARY PROVERBS: Unbidden guests are most welcome when they are gone. . . . Take heed of enemies reconciled and meat twice boiled. . . . Neither the nibbler nor the glutton knoweth the value of a feast. . . . Hungry men think the cook lazy.

Like fresh blueberry pie? Try the frozen Newfoundland berries for a rich and juicy one. . . . I found a pretty "popcorn set" in the corner variety store, a large orange bowl and individual ones in orange, blue, yellow, and green enamel. A find for any one whose family likes its Sunday evening popcorn party. . . . Processed limburger cheese is almost odorless, yet it has all the fine flavor so loved by cheese epicures.

If you're out of cake flour and want to make a cake, use all purpose flour and substitute two tablespoons of cornstarch for two tablespoons of flour in each cup used. Cake flour really is preferable, however, since cornstarch in excess will produce a dry cake which doesn't keep well.

The traditional custom of serving wild boar's head on a platter at Christmas, observed at Queen's college, Oxford, is said to have originated long ago when a student, studying philosophy in the forest, was charged by a fierce wild boar. The story goes that he foiled the beast by stuffing his volume of Plato down its throat, thus "choking the savage with the sage." Boar's head was served in traditional manner in Germany long before this, however.

The cheaper grades of pink salmon are just as palatable and nutritious as the higher grades of red salmon, only less attractive in appearance. Flat cans are more expensive than tall cans because they contain only the heavy center steak cuts.

That new chocolate nut flavored sauce is wonderful! It's thick and creamy and makes ice creams, cakes, and puddings taste like something dreamed about. And it's inexpensive, too. I can tell you where to buy it if you haven't already found it. Telephone or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Critic Pleased with Portraits at Arts Club

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three exhibitions opened yesterday at the Arts club. The first gallery is devoted to abstractions by Jean Hélion, who is a young French painter married to an American girl and living just now in Virginia where he sought and found relaxation from the hurried life of Paris.

Hélion has recently enjoyed a successful exhibit in New York. He is spoken of with the greatest enthusiasm whenever modern painters are in question.

The paintings in the present show have no titles. They are the kind of painting which needs no titles, they are abstractions pure and simple, a juggling with forms and color.

Apparently Hélion works within narrower limits than most abstractionists. His compositions build up into similar values and his color is confined to a play on gray and blue with an occasional sally into red. To my mind these exercises lack in imagination and quality. He has neither the dramatic, powerful structural form of John Storrs nor the vibrant color of Raymond Jonson.

The portraits by Pavel Tchelitchew hang in the two succeeding galleries. They are most effective and several of them are very charming. The dignified portrait of Miss Edith Sitwell is dramatic in its presentation, simple, collected, forceful. The portrait of Lincoln Kirstein is most intriguing.

These portraits do more than just photograph, they suggest the personality and interests of their sitters. They are planned compositions, which are as satisfying as paintings as they are acceptable as portraits. Particularly is this true of the exquisite portrait of Mrs. George Monkhouse. This is ravishing in color, intriguing in composition, and of that type of picture which gains by familiarity. One could not imagine tiring of it.

The third exhibit is of water colors by Issachar Ryback, a young painter whose death two years ago seems to have come just as he was entering upon a brilliant period in his life as an artist.

These water colors are done with a wide, loose stroke; they are Frenchy; they are decorative. The two little Russian girls, "La Barque," "Au Large," and "Joueur d'Accordeon" reveal his sense of color and delicacy in drawing to an admirable extent.

The exhibitions will continue to Feb. 18.

TWO GANGSTERS DIE; FIVE SHOT IN BANDIT FIGHT

One Detective Is Killed in Ohio Battle.

BULLETIN.

Columbus, O., Feb. 5 (Saturday).—(AP)—Detective Robert M. Cline, 42, died early today of wounds received in a gun battle late yesterday between police and four suspected bank bandits.

Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Two suspected bank robbers were killed and five other persons were wounded here this afternoon in a furious gun battle during a police raid on a gang hideout.

Three detectives, a third gangster, and a woman lodger in the house occupied by the gunmen were wounded. A fourth robber suspect was captured after the battle.

Police first believed that one of the slain men was Charles Bird, 26 years old, a bandit gang leader who bore the title of public enemy No. 1. They had been told Bird was in the gang hiding in the house, but later learned he was not there.

Those slain were Vincent Grinkowicz of Cleveland and a man known

Battle Follows Bank Raid.

The wounded detectives are Robert Cline, who was not expected to live; William Danner, and Leo Phillips. Mrs. Eva Watring, 38 years old, the lodger, was wounded in the leg.

The gang was trailed to the hideout after four masked gunmen robbed the Hilltop office of the Ohio National bank this morning. The robbers lined five employés and four customers against a wall and took $3,500. Four detectives sped to the two story frame house. The gunmen started shooting as the officers approached.

"All hell broke loose in a moment," said Phillips, whose eyelid was grazed by a bullet. "Everybody was shooting. I got one of them."

THREE PAROLEES ADMIT THEY'RE BACK IN CRIME

Three paroled convicts under arrest at the Austin police station have confessed three robberies and are suspected of numerous other crimes. They are Ray Perry, 23 years old, 3715 Broadway; John Green, 22 years old, 3814 Sheffield avenue, and John Lawhorn, 34 years old, 519 Aldine avenue. Perry's sweetheart, Geraldine Ellis, 19 years old, also was held.

Perry admitted that he held up Assistant Police Chief Harry Nelson of Geneva several weeks ago and robbed him of his pistol and automobile. He then gave the pistol to Green, who was seized while using it Wednesday night in a holdup of a shoe store at 3937 North avenue. All three men admitted they took part in the robbery of a cigar store at 209 North Wabash avenue on Jan. 16.

LOYOLA WINS, 47 TO 45, IN THIRD OVERTIME

THIS FIGHTER WINS TITLE TO OPEN CAREER

Makes Huntington Golden Glove Team.

BY FRENCH LANE.

It was right after Christmas that Paul Holbrook, Russell, Ky., High school sophomore, became mitt-minded. Never before had boxing gloves adorned his fists.

What caused his sudden decision to put them on has never been learned. Nobody paid any attention to him anyway. He was just one of 300 entrants in the Huntington, W. Va., Advertiser's Golden Gloves tournament and the one fellow among them who had no previous experience in the ring.

Paul's name came into the limelight because he scored a slashing victory in his first trip to the ring. He scored other one-sided triumphs until the welterweight belt was awarded him.

Entirely overlooked in the pre-tourney speculation he took the play away from many experienced rivals with his stamina, his aggressiveness, and his natural fighting ability.

Six Are Students.

Fans in the Huntington territory believe he will do the same thing in the Tournament of Champions which opens at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28.

Paul is a member of the one real "highbrow" team that will invade the Tournament of Champions. Six of the eight members are students and Bill Bess of the Huntington Advertiser is seriously considering bringing along a tutor for his studious band of lether pushers.

Pueblo Picks Team.

Word came from far away Pueblo, Colo., yesterday that the eight champions who will represent the Pueblo Star Journal have been selected.

These champions next will go to Kansas City for the sectional tournament conducted by the Kansas City Star.

The Colorado champions are:
Flyweight—Johnny Coco, Walsenberg, Colo.
Bantamweight—Frank Gonsales, Raton, N. M.
Featherweight—Ray Garcia, Pueblo.
Lightweight—Sol Munez, Pueblo.
Welterweight—Leroy Shakelford, Pueblo.
Middleweight—Jack Spalpeen, Pueblo.
Light heavyweight—Morton Shade, Florence, Colo.
Heavyweight—Eddie Orazem, Pueblo.

Boxers from all parts of Colorado and New Mexico took part in the Pueblo tournament.

255 FIGHTERS PASS

Two hundred sixty boys reported last night in Trafton gymnasium for final Golden Gloves physical examinations. Only five failed to pass the tests.

One of the most promising open class prospects to be examined was Martin O'Gradney, Trafton's gymnasium middleweight. O'Gradney, who is a meat carver in Harding's restaurant at 68 West Madison street, has been boxing for fifteen months. He has had 55 bouts, winning forty-four and losing eleven.

Joe Domsik, 5032 Kennedy avenue, East Chicago, was the tallest of those examined last night. Joe, who is a truck driver, is 6 feet 1 inch tall. He is entered in the novice division as a light heavyweight.

Johnny Pleasant, recent winner of an Illinois Athletic club title, was one of fourteen Savoy A. C. representatives who passed. Pleasant, a hard punching colored lad from Memphis, Tenn., is a light heavyweight.

Sylvester Blake, novice 160 pounder, was so anxious to reach the examination quarters that he didn't have time to change the overalls he wears while washing cars at 55th and South State streets.

A double for Jimmy Urso, 1937 Chicago Golden Gloves flyweight champion, was seen in Oscar Ginsberg, 18 year old fighter from Franklin park.

William Elliotte, 135 pound novice of 5658 South Park way, already is guarding against defeat. He wears a rabbit foot as a watch fob.

BEATS GEORGE WASHINGTON ON KAUTZ'S BASKET

Mike Novak Scores 19 Points.

Loyola university's basketball team defeated George Washington university, 47 to 45, after three overtime periods in the Loyola gymnasium last night. The regular playing time had ended with the score 37 to 37, the first overtime, 41 to 41, and the second overtime 43 to 43.

After missing a free throw that would have won the game with only one minute to go in the third overtime period, Wibs Kautz sank the basket that did provide victory with only seven seconds to play. It was his fourth field goal in the overtime play, the first two coming on long shots in the first extra period and the third in the early minutes of the final period.

Extra Periods Thrill Crowd.

The three extra periods made the crowd of 3,000 forget the action that occurred in the regular playing period. Here is what it saw in the extra sessions:

First: Long field goals by Kautz, Butterworth and again Kautz, followed by Auerbaek's short shot.

Second: Novak's tipin shot and Butterworth's goal from the free throw area.

Third: Kautz' hook shot from the side of the floor; Sid Silkowitz' short shot; Kautz' failure to sink a free throw after being fouled by Silkowitz; Kautz' hook shot that won the game.

The player responsible for all this hysteria was Elmore Borden, George Washington substitute, who had tied the score at 37 to 37 with only five seconds remaining in the regular period. All that came before that was but a prelude to more stirring activity.

Easterners Lead at Half.

The first half gave little indication of what impended, ending 19 to 13, in George Washington's favor. The tempo increased as the second half started, however, with Bill O'Brien and Novak shooting most accurately for Loyola and Butterworth, Faris and Silwokitz making the competition close with successful shots for George Washington.

Novak, 6 foot 9 inch center, scored 19 points, most for any player. Kautz followed him with 17.

DE PAUL BEATS WESLEYAN

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Pat Howlett's goal in the final 20 seconds of play gave De Paul a 41 to 39 victory over Illinois Wesleyan here tonight. Inability to hit free throws cost the Titans the victory, for they missed 19 attempts.

The game was very rough, 45 personal fouls being called. Three Wesleyan and two De Paul men were forced out because of fouls.

Howlett's winning basket was his fourth of the evening. He also collected two free throws. Bob Neu took scoring honors with five field goals and six free throws in addition to playing a brilliant floor game.

Wesleyan was away to a 15 to 6 lead at one time in the opening period but Crowley and Howlett hit several in succession just before the intermission. The score at half time was 22 to 20 for Wesleyan.

NOTRE DAME VS. PITT

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Notre Dame and Pittsburgh will end their athletic relationship, temporarily at least, tomorrow night with their second basketball game of the season. Notre Dame won at Pittsburgh two weeks ago, 51 to 44.

A sellout crowd of 5,500 will see the game. Only a few reserved seats remained today. General admission tickets have been exhausted for several days.

The series stands at eleven victories for Pitt and nine for the Irish. The Panthers have been a thorn in the side of Notre Dame, having won three overtime games, one freak game three years ago when the timer's defective clock permitted the game to run an extra 12 or 15 minutes, and several games which ended Notre Dame winning streaks of various lengths. The Irish will be after their 16th straight home victory. The lineups:

Sadowski	F.	Zelenik
Nowak	C.	Garcia
Brown	G.	Spotovich
Wukovits	G.	Radvansky

Kilian, Vopel Take Lead on Points in Six Day Race

BULLETIN.

The German team of Kilian and Vopel took the lead on points early this morning in the six day bicycle race at the Coliseum. Tied with them in mileage was the American combination of Walthour and Crossley.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Henry Le Page and Fernand Wambst, two slick-haired young Frenchmen who have been jesting throughout the first five days of the six day bicycle race at the Coliseum, turned serious last night.

Hank and Fern have been wheeling about in true Gallic fashion for most of the race, grabbing a vendor's cap or tray here and there and borrowing spectators' bowlers without warning. Along about 10:15 o'clock last night the two French lads got their hair all mussed up in the business of taking a one lap lead on the field, including the noted twosome of Gustave Kilian and Heinz Vopel of Germany.

Watch Those Sprints.

M. Le Page, noting that he and his colleague were four laps down to the front runners, went suddenly amuck and before any one knew it had engineered a jam which gained them two laps. Before the field knew what was happening the two Frenchmen, sporting the Red Devil regimentals, were out in front and still hard to catch.

Kilian and Vopel were in the favorite position. They were tied with four other teams in mileage, but they were so well padded in sprint points that they are set for tonight's final hour of riding. The two Teutons seem able to turn on the sprint pressure at will, and the final hour tonight, from 11 p. m. to midnight, will reward each dash winner with 72 points instead of the routine six.

Tied for second with Kilian and Vopel at midnight were the teams of Walthour-Crossley, Audy-Buhler, Van Kempen-Yates, and Rodak-Korsmeier. Rodak was the object of last night's ceremonies, being honored by several hundred Chicago Poles among the crowd of six thousand, including his famed brother Leo.

The Audy-Buhler team, which had come out of the afternoon's riding with a one lap advantage, came to grief early in the evening, largely due to a slight case of temperament on the part of Audy. The little platinum blond appeared to resent a lap penalty for an illegal pickup, and went into a bit of a mood in which he refused to help the willing Buhler. A brief reprimand in the judges' chambers straightened Jules out, and before they knew what happened, he had led Buhler into a tie for second place after having been in fourth.

Eight Teams on Track.

Eight of the original thirteen teams were still on the track, ready for the final day's racing. The field was reduced by one when Dominick Camastro folded up his wheel and said he would not play with the boys any more, leaving his partner, Tom Saetta, with four hours to acquire a new mate. The team of Jakie Gruber and Albert Heaton withdrew from the race shortly after midnight, being twenty-two laps in the rear.

Results of the 12:30 a. m. sprints:
1—Vopel, Van Kempen, Rodak, Buhler.
2—Audy, Yates, Kilian, Korsmeier.
3—Van Kempen, Buhler, Vopel, Ottevaere.
4—Crossley, Yates, Audy, Kilian.
5—Wambst, Ottevaere, Buhler, Vopel.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa swimming team won its triangular swimming meet from Minnesota and Chicago here tonight by running up 76 points. APOSTOLI VICTOR OVER LEE AFTER 12 HARD ROUNDS Crowd Boos Split Verdict of Judges, Referee.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Fred Apostoli, the Pacific coast's Italian candidate for the middleweight title, claimed stout hearted Glen Lee of Edison, Neb., as a victim tonight in twelve rounds of primitive fighting in Madison Square Garden. But many in the gathering of 10,877 which saw the struggle left the Garden unconvinced of the superiority of the victor.

When a two to one decision was announced for Apostoli at the end of the battle a roar of disapproval broke from the spectators, coming from all sections of the house in a deafening din that reflected distinct disagreement, after one of the most savage middleweight battles seen here in years.

Referee Arthur Donovan voted for Lee, six rounds to five, with one even. Judges Billy [Kid] McPartland and Marty Monroe each gave Apostoli nine rounds. McPartland awarded Lee three. Monroe gave the Nebraskan only two and declared one even.

An Unexpected Battle.

Lee, only recently a welterweight, picked on the recognized uncrowned champion of the middleweight class—a concession to Apostoli who recently stopped Champion Freddie Steele—and proceeded to give the coast Italian the fight of his life.

The result was forecast, but the battle was not. Apostoli, entering the ring favorite to win at odds of 3 to 1, caught a Tartar. He fought his hardest to bring Lee down and failed. In the fifth round it seemed he would succeed, but Lee survived. Not only that, but the courageous, careless Lee, shaking off the best punches of his rival, came on in his plodding methodical way and almost toppled Apostoli in the tenth round with a furious assault that had the crowd crying hoarse encouragement.

Rallies in Last Two Rounds.

In the end, however, it was a two round closing rally that won for Apostoli. He threw all his waning strength against a foe who had withstood his best punches when the coast Italian was stronger. And Apostoli had enough strength left to outfight the lion hearted Lee to win by an eyelash.

During most of the fight Lee sank his right to the ribs, making Apostoli's left side red and raw with bruises and he drove his left to the face until Apostoli winced.

Apostoli weighed 158¾ pounds and Lee 154½.

A Lost Pleasure.

I used to love a rainy day,
For I'd stay tight in bed
Till almost noon, a-listening to
The patter overhead.

And when I finally did arise
I'd take a book with me
And by the fire I'd lounge, content,
As happy as could be.

But times have changed, and now no more
Such days can I enjoy.
For off to work each morn I plod
And rain does me annoy.

Since walking in the muddy streets,
My love for rain has died.
And now I know that rainy days
Are for folks who stay inside.

INDIANA MEETS PURDUE QUINTET; BRADLEY AT N. U.

Unbeaten Peorians Test Big Ten Leader.

Tonight's Games

Indiana at Purdue.
Ohio State at Iowa.
Michigan State at Wisconsin.
Bradley at Northwestern.
Marquette and Niagara at Rochester, N. Y.
De Paul at St. Louis.
Pittsburgh at Notre Dame.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Purdue's new fieldhouse, where the Boilermakers will entertain Indiana's basketball team tonight, has been sold out for two weeks. Eight thousand five hundred will watch Purdue's quintet in its bid to gain on Northwestern, leader of the Western conference.

But to Northwestern, and certainly to the undefeated Bradley Tech team from Peoria, conference business will be forgotten for this evening. Every seat in Patten gymnasium has been sold and a capacity crowd of 6,000 will watch the game. Two thousand of this throng will come from Peoria which is indulging in as fine a case of civic enthusiasm as ever gripped an Indiana High school on the eve of the Hoosier state tournament.

Leads Illinois Conference.

Bradley has won ten games this season and hasn't been defeated since Northwestern whipped Tech, 38 to 31, a year ago. Bradley has defeated Indiana, 50 to 39, Nebraska, 50 to 30, and last week whipped Knox, 38 to 46. Bradley holds first place in the Illinois Collegiate conference.

Bradley quite naturally places more emphasis on tonight's game than Northwestern does, not that the Wildcats are preparing a "nonconference" alibi to cover possible defeat. But, of course, Northwestern already has lost five games outside the conference, and still holds the Big Ten leadership with five victories and one defeat. Most Northwestern fans, in view of Northwestern's one point victories over Ohio State and Michigan, and a three point victory over Indiana, are dubious of future games in the Big Ten.

A Tall, Fast Team.

It is quite likely that Northwestern will take a licking tonight, for Bradley, with a tall, fast team, seems to have the players to do it. Dar Hutchins of Harvey, Ill., star of the Thornton Township High school when it won the Illinois state title a few years ago, is the outstanding offensive man on the Bradley quintet.

Other members of the Bradley team are Charles Orsborne, forward, Deerfield, Ill.; Carl Schunk, forward, Peoria; Les Getz, guard, Goshen, Ind., and Ted Panish, guard, Morris, Ill.

Northwestern, idle since Jan. 22, when Michigan was beaten, 30 to 29, will start the same team that opened against the Wolverines. Jean Smith and Capt. Fred Trenkle will be at the forwards with Mike McMichael in reserve. Jake Nagode will start a center. Bernard Davis and Ad Vance will be the guards with Jim Currie ready to relieve them.

Game to Excite Hoosierdom.

Indiana's invasion of Purdue tonight is one of the outstanding battles of any basketball season and it doesn't matter one whoop in the Hoosier state that Indiana has lost three conference games. For that matter, hasn't Indiana beaten Illinois and wasn't Illinois the only team to defeat Purdue this season?

Jewell Young, Purdue's individual scoring champion, unquestionably will start at forward. The veteran Johnny Sines or possibly Dan Fisher, sophomore, will be the other forward. Gene Anderson, at center, and Elwood Yeager, at guard, are other fixtures. Tom Dickinson or Pat Maiaska will draw the other defensive starting assignment.

Ohio State meets Iowa tonight in Iowa City and in view of the Buckeyes' 48 to 29 victory in the first half of the series, Ohio State should be the winner. Iowa's squad has been depleted by ineligibility also.

YALE POLO TEAM TO PLAY TONIGHT IN 124TH ARMORY

Old Eli Is Matched with Artillery Trio.

The Yale university polo team will meet the 124th Field Artillery in the main event on tonight's program in the 124th Field Artillery armory.

In the opening game of the evening the Chicago Shamrocks and Fort Sheridan, Metropolitan Polo league senior division contenders, take the field. Between halves of this game an exhibition of jumping by 124th Field artillery officers will be given. At the conclusion of the contest a new drill by the 124th Red Devil Dragoons is to be put on for the first time. The Yale-124th Artillery game will wind up the program.

Yale Plans Workout.

Reaching Chicago early this morning the Yale squad plans a workout in the armory ring under Capt. W. H. Hill, coach. Chosen as the starting lineup are Ken Shiffer at No. 1; Alan Corey Jr., sophomore, at No. 2, and Mott Woolley, team captain, at back. Bill Chisholm is in reserve.

Yale's starting trio carries a team strength of six goals, with Schiffer rated at one, Corey at three, and Woolley at two. Schiffer and Woolley are seniors.

The visitors will face a revised 124th Field Artillery lineup, with Lieut. Russell Rasmussen drafted as a last minute replacement for Lieut. William D. Fergus. Fergus was injured in practice. Extra sessions Thursday and yesterday found Lieut. Rasmussen fitting in well with his teammates, Lieut. Don J. Rice and Capt. Romeo E. Mura, both of them carrying three goals. Rasmussen is rated at one.

Here Are Records.

Yale's season's record shows victories over Princeton and the Governor's Horse Guard teams, and losses to the United States Military academy and Cincinnati Cavalry.

Tonight's match will be the third of the Yale-West series. Yale won the first in 1936, 10½ to 5½, from Fort Sheridan, but lost to the Metropolitan All-Stars last year, 11½ to 9½.

YALE LOSES, 17-16.

YORK FIVE WINS TO HOLD LEAD IN WEST SUBURBAN

Maine Lights Lose, but Keep First Place.

The York High school heavyweight basketball team last night scored its eighth straight victory, a 38 to 32 triumph over Maine, to retain leadership of the West Suburban conference. The Maine lights, although defeated by York, 24 to 19, continued to top the standings with a record of six victories and two defeats.

The York heavies entered the last quarter with a 31 to 14 lead over Maine but the Des Plaines quintet rallied to score eighteen points in the final period while holding York to seven. Buettner led York's attack with sixteen points on six field goals and four free throws.

The Evanston lightweight and heavyweight fives triumphed to advance a step closer to the Suburban league titles. It was the seventh victory in eight starts for each team. The lights whipped Proviso, 21 to 15, and the heavies turned back the Maywood quintet, 25 to 20. The Morton heavies defeated Waukegan, 36 to 27, to tie for second place.

City Leaders Triumph.

Three undefeated sectional leaders in the Chicago Public High School league scored their sixth victories yesterday. The Lane juniors routed Senn, 37 to 20, in the north section; Fenger's junior quintet shaded Bowen, 27 to 26, in the south section, and Von Steuben turned back Sullivan, 39 to 19, to continue at the top of the north section senior standings.

The Schurz seniors whipped Steinmetz, 45 to 41, in overtime to take undisputed possession of second place in the north division, and the Hirsch junior and senior fives broke ties with Calumet for second place in these respective divisions of the south division race, the former winning, 29 to 23, and the seniors, 37 to 32.

Luther institute won its eighth straight victory in the heavyweight division of the Private School league yesterday, defeating North Park academy, 35 to 31.

Catholic Leaders Fall.

Three sectional leaders in the Catholic league race were beaten for the first time last night. In the north section the St. George seniors fell before St. Mel, 34 to 30, while the Leo Lions lost the south section lead as a result of a 39 to 34 defeat by St. Ignatius. In the junior north section race St. George trimmed St. Mel, 31 to 21.

As a result of these developments St. George's juniors took the north division lead on the strength of five victories and one defeat, and Mount Carmel's seniors, with the same record, stepped into the south section lead. The St. George seniors held first place despite their setback. Lineups:

Concordia Quintet Beats North Park for 4th in Row

Concordia college won its fourth consecutive basketball victory, defeating North Park, 43 to 34, last night at River Forest.

CUBS DISPATCH FREY TO REDS; IT'S CASH DEAL

Linus Frey, utility infielder for the Chicago Cubs last season, yesterday was sold to the Cincinnati Reds for an unannounced sum of cash. The sale of the former Brooklyn infielder indicates that Manager Charley Grimm will rely upon Tony Lazzeri, the former Yankee, to aid Shortstop Bill Jurges and Third Baseman Stanley Hack.

Frey, 26 years old, came to the Cubs last season from the Dodgers in a trade which sent Pitcher Roy Henshaw and Infielder Woody English to the Brooklyn club. Frey played both third base and shortstop for the Cubs, ending the season with a batting average of .278.

Manager Grimm also will have the services of Steve Mesner, Los Angeles rookie rejected by the White Sox last year. Mesner will be among the rookie candidates at the Catalina island training camp and may remain with the club throughout the 1938 season.

Charles [Boots] Weber, business manager and treasurer of the Cubs, said no word has been received from unsigned players. The players who have yet to accept 1938 terms include Jurges and Outfielder Frank Demaree.

WHITNEY DENIES CONNECTION WITH NARRAGANSETT

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—John Hay Whitney, millionaire sportsman and a member of the New York state racing commission, denied in a statement issued today that he had plans to become associated with Narragansett Park either financially or managerially. A recent report stated that Mr. Whitney, in company with a group of other sportsmen, contemplated running the track, one of the richest in the country.

Today's statement given out by Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York state racing commission, on behalf of Commissioner Whitney, read:

"Rumors that I am about to become interested financially or managerially in Narragansett Park having reached the public, I take this opportunity to state that I have no such intention. My major activities in racing and those of my family have always been in New York. My work with my colleagues on the New York state racing commission has been pleasant and, I hope, not without value. I have no desire or inclination to expand my interests elsewhere."

TWO ASSISTANTS TO SUTHERLAND AT PITT RESIGN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4. — (AP) — Charles Bowser and Dr. Ralph Daugherty, the two chief assistants to Jock Sutherland on the University of Pittsburgh's football coaching staf, resigned today and a pair of 1937 Panther stars were named to succeed them.

Without designating a chief assistant, Sutherland said John Michelosen and Donald Hensley, a pair of seniors, would fill the vacancies on the eight man coaching corps July 1, when the two resignations become effective.

Bowser said his insurance business requires all his attention. Dr. Daugherty will devote his entire time to medicine.

Michelosen was captain and quarter back of the undefeated 1937 team.

200 Skaters Are Ready to Race for U. S. Titles

Petoskey, Mich., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Two hundred of the nation's fastest skaters representing eleven northern states will vie for the United States speed skating championships here tomorrow and Sunday.

The Illinois Skating association has the largest entry with twenty-four skaters. Minnesota is next with sixteen. Other states with formidable representation are Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Rhode Island and Michigan.

Twelve championship races are scheduled. Senior men will compete in seven and the women in five. Tomorrow the men skate the 220, three-quarter mile and two mile, while the women are competing for the 440 and three-quarter mile titles.

Although they are the favorites, Chicago skate stars will have keen competition in the title events. Don Johnson of Minneapolis seems to be the leading opponent for Chicago's Eddie Schroeder, Vic Ronchetti, Bob Heckenbach, Bernie Cannata, Tony Neberz, Bob Sherman, and Ray Doersam. Minneapolis and St. Paul women are expected to provide the most opposition for Eleanor Theil Dyer, Elaine Bogda, Shirley Jameson, and Genevieve Swierkos, Chicago contestants.

CIESARS MOVE HEADQUARTERS

The Ciesar All-Americans will move their headquarters tomorrow afternoon to the new Hammond Civic center, Calumet avenue and Sohi street, where they will meet the Oshkosh All-Stars in a National Professional Basketball league game.

HAWKS WILL FACE BRUINS WITHOUT MARCH AND SHILL

The Blackhawks, who will play the leading Boston Bruins in the Stadium tomorrow, arrived home from Montreal last night. They were a battered and bruised hocky club after their 4 to 2 defeat by the Montreal Maroons Thursday. The Maroons won after Mush March and Jack Shill had received injuries early in the second period, which took them out of the game. Both will be out of tomorrow night's game. March's casualty was a left shoulder injury while Shill has torn ligaments in his right side. The Maroons made three goals after March and Shill left the game.

Manager Bill Stewart was disappointed when he heard that Bert Connolly, the Hawks' new forward obtained from Springfield, would not be in Chicago until tomorrow morning. Stewart had arranged for a practice session especially for Connolly, whom he plans to use on a line with the Hawks' high scorers, Doc Romnes and Paul Thompson. Thompson is to be shifted to right wing.

The injuries to March and Shill also will cause considerable shifting on the other two Hawks' lines. Jenkins probably will move to March's place alongside of Gottselig and Voss, and Seibert to a forward line. Ivan Nicholson, a 163 pound left wing, obtained on loan from the Kansas City Greyhounds of the American association, also will play. Nicholson will arrive today and practice with the Hawks. He played last season in London, England, with the Harringay Racers.

RADIO ACTORS GIVE UP HUDDLE AT MICROPHONE

Learn Lines and Add Punch to Drama.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The studio custom of bunching around a microphone, football huddle fashion, was brushed aside the other evening when a seasoned cast of radio actors presented Maxwell Anderson's "Second Overture," a one act piece specially written for NBC. The actors abandoned the huddle because they had tossed away their scripts after learning their rôles by heart, as in pictures or on the stage.

More than that, they walked from one end of the studio to the other, gesturing and turning on their most dramatic expressions for their fellow actors to view and respond to. This was made possible through the development of a new hyper-sensitive unidirectional mike which has an extraordinary wide pickup range.

Directors William S. Rainey and James Church expect this method of procedure may greatly improve radio dramatic results. Under the usual system the actor has little freedom for action. He cannot gesture or move about, for he has to keep one eye on his script [as well as a hand] and the other on the engineer in the control room.

Under the new arrangement there is better pace and timing. An actor may actually listen to what his associates are saying instead of searching for lines through a script while others are doing their emoting. Knowing all the lines, the actors are better able to think ahead and achieve a more genuine theatrical effect.

This step is one that will be generally necessary when television comes. Scripts will have to be abandoned along with microphones that stand in the way of the camera. Perhaps radio may next begin experimenting with costumes and lighting.

Former Mayor James J. Walker is about set to do some regular commenting on the air for an eastern gasoline company. . . . Grace Moore is to replace Lawrence Tibbett March 30 as soloist with Andre Kostelanetz's Wednesday evening American music concert series. She will come east for this assignment. . . . Bruce Kamman, who is Prof. Kaltenmeyer, has taken up winter sports at White Bear Lake, Minn. Each Friday he comes down to prepare for his Saturday Kindergarten broadcast and then goes back north again.

Bob Becker, who broadcasts his dog show over W-G-N and NBC Sunday afternoon, got a request from a feminine admirer the other day for a souvenir spoon. Bob thought at first she had him mixed up with some box top contest. But it developed she had a hobby of spoon collecting. Becker sent her an aluminum mess kit, a memento of his Alaskan travels. He hopes the spoon collecting business doesn't spread.

In New York studios the headliners wear formal garb to evening broadcasts. In Hollywood they go for slacks and old sweaters. Chicago is proceeding in the middle of the road, sartorially speaking. Finding the studios rather cool for the low backs and necklines of evening gowns Betty Winkler showed up at the "It Can Be Done" show recently wearing a blue velvet hostess gown with long sleeves and high neck. Now several other girls are doing the same thing.

MERRY IN COURT TO SEE IF SON IS HER BROTHER

Merry Fahrney, patent medicine heiress, who obtained a divorce from her third husband, Baron Arturo Berlingieri, on Thursday, was in court again yesterday. This time she appeared at a hearing on the inheritance rights of her son, Peter Parker Pickering, 5½ years old, in the $3,000,000 estate left by her grandfather, Dr. Peter Fahrney.

The question placed before Judge Grover C. Niemeyer is whether the boy should inherit from the estate as a grandson or a great-grandson. The problem arose over the fact that the child was adopted in 1933 by Miss Fahrney's parents, thus making him her legally adopted brother as well as her own child.

If Peter's status as grandson is upheld he will share equally with Merry in Dr. Fahrney's estate. Her lawyers argued against this yesterday, after which the case was continued to Monday.

CHICAGO GROUP TO FIGHT CHANGE IN PANAMA TOLL

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday that it will protest the bill proposed by Senator McAdoo of California which provides that no tolls shall be imposed on vessels using the Panama canal when engaged in intercoastal trade. The protest will be made on the ground that if the bill is passed middle western business will have the privilege of paying for its own ruination.

"Not only would Senator McAdoo's plan add to the already unjust discrimination against inland industry in its competition with both seacoasts, but, what is more amazing, it would force the interior to carry a good share of the additional taxes that would ensue," the association said.

Utilities Elkhorn Coal Files Reorganization Plea

The Utilities Elkhorn Coal company, subsidiary of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, yesterday filed a petition in the federal district court for reorganization under section 77B of the bankruptcy act. The company has $1,103,500 bonds outstanding on which it is unable to meet interest, the petition said.

Wheat Climbs on European War Threats

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Thurs.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$0.95⅛	$0.94⅛	$1.33
Corn	.59⅝	.59⅛	1.07⅛
Oats	.31⅛	.31⅛	.50⅜
Rye	.75⅝	.75	1.11⅜
Soy beans	1.05¾	1.05¾	1.56¼

Reports indicating increased political tension in Europe as the result of the sinking of another British steamship in the Mediterranean yesterday dominated the action of the wheat market.

A rush of commission house buying and short covering carried prices up 2 cents a bushel from the early low mark, and although profit taking caused a reaction from the top, closing trades were at net gains of 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel.

Corn and rye moved up in sympathy with wheat and on reports of a fair export business. Corn futures closed ⅜ to ½ cent higher. Rye was ½ to 1 cent a bushel higher. Little change was shown in oats and soy bean prices.

War Talk Previously Ignored.

It was the first time in several weeks that war fears in Europe had had any effect on the grain market. Speculative interest showed a marked increase, and several commission houses announced that they received more orders to buy or sell wheat futures during the first hour of yesterday's session than the aggregate business for the two preceding days.

Other North American markets were higher, but failed to reflect fully the strength on the Chicago Board of Trade. Winnipeg gained ¼ to ⅞ cent a bushel. Kansas City closed a major fraction of a cent a bushel higher, being held in check by reports of light rains at a few points in Kansas. The moisture, however, was regarded as being of little benefit to the new winter wheat crop. Liverpool closed ⅜ cent higher to ⅛ cent a bushel lower.

Wheat Export Demand Shrinks.

The export demand for American cash wheat yesterday was reported to have declined materially, but there was a fair call for Canadian grain and sales were estimated at 300,000 bushels in all positions.

A fair European demand was in evidence yesterday for cash corn, but a considerable part of the business was understood to be for shipment from northern ports at the opening of lake navigation.

SOUTHWEST COAL FREIGHT RATES TO BE INCREASED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Interstate commerce commission officials said today the commission had voted not to suspend tariffs increasing freight rates on some kinds of coal shipped from southwestern states to points in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska. Southwestern states affected are Arkansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma.

The Arkansas corporation, the Fort Smith, Ark., trafic bureau, the St. Joseph, Mo., coal bureau, and the Nebraska Lumber association had asked the I. C. C. to suspend the rates pending an investigation of their "reasonableness and propriety."

The Illinois trafic bureau opposed suspension. The old rates, the bureau said, permitted southwestern mines to ship 3 inch, 2½ inch, and 2¼ inch nut coal on slack or steam coal rates, while similar shipments from Illinois mines took higher lump coal rates. The southwestern rates in some instances were as much as 45 cents a ton lower than rates for shipments of similar coal from the Illinois fields, the Illinois bureau said.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The number of telephones in service in the Bell system reached an all-time high total during January when the principal subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph company had a net gain of 31,500 instruments. The gain for the companies in the system in January, 1937, was 96,000 units. At the end of January approximately 15,361,500 instruments were in service.

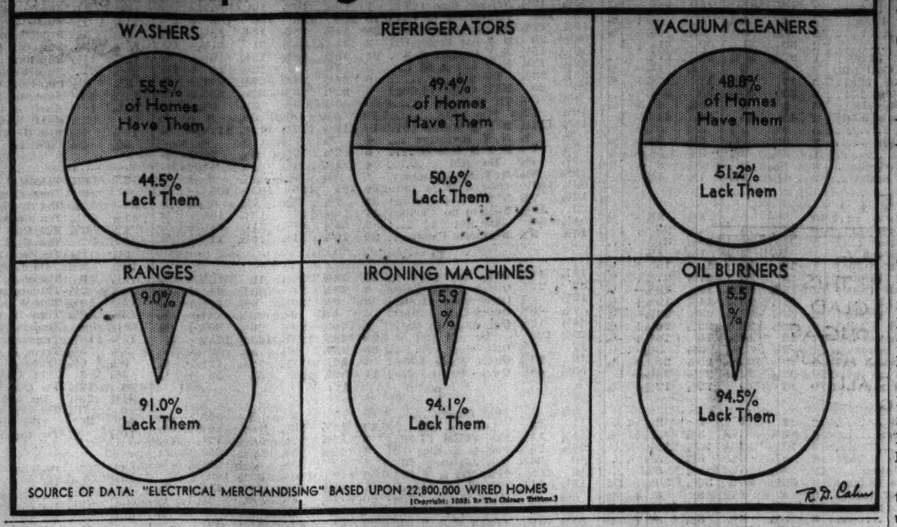
Extent of Saturation of American Market for Electrical Appliances at the Opening of the Present Year



Packard Cuts Prices; Doubt General Slash

The Packard Motor Car company yesterday reduced the prices of all body types in its six cylinder line of automobiles by $100. The cut is not regarded as the forerunner of general price reductions by the automobile industry.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of the General Motors corporation, said in New York that in his opinion the reduction, applying to only one line, was more a readjustment of prices for that particular line to present competitive levels than to establish a new price level.

Packard Makes First Cut.

Packard was the first automobile company to reduce prices on 1938 models. The price cuts range from 8½ per cent to 12 per cent, depending on the model.

M. M. Gilman, vice president and general manager of Packard, said in Detroit that the company's decision to reduce prices on the six cylinder line was actuated by its desire to stimulate public buying, not only of motor cars but of all products of American industry, and to help restore consumer confidence generally.

"Before this decision we carefully surveyed the current economic situation," Gilman said. "It became plain to our executives and field force that an illogical and needless uncertainty was delaying recovery.

Predicts Buying Wave.

"The fact is that the motoring public occupies a very encouraging financial position. Most consumers have money to spend. They require quality merchandise of a thousand and one kinds.

"The resources are there. The need is there. We feel that the nation is on the verge of a buying wave. It needs only common sense encouragement.

"Here is industry's responsibility—and a challenge to its progressivism. By reducing prices—and at the same time maintaining the same quality of materials nad workmanship—manufacturers can make available power to stimulate all business and hence accelerate production, sales, and employment.

"For example, anything that stimulates production in the automotive field affects favorably production and employment in practically every basic industry in the country. Every state provides either raw or finished materials for the automobile industry."

OLD WHOLESALE SHOE COMPANY TO BE LIQUIDATED

H. E. Johnson & Co., Inc., Chicago wholesale shoe company established in 1880, will pass out of existence, A. J. Thomson, manager of the Shoe and Leather Mercantile agency, who will act as liquidator, announced yesterday.

The company originally was known as H. H. Bell & Co. Henry E. Johnson, one of the principal officers of the Bell company, acquired the concern in 1904 and changed the name. Johnson died in 1934 and since then the business has been run by his estate.

The decision to liquidate resulted from the changing nature of the shoe business, it was said. Factory companies are now setting up retail subsidiaries to provide outlets for their shoes, which makes the position of the wholesaler difficult.

Seek Repeal of Resale Price Maintenance Act

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Senator King of Utah and Representative Celler of New York announced today that they have introduced bills to repeal the Miller-Tydings resale price maintenance act. This law was enacted by subterfuge in the closing days of the last regular session of congress by attaching it as a rider to the District of Columbia tax bill, they asserted.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE ASSETS NEAR 4¾ BILLIONS

Assets of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, New York, at the end of 1937 totaled $4,719,720,827, an increase of $225,019,055 over 1936, Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

At the end of the year the company had 43,600,964 policies for a total of $22,284,003,698 in force, the largest amount of life insurance in force in its history. These policies are owned by approximately 29,000,000 persons, including almost 2,000,000 insured under group contracts.

The company in 1937 issued a total of $2,393,583,083 paid for life insurance, of which $1,162,900,331 was ordinary, $1,016,508,158 was industrial, and $214,174,594 was group. Payments to policyholders last year totaled $525,876,271.

CONTROL OF SEC WORK IS DIVIDED AMONG MEMBERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The activities over which each of the five members of the Securities and Exchange commission will have general supervision has been determined, it became known today.

Chairman William O. Douglas will temporarily retain supervision of the trading and exchange division, George C. Mathews will supervise the work of the registration division, the division of forms and regulations and the chief accountant's offices. Robert E. Healy will supervise the public utilities division and the investment trust study. John W. Hanes will have supervision of the division of research and statistics. Jerome N. Frank will have charge of the general counsel's office which deals with interpretations of the laws administered by the commission, and has charge of all court cases involving violation of the acts.

The control of divisions as assigned, means general supervision and direction. All major problems concerning policies, however, will be determined by the entire commission.

It was also disclosed that Albert B. Geiger, president of the W. F. Hall Printing company, was granted an option on 13,000 shares of the company's common stock at $7.50 a share.

VALUE OF DOLLAR SAGS AS CAPITAL FLOWS FROM U. S.

The value of the American dollar declined further in relation to foreign currencies yesterday as exchange brokers reported a continued outward flow of capital.

The British pound rose ⅞ per cent to $5.01 5-16 and the French franc closed 0.015 cent higher at 3.29 cents. Other foreign currencies recorded corresponding gains in terms of the dollar.

With the exception of two days this week the dollar has been falling steadily since mid-January in the exchange market. On Thursday gold in the London bullion market reached the equivalent of $35.03 an ounce, the highest since Jan. 1. The upturn was credited to buyers seeking protection against a further possible devaluation in the dollar.

Celotex London Plant Will Open Next Month

The new $1,250,000 plant of Celotex corporation in London, England, to be operated by Celotex, Limited, will be opened next month, Bror G. Dahlberg, president of the Celotex corporation, announced yesterday.

Steel Cartel Group Arrives; Starts Parleys

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The committee of the European Steel cartel, which seeks an end of "unfair competition" by smaller American steel companies in the world market, arrived on the Normandie today and participated in a series of meetings that lasted nearly all day.

The earl of Dudley.

No information was made available as to the American steel executives who participated in the discussions, but the heads of the larger companies, which belong to the Steel Exporters' Association of America, were not in New York.

Dieudonne Heads Commitee.

Hector Dieudonne, president of the Comp'toir Metallurgique of Luxembourg, which is the sales bureau of the cartel, was head of the delegation, which included the earl of Dudley, chairman; I. F. L. Elliot, commercial director, and G. S. Summers, director, of the British Iron and Steel federation.

The companies which are members of the export association, organized under the Webb-Pemerene act, which permits American companies to group to fix prices for the export market, are Bethlehem Steel Export corporation, United States Steel Products company, Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, McKeesport Tin Plate company, Pittsburgh Steel company, Republic Steel corporation, Spang Chalfant & Co. [Inc.], Weirton Steel company [subsidiary of National Steel corporation], Wheeling Steel corporation, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

Few Big Firms Not Members.

The only companies with capacities in excess of 1,000,000 tons of steel annually not represented in the association are Inland Steel, Crucible Steel, and American Rolling Mill company.

Indications are that the problems which the cartel group seeks to solve have to do with the steel exports of companies with smaller productive capacities than those listed and which are not parties to the "gentlement's agreement" entered into at Duesseldorf last year between the cartel group and the larger American exporters.

The earl of Dudley, questioned aboard the Normandie as to whether the purpose of the group's visit was to enter price fixing agreements with American steel companies, denied that price fixing would be a subject of their talks.

FREIGHT TRAFIC DROPS; SEASONAL TREND REVERSED

Loadings of 553,176 cars of revenue freight during the week ended Jan. 29 were reported yesterday by the Association of American Railroads. The figure represented a decrease from the preceding week, as well as from freight trafic last year and two years ago.

The decline was contra-seasonal, lowering the loadings index figures. The decrease from the week ended Jan. 22 was 17,157 cars, or 3 per cent.

Loadings were down 99,846 cars, or 15.3 per cent, from the last week of January, 1937, and 68,714 cars, or 11 per cent, from the figures of two years ago.

Car loadings last week, divided among various classifications, are shown below with comparisons:

Roosevelt Signs Bill Giving Benefits to Sugar Raisers

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed a bill appropriating $39,750,000 for benefit payments to sugar producers. The payments are to be made to those who comply with acreage allotments and other requirements of the 1937 sugar stabilization act.

FHA CUTS LOAN COSTS ON NEW SMALL HOMES

Insured Mortgage Charges Lowered.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Federal Housing administration tonight reduced the cost of government insured financing for small homes under terms of the new housing legislation signed by President Roosevelt last night.

Simultaneously Stewart McDonald, housing administrator, appealed for the "wholehearted coöperation" of lenders, the building industry, and labor.

"The success of the program in the long run," he asserted, "depends upon the coöperation of lending institutions, material and equipment manufacturers and distributors, builders and developers, and labor."

Applications for $50,000,000.

Officials were reluctant to predict how much money the program might turn into building channels, but a spokesman said the agency had received applications for mortgage insurance on more than $50,000,000 of large projects alone.

Explaining reductions in the cost of financing homes with government insured mortgages, McDonald said the annual service charge of one-half of 1 per cent which lending institutions have been permitted to charge under FHA regulations, will be discontinued on all mortgages approved for insurance hereafter.

Elimination of the service charge and a reduction in the cost of mortgage insurance will save a maximum of about 1 per cent a year to home builders carrying insured mortgages of $5,400 or less. On all other insurable mortgages the savings will be about three-fourths of 1 per cent yearly.

Place New Charges at 5½ Pct.

The total maximum annual carrying charge for an FHA insured mortgage approved for insurance hereafter will be 5½ per cent. [Formerly it was 6.24 per cent, an official said.]

In the case of new homes securing mortgages of not more than $5,400 the total annual carrying charge to the borrower will be 5¼ per cent. On a newly constructed $6,000 home the minimum down payment will be $600. On a newly constructed $10,000 home the minimum down payment will be $1,400.

OFFICE SUPPLY INTERESTS CITED FOR PRICE FIXING

Fourteen leading steel office furniture and equipment manufacturers, five dealers, and the trade associations of the two groups were cited yesterday by the federal trade commission for price fixing in violation of the anti-trust act. Those named were given twenty days in which to file answers.

The commission's complaint charged that the manufacturers, which were said to produce 85 per cent of all the steel office furniture and equipment sold in America, fixed uniform minimum prices at which they sold their products, and that the dealers cooperated with them in establishing and observing minimum resale prices fixed by the manufacturers.

The manufacturing companies named were Art Metal Construction, Bentson Manufacturing, Berger Manufacturing, Browne-Morse, Cory-Jamestown Manufacturing, General Fireproofing, Globe-Wernicke, Invincible Metal Furniture, Shaw-Walker, Metal Office Furniture, Remington-Rand, Inc., Victor Safe and Equipment, Lawman & Erbe, and Columbia Steel Equipment.

The two associations were the Steel Office Furniture institute and the Tidewater Office Equipment Dealers' association. The five dealers are all located in Norfolk, Va.

Week's Auto Production Falls to 51,443 Units

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Ward's automotive reports today estimated the week's output of the automobile plants of the United States and Canada at 51,443 passenger cars and trucks compared with 59,365 last week and 72,010 in the corresponding week of 1937. The survey reported "a sign of encouragement in the sale of used cars during the last week, tending to reduce current stocks."

MEMBERSHIP ON STOCK EXCHANGE IS SOLD FOR $1,900, NEW LOW MARK

Arrangements were completed yesterday for sale of a membership on the Chicago Stock exchange for $1,900, lowest price since present memberships became effective in September, 1929. In that year memberships sold as high as $50,000.

Although the parties to yesterday's transaction were not disclosed, it was understood that the exchange had arranged to buy it from a member. In accordance with a provision in the constitution, the exchange has been buying and retiring memberships since 1932. The constitution provides that the number shall not be reduced to fewer than 300. There are 375 memberships outstanding, with twenty-eight members holding two each.

The exchange recently has been paying $2,000 for the memberships. The 1937 peak for memberships was $3,500 compared with $7,500 in 1936.

Stocks Rally Moderately in Light Trading

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Stocks staged a mild rally late today and active issues closed fractions to more than 1 point higher. Others gained as much as 3 points. Turnover was only 806,290 shares. Sales diminished on the recovery as traders displayed an extremely cautious attitude.

The chief reason for the late upturn was attributed in many quarters to the better inquiry for some stocks based on their sold out positions.

One of the more conspicuous recoveries of the day occurred in American Telephone and Telegraph. After dipping to 127½, its lowest quotation since 1935, the stock rose to 131⅝ for a net gain of 1¼ points.

Industrial Shares Active.

Industrial shares were active in the rise, lifting the Dow-Jones average 2.03 to 120.52. Steels, coppers, motors, aviation, and rubber stocks were most prominent.

U. S. Steel common moved higher after dropping below 50 to close ½ point net higher. Other leading steels made similar gains. General Motors and Chrysler met good buying and worked more than one point higher each. Yellow Truck added a substantial fraction.

Anaconda, Kennecott, and International Nickel were among the ten most active issues of the day, rising up to one point. American Smelting added 1⅛. A conspicuous exception to the trend in this group was Chile Copper, which slumped 3½. Chemical shares were strong, Allied gaining 3 points. Du Pont gained 2½, Air Reduction 1⅞, and Union Carbide 2½.

Utility Group Stronger.

Power and light shares received more attention and leaders bulged fractions for the most part. Carrier shares hardened in the face of reduced carloadings.

Aviation shares advanced fractions to 1⅜ points, the biggest gain accruing to Douglas. Curtis-Wright moved in improved volume.

Merchandising and farm implement issues retrieved a good part of yesterday's losses. Montgomery Ward rose 1⅞ and Sears-Roebuck 2¼. Case, up 2⅞; International Harvester, up 3½, and Allis-Chalmers, up 1½, were active. Electric equipment shares were moderately higher. U. S. Rubber, up 1¼ points, was second most active issue of the day.

Signing of the housing bill by President Roosevelt aided sentiment in the building shares. U. S. Gypsum worked 1½ points higher and Johns Manville gained 1¾.

CHINA REDUCES ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE IN 1937

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—China's foreign merchandise trade balance in 1937 showed a slight gain over the previous year, the adverse balance having been $34,530,000 compared with $70,740,000 in 1936, said a radio report to the department of commerce made public today.

The United States led the Chinese trade, supplying 19.75 per cent of total merchandise imports and taking 27.59 per cent of exports; while Japan supplied 15.73 per cent and took 10.05 per cent of exports; Germany sold 15.31 per cent and bought 8.64 per cent of exports; and the United Kingdom, 11.69 and 8.64 per cent, respectively.

Total Chinese merchandise imports for the year were valued at approximately $286,020,000, an increase of 1.4 per cent over 1936, while exports totaled $251,490,000, increasing about 18 per cent compared with the previous year.

CHICAGO FIRM GIVEN CONTRACT FOR NAVY SHIPS

The Ilg Electric Ventilating company, Chicago, has been awarded the contract for the complete motor driven ventilating equipment for six United States navy destroyers, J. M. Frank, president of the Ilg company, said yesterday. The contract involves approximately $50,000, he said.

With an order received last November for ventilating equipment for three ships for the Panama Railroad Steamship company, the navy contract will provide work in the ship department of the Ilg company on a full time basis in the latter half of 1938 and possibly early in 1939, Frank said.

Substantial changes in securities holdings of Pierre S. du Pont and the du Pont family were disclosed in the monthly summary of securities transactions of corporation officials and principal stockholders for December made public yesterday by the Securities and Exchange commission. This left the company with 136,876 common and 19,922 preferred shares. The sale reduced the securities company's common equity from 20 per cent to 9 per cent, but it was understood that control of the stock remained with du Pont interests.

LISTED SHARES NOW TRADED IN OUTSIDE MARKET

Chicago Brokers Say Such Dealings Are Growing.

Chicago brokers said yesterday that trading in listed securities outside the stock exchanges is increasing. Present market conditions suggest, they said, that the "unofficial market" will experience further growth. The business is being handled by investment houses which are not exchange members, as well as by member firms.

The restricted volume of trading in many shares on the exchange is said to have forced sellers to find a market elsewhere when the necessity arises to dispose of large blocks of stocks. The liquidation of estates to meet taxes and other cash needs has swelled the volume of "unofficial" trading. Investing companies have also dealt extensively outside the exchanges.

The prices at which the securities are traded are based on the quoted figures on the exchange floors. The sale may be made, however, two to three points under the market.

"Outside" Trade Not Large.

The total volume of business traded outside the exchanges is not as large as it was prior to the market slump last August. It represents a larger proportion of the total business, however, than it did then, brokers said. The business is growing in both New York and Chicago, it is said.

Among the transactions made in New York in the last month were sales of 10,000 shares of Socony-Vacuum, 5,000 shares of Union Oil, 6,000 shares of General Electric, 25,000 shares of Phillips Petroleum, 10,000 shares of Ohio Oil preferred, 3,000 shares of Barker Brothers, 1,000 shares of Youngstown Steel Door, 5,000 shares of Masonite, 5,000 shares of New York Central, and big blocks of Monsanto Chemical and Pacific Lighting. The 5,000 share offering of New York Central was sold entirely abroad, it is understood.

Sell Stock Outside New York.

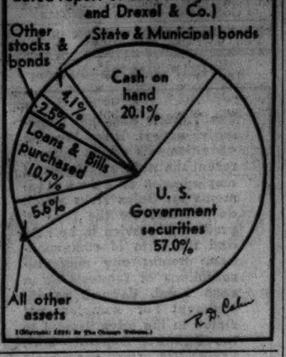
In many cases the sellers stipulate that the shares are to be distributed to investors outside of New York City. When this is a factor the firm or group of firms handling the deal parcel out 100 or 200 share blocks to salesmen in branch offices and the stock is placed with individual investors.

An especially large private sale is managed by a selling group which resembles the syndicates formed to direct flotations of new issues. The incentive to the dealers is the concession offered from the public sale price, which is considerably larger than the commission that might be obtained from handling the transaction on the exchange.

The origin of these blocks of stock is varied, but generally the shares may be traced to estate holdings or investment trusts that are changing their portfolios.

How Morgan Invests

(Based upon Dec. 31, 1937, consolidated report of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co.)



NORTH WESTERN AND MILWAUKEE MERGER URGED

Services Duplicated, Says Stock Group.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission heard a plea today that it give immediate consideration to the possibility of merging the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific and the Chicago and North Western railroads.

William Wakefield, technical adviser to a committee of Milwaukee preferred stockholders, suggested the possibility of consolidating the two roads. He said he was authorized to speak for a committee of preferred stock holders of the Chicago and North Western as well as the Milwaukee committee.

Services Are Duplicated.

He cited extensive paralleling of lines and duplication of services by the two railroads. He said the two preferred stock holders committees had begun studies of the possibility of consolidation, but they had not been completed. He said he believed the I. C. C. was in a position to investigate the situation more fully.

Oliver E. Sweet, I. C. C. finance director, made no comment on Wakefield's statement. He adjourned until March 21 further hearings in connection with the Milwaukee reorganization. He denied a plea by Robert T. Swaine, attorney for the Milwaukee management, that the hearings be postponed until July.

Bondholder Plan Opposed.

Swaine attacked a reorganization proposal by a committee of institutional bondholders, saying that on the basis of present earnings the road's capital structure would not stand up.

The railroad's management offered a reorganization plan shortly after the railroad went into bankruptcy in 1935, but later withdrew its support of the proposal. The railroad also declined to offer a substitute plan, pleading that current uncertainties made a sound plan impossible at this time.

Investment Bankers Will Supply Over Counter Prices

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The investment bankers' conference, which is an outgrowth of the Investment Bankers' association code committee under the NRA, beginning on Tuesday will undertake the task of furnishing quotations on over-the-counter securities, it was learned today. Heretofore, the supplying of these quotations has rested with the New York Securities Dealers' association. The latter association will continue to function in all its other activities.

EGG AND BUTTER FUTURES FALL, THEN RECOVER

Egg futures, after dipping to new lows for the season, recovered all or most of their early losses yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, and closed unchanged to ⅛ cent a dozen lower. February fresh egg contracts finished at 16¾, down ⅛. October was unchanged at 21 cents.

Chicago receipts continued to run ahead of those of a year ago. Midwest packing plants reported that receipts last week were 20 per cent larger than in the corresponding 1937 week.

Butter futures also weakened early, but did not touch seasonal lows and finished unchanged. February contracts closed at 29⅝ cents a pound and March at 29¼ cents. Top grade creamery butter eased ¼ cent in an unsettled cash market, and extras touched the year's low of 32 cents. Futures sales totaled 81 cars of eggs and 63 cars of butter.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—(AP)—The estate of the late John F. Cushing of Evanston, Ill., appealed today to the board of tax appeals on income and estate tax deficiencies totaling $102,795. The estate particularly protested disallowance by the internal revenue bureau of a deduction for a $193,000 gift to the University of Notre Dame du Lac. Cushing was president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company.

TWO COMPANIES OMIT DIVIDENDS; ANOTHER CUTS

Payment Halted by Allen Industries, Pepperell.

The Pepperell Manufacturing company, large textile producer, and Allen Industries, Inc., automobile and refrigerator accessory firm, yesterday omitted dividends on their common stocks. Pepperell paid semi-annual dividends of $3 each and a special of $5 last year. Allen Industries has been on a 25 cent quarterly basis.

A third corporation, Van Raalte company, reduced its March 1 common dividend payment to 50 cents. A year ago it paid 62½ cents, and subsequent quarterly payments included two of 75 cents each and one of $1.37½.

Others Pay "Regular."

Regular dividends were ordered by directors of Brown Fence and Wire, Oshkosh B'Gosh, and American Chicle. T. H. Blodgett, chairman of American Chicle, said January business held up well.

An extra of 5 cents was declared by Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines in addition to its regular payment of 5 cents every four weeks. Arrears were cleared by International Products corporation, and Sherwin-Williams of Canada ordered a dividend of $1.75 to hold arrears at $12.25 a share on its 7 per cent preferred stock.

The dividend meeting of the John R. Thompson company, postponed from Jan. 20 to yesterday, was postponed again to next week, probably Thursday.

COTTON

Persistent buying of cotton futures, attributed to foreign and trade accounts lifted prices rather sharply yesterday. The volume of business transacted was the best in several weeks, trading on the Chicago Board of Trade, while somewhat under the best prices, showed net gains of .03 to .09 cents per pound. Other American markets gained .04 to .09 cents. There was some selling of March cotton, which was replaced by purchases of the deferred futures.

Spot cotton closed .05 cent higher with New York, 8.60 cents; New Orleans, 8.75 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 8.50 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Investors' Guide

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Saturday, February 5, 1938.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]
Remington Rand, Inc.

Investors' Guide: I understand that Remington Rand is one of the few companies to earn more in the last quarter of 1937 than it did in the last quarter of 1936. Will you please send me a report on this company?—R. M.

Answer: Remington Rand, Inc., does a world-wide business in office supplies and equipment. Its principal products can be classified into four main groups. They are typewriters and supplies, office systems and equipment, accounting, and adding machines, and punched card accounting equipment and supplies. A wholly owned subsidiary, General Shaver corporation, manufactures electric razors.

Almost every business institution is a potential customer and the field for the company's products has been greatly increased by recent federal laws and regulations requiring more complete record keeping for tax and other purposes. Remington typewriters, accessories, and supplies provide the most important single source of revenue.

Domestic sales are principally handled by direct distribution to the consumer through the company's own sales organization. Only a small portion of domestic sales and a slightly larger proportion of foreign sales are made through dealers.

Foreign business normally accounts for about one-third of total sales volume.

The company earned $1,391,497, or 76 cents a common share after preferred dividend requirements, in the three months ended Dec. 31, 1937, the third quarter of the company's fiscal year, compared with $1,057,243, or 55 cents a share, in the same period a year ago. Earnings in recent fiscal years:

Years ended Mar. 31.	Net sales.	Net income.	Earned per com. share.
1937	$45,633,411	$3,516,732	$1.73
1936	39,358,234	3,010,288	1.24
1935	33,388,891	1,750,591	0.39
1934	27,912,501	1,264,941	0.01
1933	22,483,607	*2,461,030	*2.97
1932	32,247,071	*3,035,733	*3.32
1926	63,291,824	2,927,766	1.15

*Deficit.

The company had approximately 170,132 shares of $4.50 cumulative preferred stock and 1,584,888 shares of $1 par common outstanding on Sept. 30, 1937.

Dividends totaling 90 cents a share were paid on the common during the calendar year 1937. A 25 cent payment was distributed Jan. 3, 1938. The company reported current assets of $30,949,572 and current liabilities of $6,427,956 as of Sept. 30, 1937.
